G. O. P.'s Candidate Behind Governor In Baltimore Vote

Ritchie Holds Margin of Only About 1,800 in Early City Returns as Nice Leads in Outlying Areas.

SLOW TALLY ADDS UNCERTAINTY, BUT BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY

France Trails Radcliffe, 7,816 to 5,020, While O'Conor Tops Rival for Attorney Generalship.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Baltimore, Nov. 6.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, seeking a fifth term as chief executive of Maryland, tonight was being hard-pressed as early returns showed him running slightly ahead of his Republican opponent, Harry W. Nice, in Baltimore the crucial spot in the campaign.

Both Democrats and Republicans were contending late tonight, as the ballot counting proceeded with irritating slowness, that they had captured the governorship for the next four years. The Ritchie managers claimed Baltimore City by 35,000 votes, and his election by 25,000. Mr. Nice's managers claimed victory by "better than 40,000."

Radcliffe Seen Winner.

While doubt existed over the outcome of the gubernatorial fight, George L. Radcliffe, personal friend of President Roosevelt, appeared certain of election as United States Senator. He is committed to support of the New Deal and the President. Other Democratic candidates likewise were running well.

In 47 precincts out of 685 in Baltimore, Gov. Ritchie received 7,896 votes to 6,067 for Mr. Nice. Mr. Radcliffe had 7,816 votes to 5,020 for Dr. Joseph I. France, his Republican opponent. No official returns had been received from the counties.

Herbert R. O'Conor, Democrat, for attorney general, had 9,034, to 4,124 for George Henderson, Republican.

Earlier in the evening, and included in the total above, returns from 24 precincts where voting machines were used as a test by both the Republican and Democratic candidates as affording a basis of calculation of the final result in the city gave Nice a lead.

Democrats See Plurality.

In these 24 precincts Mr. Nice received 3,625 votes, or 310 more than the 3,315 recorded for Gov. Ritchie. Mr. Radcliffe received 3,333 votes to 2,994 for his Republican opponent, Joseph I. France. Herbert R. O'Conor, Democratic candidate for attorney general, received 3,893 votes to 2,568 by George Henderson, his Republican opponent.

The Ritchie headquarters pointed out that 63.66 per cent of the registered vote in Baltimore was Democratic, the Democratic affiliation in the voting-machine bloc of precincts was only 52.86 per cent.

The Democrats also pointed out that in the test precincts Gov. Ritchie polled approximately 50 per cent of the registered Democratic vote, while Mr. Nice polled 70 per cent of the registered Republican vote. Applying these percentages to the total registration, the Demo-

Virginia Race Now Conceded To Democrats

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Lawrence C. Page early tonight conceded the reelection of Senator Harry F. Byrd and sent him the following telegram of congratulations:

"Please accept my sincere congratulations upon your reelection to the United States Senate."

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democratic incumbent, and all nine Democratic incumbent candidates for Congress held commanding leads over their opponents with unofficial returns received from aproximately one-third of the precincts in today's election.

With returns from 549 of the 1,694 precincts in the State, Byrd was leading with 44,459 votes, compared to 11,844 for his Republican opponent, Lawrence C. Page, of Norfolk.

Among the Congressional races, the only contest appearing to be in doubt on the basis of early returns was that in the Ninth District, meager returns from that district gave John W. Flannagan, Democratic incumbent, a lead of about 2 to 1 over Fred C. Parks, Abingdon Republican, while Bruce Crawford, of Norton, Independent, was trailing as a poor third.

Richmond, Nov. 6 (AP).—The quietest political campaign in many years was reflected today in a light vote as Virginia named a United States Senator and nine Congressmen.

So confident of victory was Senator Harry F. Byrd, the Democratic incumbent, that he left the cam-

Youthful Bandits Rob Boy of Dime, Tie Him to Tree

Wilroy Clark, 13-year-old newspaper carrier, reported to police last night he was held up at the point of a knife, robbed of 10 cents and then tied to a tree in the Capitol Grounds with his own necktie. Three other small boys did all this to him, he told Fourth Precinct police.

Clark worked himself loose after 15 minutes' effort, he said, and then ran home, 113 Fourth street southeast. From home he telephoned police.

Sing Sing Prisoners Get Election Returns

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—Prisoners at Sing Sing Penitentiary were allowed by Warden Lewis E. Lawes to stay up later than usual tonight to hear the election returns. The prison radio system was kept in operation beyond the regular hours.

Prison officials explained the inmates were especially interested in the New York gubernatorial race because of the governor's power of commutation and pardon.

Montgomery Democrats Holding Lead

Fusion and Republican Tickets Running Far Behind.

Early returns from the Democratic and Republican strongholds in Montgomery County indicate the Democrats are taking a lead that will be maintained.

In Takoma Park, Republican bailiwick, the Democratic organization is running 1½ to 1 ahead of the Fusionists and Republicans.

Silver Spring, Democratic fortress, reports State and county tickets are running two to one over their opposition.

In one precinct, the Sixth at Takoma Park, Paul M. Coughlan, a Fusionist, is running ahead of his Democratic opponent, Miss Lavinia Engle, in the race for a place on the board of county commissioners. This is on the basis of the first 100 votes counted in the precinct.

Ritchie Slightly Ahead.

Gov. Ritchie is but 11 votes ahead of Harry W. Nice, Republican gubernatorial candidate, in the Sixth Takoma Park Precinct; 12 ahead of him in the Third and 24 ahead of the Republican in the Ninth Takoma Park Precinct.

Officials at Bethesda said the Democrats, county and State, were holding a "slight" lead in the first 100 ballots counted there.

Kensington also voted the Democratic ticket, Gov. Ritchie having 52 votes to Mr. Nice's 41 out of the first 100. The Fusionists were running behind there, too.

The first break in the Democratic lead came when the Poolesville District—home of John Oxley, Fusionist candidate for the board of commissioners—gave Mr. Nice 127 and Gov. Ritchie 75 votes out of the first 202 counted.

The voting climaxed the most bitter campaign in years. At clos-

Mexico City, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Spanish language newspapers, La Prensa, of San Antonio, Tex., and La Opinion, of Los Angeles, were barred from Mexico by the government today, presumably because of articles about the Catholic situation.

Doumergue's Cabinet Falls; Riots Feared

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—A nine-month political truce in France ended today as Premier Gaston Doumergue's national government fell, and tonight Paris, recalling the riots that brought "Papa" Doumergue to power, feared new bloodshed.

Edouard Herriot, vice premier, and his five fellow Radical Socialist ministers forced Doumergue out, quitting the cabinet after the party had differed with the premier over his program for constitution revision.

To Herriot, as leader of the faction that broke the truce, President Albert Lebrun will assign the task of forming another government.

Friends said Herriot would accept. He will keep the Doumergue line-up almost intact, they said, leaving out only Henry Lemery, minister of justice, and putting in his place former Premier Andre Tardieu, minister without portfolio

4 Killed, Three Wounded as Nation Votes

(Associated Press.)

Outbursts of violence, with shootings, abductions and knifeplay, flared frequently in yesterday's Nation-wide balloting.

Three men were slain and two wounded in Kentucky, two of the deaths being attributed to election quarrels. Kendall Allen, 21, was killed at Argillite as he wrestled for possession of a pistol with which his brother allegedly had wounded another man.

McKinley Williams, 27, colored, was slain at Weeksbury, Ky., after a voting altercation with another colored man. Town Marshall John Lake, 52, of Livingston, shot to death A. B. Brown, 50, after the victim had stabbed the officer in a fight over a previous difference.

The mining village of Kelayres, Pa., voted in a tense calm after gunfire had raked a parade of Democrats Monday night, causing 4 deaths and wounds for 14 others.

Guffey Ahead Of Reed by 19,286 Votes

Philadelphia Complete, Third of Allegheny Included.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—Joseph F. Guffey, hard-fighting champion of the New Deal, flashed into the lead late tonight over Senator David A. Reed, critic of the Roosevelt Administration and Republican candidate for United States Senator.

The figures, including Philadelphia complete and approximately one-third of Allegheny County in a total of 5,166 of 7,957 districts in Pennsylvania, Reed, 952,580; Guffey, 971,866.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—Pennsylvania voted with ragged nerves today as its bitter campaign over the New Deal came to a climax in bloodshed and brawling.

National attention focused on the fight for reelection of the veteran United States Senator David A. Reed, caustic critic of President Roosevelt's policies and sometimes mentioned as Roosevelt's opponent in 1936.

Pinchot Active.

Postmaster General James A. Farley put the force of the Democratic national committee back of Reed's opponent, Joseph F. Guffey, former national committeeman, who backed Roosevelt for the Presidency a year before the Chicago convention.

Farley insisted the President was the issue of this campaign and Reed contended "no individual" was the issue.

The Reed-Guffey contest overshadowed the congressional fights and shared interest with the race for the governorship between Attorney General William A. Schnader, backed by the Republican State organization, and George H. Earle, former Minister to Austria.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Independent Republican, who opposed Reed

Republican Stars Fall to Oblivion, Farley Comments

Defeat of Senator Fess by Donahey in Ohio Appears Certain; Two La Follettes Ahead in Wisconsin.

RETURNS SHOW CUTTING BEHIND TROOPS AT NEW MEXICAN POLLS

Democrats May Win Eight More Seats in Upper House; Holt Piles Up Large Margin Over Hatfield.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Upsetting all precedents, Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic Senatorial candidate, seized the lead in returns shortly before midnight, passing Senator David A. Reed, Republican.

He already was claiming victory and each batch of returns made Reed's chances appear more in doubt.

By Raymond Clapper.

The New Deal appears to have come through its mid-term election with a smashing victory.

Mounting returns tolled off the political passing of one after another of anti-New Deal Republican Senators and menaced others.

Eight Democrats may take over Senate chairs now held by Republicans, which would give them a two-thirds majority there.

House losses apparently will be slight.

President Roosevelt, receiving the returns at Hyde Park expressed delight.

Postmaster General Farley, as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was bursting with a fresh triumphal statement every few minutes. It is his third big haul. The first was when he brought Mr. Roosevelt through the Chicago convention with the nomination. The second was when he chalked up the 1932 victory. Now he has come through the mid-term test with new scalps lashed to his belt.

Democrats apparently have captured Senate seats from Republicans in Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Connecticut, West Virginia and New Jersey.

Few surprises showed up to midnight. However, Senator David A. Reed was having the fight of his life in Pennsylvania and there was grave doubt whether the hard hitting, conservative Republican, who has refused to give ground under New Deal pounding, would be able to survive against Joseph F. Guffey, although he was leading on the incomplete returns. The result was inconclusive but alarming to Republicans who have held Pennsylvania's Senate seats intact since the Civil War.

California showed Upton Sinclair trailing, according to private advices. Returns from 1,573 precincts gave Merriam, Republican candidate for Governor, 184,000, and Sinclair, 166,112.

Curiously, Sinclair's running mate for lieutenant governor was running ahead of Merriam's sidekick. The figures on this contest, in 1,341 precincts, gave Downey, Democrat, 120,811, and Hatfield, Republican, 114,216.

Fess Appears Doomed.

Maryland results were extremely slow coming in. Governor Ritchie, up for his fifth term at Annapolis, was ahead, but not yet safely so. He was running behind George Radcliffe, Democratic Senatorial candidate, who seemed certain of election, taking over a seat held by Republicans.

Ohio apparently had sent Senator Simeon D. Fess back to private life, ending a long career at Washington during which he became chairman of the Republican National Committee. Vic Donahey, former Governor, apparently was ready to pack his senatorial clothes and start for Washington.

Republican senatorial figures were falling all around, and the two-thirds majority for the Democrats in the Senate apparently was certain.

It was particularly gratifying to

Sinclair Trails G. O. P. Foe In Early Vote

Los Angeles, Nov. 6 (AP).—Complete and incomplete returns from 930 precincts out of 10,721 in the State gave for Governor Merriam (Republican), 97,676; Sinclair (Democrat), 89,322, Haight (Progressive-Commonwealth), 21,710.

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (AP).—A prediction of public discontent amounting to "fury" and a promise of recall proceedings in the event Frank F. Merriam is elected Governor were made today up Upton Sinclair, EPIC gubernatorial contender, while Californians jammed the polls to decide the bitter State battle.

"A reactionary administration may be elected in our State," Sinclair acknowledged in a final statement, "but if it is, the people will find that it has no real program and will be confronted with a deficit of more than $100,000,000 next year.

"The reactionaries will be chiefly concerned with putting down strikes and starting fascism. The discontent of the people will amount to fury, and I will call upon our people to start immediately a campaign of education to bring about

Wife Bought Baby, Man Says; Made Him Believe It Was His

A charge that his wife had purchased the baby daughter she told him was her own was made in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Ramon Bayasca-Perna, 1536 Connecticut avenue northwest, in a suit for limited divorce from Catherine Bayasca-Perna, of 1341 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The discovery that the baby girl was not his daughter shocked him to such an extent, his suit said, that his health has been impaired and his nervous system injured.

The circumstances under which the baby came into the household, as depicted in the divorce papers, were that many months ago his wife informed him she was going to have a baby. On July 25, he said, a nurse phoned him and told him to hurry home because his wife was ill. When he got there he found the place "suggestive of a new-born baby."

Some months later, he charged, he discovered his wife had "not given birth to the child, but had arranged for its delivery to her home, making it appear as if the baby had been born to her."

The husband said he was "proud and happy" until he learned of the alleged "purchase" of the baby. Since then, he said, he had not lived with his wife and now he is seeking a limited divorce and a court order restraining her from interfering with his duties as maitre-de-hotel at the Heigh-Ho Club. Attorneys King & Nordlinger filed the suit.

Roosevelt Votes, Waits Returns at Hyde Park

'Name, Please,' Official Asks Him at Polls; President May Win Modest Sum if His Election Guesses Are Correct.

By Leon Dure, Jr.
(Post Staff Writer).

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 6.—President Roosevelt tonight followed election returns, State by State, in the quiet of Hyde Park House. Earlier in the day he cast his vote under the glare of kleig lights at the village's plain little town hall.

The President was sitting up late receiving reports which Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant White House secretary, telephoned in from executive offices set up in a Poughkeepsie hotel.

There a newspaper ticker was installed, together with extra telephones, in order that Mr. Roosevelt might be supplied with the earliest figures. These he tabulated with pad and pencil at his mother's estate, surrounded by members of the household.

The Chief Executive was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, and his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, when he arrived at the town hall to vote at 11 o'clock this morning. It was a raw, rainy day, and he was clad in a heavy brown worsted suit.

First to greet him as he left his automobile was Moses Smith, president of the Roosevelt Home Club, who shouted, "Hello, President." The President followed his mother into the old building, pausing on the steps long enough to recall another bleak, wet day two years ago, when he was elected to the White House.

"It's good weather for ducks," he remarked; "we ought to win."

10 Convicts Spend 32 Days At Sea Escaping Penal Isle

Aruba, Dutch West Indies, Nov. 6 (AP).—Ten escaped convicts from three French penal colonies off French Guiana reached Aruba today and told of hardships suffered during their flight.

The men, headed by Jean Duvernay, made the perilous ocean crossing despite the fact there was not one sailor in the lot.

For 3 of their 32 days under the scorching Caribbean sun they were without food and for 5 days no water passed their parched lips. Twice their frail boats were wrecked and many times they were near death.

The convicts—four of whom were imprisoned on Royal Island, four on St. Joseph and two on Devils Island—communicated with each other to lay their plans for escape through the food delivery boat traveling among the islands.

Duvernay had money concealed and with it he purchased a 16-foot canoe which, by prearrangement, put out at night from the mainland to a place on Royal Island.

The men then swam the shark-infested passage between the islands to the meeting place and, once together, swam out to sea to meet the canoe.

A fisherman who brought the boat out was put off on the mainland and the 10 set sail for Trinidad.

They battled the elements for 32 days until a passing British

Ritchie Pressed By Harry Nice In Early Votes

Both Sides See Victory on Basis of Returns in Baltimore.

cratic statisticians declared that Mr. Ritchie would receive 112,500 votes in the city and Mr. Nice 77,000 if it is assumed the test precincts properly represent the trend among all voters. It was in this way that Gov. Ritchie's city plurality of 35,000 over Mr. Nice was figured.

The Republican headquarters said it was content to stand on the 310-vote lead which Mr. Nice obtained in the 24 precincts, pointing out that this trend would give him a Baltimore majority of close to 10,000. The Republicans count on a large majority outside of Baltimore.

The Democrats were more cheerful regarding the county situation after hearing reports from various leaders this evening. Since the polls in the county did not close until after 7 p. m., the counting there was far behind Baltimore City.

Nice Majority Cut on Shore.

But as the count went on, the county leaders canvassed the incompleted results and sent returns to the Democratic headquarters here. On the basis of those returns, the Eastern Shore leaders felt that that section would not produce as large a Nice majority as had been expected.

Word from Somerset County, the scene of the Princess Anne lynching, was to the effect that the Nice majority would not run much above 1,000, whereas the Democrats earlier in the week had conceded the county by 2,500.

Former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington reported that Dorchester County, which always has been hostile to Gov. Ritchie, might break even in today's balloting. Talbot County also was reported as about evenly balanced by incomplete returns from several precincts showed Gov. Ritchie running far behind.

Although the Republicans contended that Baltimore County would show unexpected Nice strength, the Democratic leaders there told headquarters they would produce at least a 2,500 Ritchie majority. Little was heard from the Western Maryland district.

The voting in Baltimore was heavy throughout the day, with a larger proportion of Democrats entering the polling booths than Republicans. Yet none could be certain how these Democrats voted. Many voted against Mr. Ritchie in the primary in September and the Republicans expected to receive their votes today, as well as many more Democrats.

But the Democrats in Baltimore can afford to lose many voters without suffering defeat. They have 225,601 adherents on the registrations books, compared to 110,675 Republicans. There are 18,094 independents registered. The Democrats have on the poll books a registered plurality of 96,832.

Guffey Assumes Lead Over Reed

for the nomination in May, campaigned vigorously against Guffey, though he made little mention of Reed, whom he before the primaries called "The messenger boy of the Mellons."

Pinchot soon drew the fire of Democrats, who ridiculed him for opposing Guffey and supporting Schnader. They called him "the man on the flying trapeze," and the "medicine man" of the Republican Party.

A near-record vote was predicted despite rains which drenched eastern and central counties in the day.

Street fighting and other disorders broke out in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh's "Strip" tenement district. State police guarded the home of Joseph Bruno, Republican leader of Kelayres, a hard-coal town in the mountains near Hazleton, where four men were slain and 14 others wounded by gunfire which raked a Democratic parade last night.

Investigation Ahead.

Senator James F. Byrnes, South Carolina Democrat, chairman of the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, said today he will come to Pennsylvania as soon as possible after the election to look into charges that entered the campaign.

Guffey stumped the State with his appeal to the voters to support the President whom he called "God's inspired servant," who saved the people from "chaos and possible revolution."

Reed described the campaign as one to bring back confidence and end fear, to put men to work and prevent a "Tammany Hall politician" from getting control of the Government in Harrisburg and and Southern and Western politicians from "milking Pennsylvania dry through discriminatory taxation."

Balloting Brings Death and Turmoil

The bitter campaign in Ohio was marked by a killing, a stabbing and a bombing. Lon Hayslip, 61, was shot to death in an election quarrel at West Union, while Charles Scarberry, 35, was stabbed and seriously wounded in Gallia County. Joseph Anderson, whose father headed a faction in a county sheriff fight, was menaced by a mob at Cleveland.

Two men were kidnaped in Chicago, but were liberated unharmed.

Roosevelt Gets Election News At Hyde Park

Votes Early; 'Name Please,' Hs Is Asked at Polls by Official.

luminated the scene within, which resembled nothing so much, with its raftered ceiling, as a school gymnasium. To the left, members of the Third District Election Board kept tab on arrivals. Near the center of the hall, two voting machines were stationed. There were several score spectators, women predominating.

Stopping at the table of the election board, the President asked his neighbors as cameramen ground their film, "How do you like working under Kleig lights?"

"Name, Please."

"Name, please," Mrs. Emma Crapser, Republican chairman of the board, responded crisply.

"Two hundred and seventy—nine," intoned another election official, checking over the registration list.

After they had voted, Mrs. Roosevelt, attempting to get out of the line of camera fire, ducked past the President as he stood by the voting machine. She was recalled for pictures beside her husband.

"I have to be careful about this," Mr. Roosevelt insisted, edging away from the booth. "I decline to have it appear that my wife is telling me how to vote."

"That would be too bad," Mrs. Roosevelt agreed, as the small crowd tittered.

President Registers.

Before leaving, Mr. Roosevelt stopped at another booth to register for the next Democratic primary. Others voting and registering from Hyde Park House were Miss Marguerite Lehand and Mrs. Malvina Scheider, secretaries to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and Miss Nancy Cook, a close friend.

By arrangement, correspondents followed the President's car back to his estate where he proposed a modest pool on the election results. The Roosevelt luck has been especially good on these pools, which have been made up every two years since his first election as Governor of New York.

Rules of Pool.

In proposing that he be given a chance to prognosticate again, the President laid down rules whereby each was to predict the outcome in every State. The Presidential predictions were received, in a social envelope, at Poughkeepsie headquarters tonight.

Sitting in his car at the entrance to his home, Mr. Roosevelt told newspapermen—his tongue in his cheek—that he would undoubtedly retire early since it was election night. He further said that he would not comment on the election tonight nor tomorrow for that matter.

Massacre Scene Goes Democratic By 715 to 42 Vote

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP).—Kline Township, scene of an election eve slaying of four persons in a Democratic parade, turned in a majority of 715 for the Democratic ticket to 42 for the Republican ticket today.

Kelayres, the town where the shooting occurred last night, gave the Democrats 662 and the Republicans 24.

Members of the families of those slain and injured, in most cases, did not vote, and members of the family of Joseph Bruno, Republican leader, were in jail.

Last year the Democrats had a 540 to 467 lead on the face of unofficial returns, but a court decision altered the total and gave the Republicans a 45 majority.

the recall of the new Governor within six months."

While the former Socialist was thundering his warning at Pasadena, Merriam was smilingly confident of victory.

"The outlook is very encouraging" he said as he voted at Long Beach. "I know California will be loyal today to the principles of American government."

Record balloting, in which the right of hundreds of persons to vote was challenged, marked California's day of reckoning on the fight for the governorship.

One person was arrested in Los Angeles and another in San Diego during the early voting. In the great majority of places, most of those challenged proved their right to cast ballots.

The early voting, which saw as much as 30 per cent of the registered voters casting ballots before noon in some of the populous centers, produced no disorders.

Each of the 3,547 precincts in Los Angeles County, Sinclairite stronghold when the primary election gave him the Democratic nomination for Governor, was guarded by a policeman or a deputy sheriff. San Francisco polling places also were officially watched.

Authorities estimated as many as 2,500,000 of the State's 3,100,000 voters would cast ballots.

freighter furnished them with new supplies and they pushed on to Trinidad.

There they rested for 30 days, obtained another craft and set out again. Winds buffeted them and squalls drenched them until after 12 days their boat was crushed on the coral coast of Curacao.

The first night out their mainyard parted and they fought their way into San Nicholas Bay, Aruba, where they remained long enough to have their vessel repaired.

After stocking up with new clothing, food and cigarettes, they fared forth again. Three miles off Aruba their boat went down. They managed to keep afloat until a Dutch pilot boat rescued them and brought them back into Aruba.

The colony here today was subscribing funds to enable Duvernay and his fellows to buy still another, and stronger, craft.

New Deal Gains Heavy Support Over Country

Democrats that most of the Republican senatorial casualties included some of the severest critics of the New Deal—Walcott, in Connecticut; Hatfield, in West Virginia; Kean, in New Jersey, and Patterson, in Missouri.

But it appears as if a New Deal Republican, Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, also might go down. He was a Roosevelt supporter in 1932, and was offered a place in the Cabinet as Secretary of Interior. But a Democrat, Representative Dennis Chavez, wanted his seat this time and Chairman Farley turned on the heat.

"The figures are not yet complete enough for us to go into details as to the States we have carried," said Chairman Farley in New York, according to the Associated Press, "but we do know that the New Deal has been magnificently sustained. Famous Republican figures have been toppled into oblivion. In fact, we must wonder who they have left that the country ever heard of."

New York returned its verdict early when by 9 o'clock Republican managers had conceded the reelection of Governor Lehman and Senator Copeland.

Curley, Walsh Winning.

In Massachusetts the vociferous New Dealer, Former Mayor Curley, of Boston, was heading into the governorship and Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, was due to return for another term.

Democrats showed no fear of losing any seats, although they were slightly uneasy over Wyoming, where Senator O'Mahoney, former young lieutenant of Chairman Farley, was in a hard fight. Returns from there were late.

In Delaware, where Democrats had hoped to pick up a senatorial seat, the Democratic candidate, Representative Adams, was pressing hard on the heels of Senator Townsend, but the outcome was uncertain.

Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, apparently was reelected.

G. O. P. Holds Vermont.

Vermont resisted the Democratic raid and seemed to be returning Senator Austin, Republican, for another term.

Minnesota returns began to show up with the spectacular farmer-labor governor, Olson, in the lead. The LaFollette brothers were leading in Wisconsin.

Virginia went solidly Democratic, as was anticipated.

House returns, coming in slowly, showed no surprising upsets, but it was too early to judge the final loss or gain of the Democrats there.

Pennsylvania was rapidly provided the real test of strength. Guffey, made a bold gesture of confidence by telephoning New York Democratic headquarters that he would sweep the State by 200,000 majority.

Mrs. O'Day Leads.

Although New York quickly returned smashing majorities for Gov. Lehman and Senator Copeland, it was not so prompt in the case of Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Democratic candidate for Representative at large, for whom Mrs. Roosevelt stumped the State. She held only a slight lead over her Republican opponent, Miss Natalie Couch, reflecting, perhaps, the intense feeling of Republican women who protested it was unfair for the First Lady of the Land to enter the State fight.

It was to the West—where the Roosevelts always have turned—that the New Deal managers looked for their real triumphs.

In Indiana, Senator Arthur Robinson, bitter anti-Administration Republican, was falling behind the Democratic candidate, Sherman Minton, even in Indianapolis, Robinson's home town.

In Missouri, Harry S. Truman, protege of Boss Pendergast of Kansas City, ran in expected form and was steadily edging Senator Roscoe Patterson, Republican, back to private life.

Holt Far Ahead.

The boy Democrat in West Virginia, Rush D. Holt, was so far ahead of Senator Hatfield, Republican old guardsman, that the Charleston Gazette claimed his election about 9 o'clock. Hatfield was still hanging on grimly, however, refusing to concede defeat.

Connecticut's Senator Walcott, Republican, slipped behind, and Representative Francis T. Maloney, Democrat, headed straight for promotion to the Senate. Gov. Wilbur T. Cross, Democrat, appeared safe for reelection.

New Mexico returns were slow coming in but Democrats were in early with claims that they had taken the scalp of Senator Cutting, the liberal Republican.

Wheeler Victory Apparent.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, appeared to be coming through in Montana. Democrats had been a trifle nervous about him recently.

Rhode Island was not performing quite up to advance indications. Senator Felix Hebert, Republican, who had been slated for slaughter by the New Dealers, was still ahead of former Senator Peter Gerry, Democrat.

Republicans have been expecting to pick up Congressional seats in Kansas, but the early returns were inconclusive.

Standing in line at his polling place, Farley said the people are really voting for President Roosevelt and that he would receive the greatest demonstration of approval that any Administration ever had received mid-term.

Balloting Heavy.

Everywhere the vote was heavy. Ballot boxes bulged and voting machines in the cities worked up hot-boxes. Voting approaching or exceeding previous off-year election records were reported in New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, California, Minnesota and Iowa, all hot battle grounds. One thing the New Deal has done. It has aroused the average citizen to intense interest in his Government. It has brought Washington to the voter's doorstep and the record-breaking vote testified the once forgotten man might be for or against the New Deal, but never indifferent.

Despite this intense interest, a minimum of disorder was reported. Pennsylvania had the most flagrant election shooting Monday night when 4 were killed and 14 wounded.

Chicago, where gunplay has made previous elections exciting, was as tame as a lamb. The only breakdowns of peaceful inhibitions reported were two abductions. The brother of a colored candidate for the State senate was seized on the Chicago South Side. A mail carrier was kidnaped from a polling place. Both were released.

Troops in New Mexico.

In New Mexico, State troops were out unofficially, provoking the charge from Republicans that Democrats were trying to win with bayonets.

A little trouble in Missouri was reported, but in California, where feelings were lashed to a high pitch in the Merriam-Sinclair fight, everything was orderly, although guards watched polls in Los Angeles and in some San Francisco precincts.

Peery Predicts Party Sweep In Quiet Vote in Virginia

paign to his lieutenants without attempting a speaking tour. Lawrence C. Page, of Norfolk, his Republican opponent, confined his campaign principally to organization work.

Only in the "Fighting Ninth" Congressional District, where Democrats and Republicans battle vigorously in all elections, was there a real campaign.

Representative John W. Flannagan (Democrat) was opposed by Fred C. Parks (Republican) and Bruce Crawford, Norton editor and Independent, in a spirited campaign which brought Gov. George C. Peery and Ashton Dovell, floor leader of the Virginia House of Delegates, to Flannagan's aid in a stump-speaking tour.

Voters Apathetic.

Voters were apathetic generally, with reports from most sections of the State telling of light balloting despite ideal weather.

Democrats were claiming a clean sweep for Senator Byrd and the nine Democratic Representatives as the polls closed, while Republicans waited eagerly for the returns.

"A substantial victory," was Gov. Peery's prediction as he came back from the Ninth District. The victor in the ninth, which Gov. Peery once represented, will represent a slightly smaller district, for Wythe County was transferred to the Fifth District under the 1934 redistricting act.

Senator Byrd's other opponents were a Communist, two Independents and a Prohibitionist. They were Herman R. Ansell, Socialist, Richmond; Alexander Wright, Communist, Norfolk; J. L. Litz, Independent, Coeburn; John G. Bowman, Independent, Winchester, and Newman R. Raymond, Prohibitionist, Alexandria.

First District.

In the First District, S. Otis Bland, of Newport News, the Democrat incumbent, was opposed by Arthur W. Showalter, Socialist, Tabb; Addison Gayle, Communist, Newport News, and W. A. Rowe, Independent, Blackwells.

Second District—Colgate W. Darden, Democrat incumbent, Norfolk; Gerould M. Rumble, Republican, Norfolk; Herbert S. Carrington, Communist, Norfolk, and George Rohlsen, Socialist, Norfolk.

Third District: Andrew J. Montague, Democrat, incumbent, Richmond; Roy C. Parks, Republican, Richmond; Williard Bernstein, Socialist, Richmond; William H. Friend, Communist, Richmond.

Fifth District.

Sixth District—Clifton A. Woodrum, Democrat incumbent, Roanoke; Thomas A. Wilson, jr., Republican, Clifton Forge; W. L. Gibson, Socialist, Lynchburg; John M. Robinson, Independent, Fincastle.

Ninth District.

Ninth District—John W. Flannagan, jr., Democrat incumbent, Bristol; Fred C. Parks, Republican, Abingdon; G. Louis Mhlirons, Socialist, Longspur; Bruce Crawford, Independent, Norton.

The election was the first in Virginia since the last redistricting, in which the Tenth District was swallowed up, principally by the Sixth and Seventh districts.

In other changes, the Third lost Goochland to the Eighth; the Fourth gained Appomattox, Buckingham and Cumberland from the Tenth; the Fifth gained Wythe from the Ninth; the Sixth gained Alleghany, Bottetourt, Craig and the City of Clifton Forge from the Tenth, and the Seventh gained Amherst, Augusta, Path, Highland, Nelson, Rockbridge and the city of Buena Vista; the Seventh lost Charlottesville and Albemarle County to the Eighth District.

Doumergue Cabinet Collapses in Crisis

under Doumergue, who will serve as vice premier.

So vivid was the fear of disorders that the retiring premier and his minister decided to defer announcement of the government's fall until Thursday, hoping Herriot will have his new cabinet ready by then.

Meanwhile, the most elaborate precautions were taken to avert repetition of the street fighting that preceded the overthrow of Edouard Daladier's government.

Heavy police forces were hidden around the Chamber of Deputies, which earlier received government-drafted bills providing severe penalties for the chiefs of rioting groups, and nearly 1,000 men were quartered at the Invalides Police station across the street from the foreign office where Doumergue has his offices.

A column of police began moving through the city, forming a close network to prevent posible demonstrations.

Lone Vote in District Costs New York $1,125

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—It cost the city about $1,125 today for Rabbi Nathan Wolf to vote.

He was the only voter in the Fortieth Precinct of the Tenth Assembly District. Four election officials and two policemen waited until the Rabbi, carrying a book of poems, arrived at the polls. Although enrolled as a Democrat, the Rabbi voted a split ticket. Election officials then waited until 6 p. m. to close the polls.

Democrats Win In Alexandria

Byrd and Smith Score Victories There by Wide Margins.

Democrats swept Alexandria in yesterday's voting, with both Senator Harry F. Byrd and Representative Howard W. Smith winning for reelection by large pluralities.

Out of 2,546 ballots cast, the vote was Byrd, 2,105 and Smith, 2,090.

Lawrence W. Page, Republican candidate for the Senate, polled 270 votes, and John Locke Green, Republican candidate for representative, received 377 votes.

Other candidates polled few votes. In the race for the Senate, Herman R. Ansell, Socialist, got 20 votes; Alexander Wright, Communist, 4; J. L. Litz, independent, 3; John G. Bowman, independent, 23, and Newman H. Raymond, prohibitionist, 17.

Trailing far behind Green, F. A. Shelton, Socialist candidate for the House, got 33 votes.

Voting was orderly. Fifty-eight ballots were thrown out when they were found to be "irregular."

Ward	Byrd	Page	Ansell	Wright	Litz	Bowman	Raymond

Farley-Sinclair Controversy Finally Solved

Withdrawn Indorsement Is Laid to Missing Form Letter.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

The key to the mystery of Chairman James A. Farley's suddenly withdrawn indorsement of Upton Sinclair came to light yesterday in the shape of a form letter drawn up by the Democratic National Committee.

This key-letter, sprinkled with blank spaces into which could be dropped names and words to fit all situations, was to have gone to every precinct committeeman in 46 States. Only Maine and Louisiana at first were excepted.

Then, suddenly, Farley withdrew his indorsement of Sinclair as Democratic candidate for Governor of California. Thousands of letters in which his name had been filled in had been prepared. They were left piled on a table in New York Democratic headquarters.

One letter, however, had escaped. It came to light in California, causing the Administration considerable embarassment.

Sent 135,000 Committeemen.

The heavily blank-spaced key letter, 260,000 filled-in-and-signed copies of which finally were sent to 135,000 precinct committeemen in 45 States, bore across its top, just below the masthead of the Democratic National Committee, the terse instruction:

"Letter to go to all precinct committeemen over the signature of Chairman Farley."

A first paragraph was devoted to impressing upon the recipient the need for a sympathetic Congress if the program of President Roosevelt was to succeed.

"He must have friends on guard from top to bottom," it said. "Your work at the polls on November 6 must be the answer to the critics of the Roosevelt administration."

The second and third paragraphs left numerous blanks, each numbered, and with a key at the bottom to indicate what should be filled in. The numbered answers to blanks specified in every case that the Democratic nominee for Governor, Senator or Representative was to be named. For Hiram Johnson in California, who carried both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

Sample Paragraphs.

A sample of the manner in which the two paragraphs were intended to read follows:

"(Name of State) (Democrats or Democrats and Republicans) are to be congratulated for their wise judgment in selecting Hon. (name of Senate candidate) as the nominee of the (name or party or parties) for United States Senator. By electing Hon. (Democratic candidate for Governor) your popular Democratic candidate for Governor, (name of State) will have a combination of leaders in Washington and in (State capital) who con cooperate in the best interests of the people of the State and of the Nation. Each voter owes it to himself to vote not only for (Senate candidate) and (candidate for Governor) but the entire Democratic ticket.

"If the people of all political parties will join in (returning or sending) Hon. (name of Democratic candidate for Congress) to the House of Representatives, I know he will cooperate with the National Administration in the best interests of (name of State). During the next two years, the President will need a Democratic Congress to lend sympathetic support to every phase of the recovery program, and with Hon. (senior Democratic Senator, if any) and Hon. (junior Democratic Senator, if any) in the Senate and Congressman (Democratic candidate for Congress) in the House, the (number of Congressional Districts) would be ably represented in the Nation's Capital."

Farley Changes Mind.

With the exception of Wisconsin, in which reference was not made to the Democratic Senatorial candidate who is opposing Senator La Follette, the Progressive candidate, these appropriately filled-in letters were sent to all the States on the list. Maine was omitted because it had voted; Louisiana because the committee is not on letter writing terms with Senator Huey Long.

In mapping the plans, no exception was made for California. The letters were prepared for that State. Lists of precinct committeemen for that State were arranged. All plans were made for mailing them.

Before more than a confidential sample copy had been sent, however, Farley changed his mind. Orders were issued that the letters were not to be mailed. They were held in the New York headquarters.

A California representative who had received a sample copy of the letters asked an official of the Democratic National Committee for permission to use the letter. This official, having been away from Washington when Farley countermanded his order to mail the letters, did not know of the change in plans. He informed the representative that the letter was to go to all precinct committeemen in California and that it might be used in any way at all.

Thus, the letter came to light in California while hundreds of facsimile copies cluttered up the office in New York and lay there unmailed through the remainder of the campaign.

Ten Convicts Escape Georgia Chain Gang

Decatur, Ga., Nov. 6 (AP).—Ten white convicts working on a road near Dunwoody, Ga., overpowered a guard and escaped from the Dekalb County chain gang today.

Earlier today a Fulton County convict was shot and seriously wounded in an attempt to escape from a camp. A second Fulton prisoner, who also fled, was captured after a chase with bloodhounds.

Dear Mr. Doe:

You want to help the program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt succeed. Of that I am sure. As a party worker, you have a great responsibility on November sixth, and I feel sure in writing you at this time, that you will not shirk the duty that is yours. If President Roosevelt's program for economic recovery and a return of prosperity is to succeed, he must have a Congress sympathetic to it. He must have friends on guard, from the top to the bottom. Your work at the polls on November sixth must be the answer to the critics of the Roosevelt administration.

___1___ ___2___ are to be congratulated for their wise judgment in selecting Hon. ___3___ as the nominee of the ___4___ Party for United States Senator. By electing Hon. ___5___, your popular Democratic Candidate for Governor, ___6___ will have a combination of leaders in Washington and in ___7___ who can cooperate in the best interests of the people of the State and of the Nation. Each voter owes it to himself to vote not only for ___8___ and ___9___ but the entire Democratic Ticket.

If the people of all political parties will join in ___1___ Hon. ___2___ ___2___ to the House of Representatives, I know he will cooperate with the National Administration in the best interests of ___3___. During the next two years, the President will need a Democratic Congress to lend sympathetic support to every phase of the Recovery Program, and with Hon. ___4___ and Hon. ___5___ in the Senate, and Congressman ___6___ in the House, the ___7___ District would be ably represented in the Nation's Capital.

Of course, this is a State, and not a National Election, and the responsibility of the campaign rests with the State and local Organizations. If there have been minor differences of opinion, I am sure they will be forgotten, and everyone will work with the State leaders in the interest of all. By working shoulder to shoulder with real team work, I am satisfied we can achieve a great victory.

With best wishes and deep appreciation of what you have already done, I am

Navy Vessels, Planes Crash

Destroyers Towed Into Port; Flier Unhurt by Fall Into Sea.

Los Angeles, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two American destroyers damaged in a collision off Magdalena Bay, Mexico, were en route to San Diego Navy Base tonight in tow of tenders.

Wireless reports said the destroyer Ellis, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. F. K. O'Brien, rammed the McFarland on the starboard side while both were engaged in maneuvers without lights last night.

The commander of the McFarland radioed to the flagship Raleigh that none of the crew had suffered serious injury, but water was rising rapidly in the fire and engine rooms.

Another accident, involving airplanes from the carrier Lexington, married the maneuvers.

Fishbein Opposed To Sterilization Of Human Misfits

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Nature's own method of eliminating misfits stood in the way today of an indorsement by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Journal, of human sterilization.

Appearing in a symposium last night with leaders of science and religion, Dr. Fishbein said that the general evidence of the accomplishments of human sterilization "is far too slight at this time to command anything in the nature of an indorsement."

He quoted several scientific studies to indicate that sterilization was needed in some degree, but asserted that nature in her own way was prone to eliminate the misfits.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi, termed sterilization the only sure challenge to the rising tide of degeneracy.

Prof. A. J. Carlson, of the University of Chicago, said that sterilizations accomplished without desexing the individual, was the only control for hereditary factors in degeneracy. The three speakers frowned on sterilizations made compulsory by law.

Mrs. Dall Ignores N. Y. Election and Challenge of Vote

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, did not return her absentee ballot today, thus sidestepping the challenge made to her franchise by Miss Natalie Couch on the grounds of non-residence.

Miss Couch, Republican candidate for representative-at-large, declared her intention of challenging Mrs. Dall's vote in a telegram sent yesterday to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Because Mrs. Dall established residence in Nevada this summer to obtain her divorce, Miss Couch claimed she had forfeited her right to vote in this State.

Mrs. Dall remained in Washington, and the ballot which she had obtained by mail was not returned.

Early Returns In East Hailed By Democrats

Rain or Cloudy Weather Fails to Cut Down the Vote.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Democrats interpreted scattering returns in the traditionally Republican East tonight as indicating success for New Deal candidates in crucial senatorial and gubernatorial battles.

The first towns in Massachusetts and New Hampshire to report showed a higher percentage of Democratic votes than in 1932.

In West Virginia, 29-year-old Rush D. Holt led Republican Senator Henry Hatfield in incomplete returns from the latter's home county. Hatfield was ahead, however, in the first Harrison County precinct to tabulate.

Voters Defy Rain.

Rain or cloudy weather throughout New England and the Middle Atlantic States failed to cut down the vote. A near-record total was predicted in Pennsylvania, scene of the fiery contest between the veteran Senator David A. Reed, Republican critic of Administration policies, and Joseph F. Guffey, State Democratic leader, watched as an outstanding test of Eastern New Deal sentiment.

New York Democratic leaders predicted the large vote cast in inclement weather would roll up large majorities for Senator Royal Copeland and Gov. Herbert Lehman, whom President Roosevelt indorsed. In the metropolis the election was unusually orderly.

Postmaster General Farley, who stayed at Democratic headquarters, estimated the Copeland-Lehman slate would win by 600,000 votes over E. Harold Cluett and Robert Moses, respectively.

In Massachusetts early returns gave Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, a higher percentage than he enjoyed six years ago. Former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller and some other Republicans had indorsed him over Richard Washburn, the Republican nominee.

Mayor Curley Leading.

The first three towns to report showed a slight lead for former Mayor James M. Curley, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, over Lieut. Gov. Gaspar Bacon, Republican. This was caused largely by the vote in Mashpee, which overturned its 1932 Republican majority in Curley's favor.

New Ashford, Mass., which gave Bacon 22 and Curley 10, retained its distinction of being the first town in the country to tabulate.

Democrats looked hopefully to Vermont on the possibility that Fred C. Martin would oust Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican, who was active in attacking the Government's new air-mail set-up. The campaign was the hottest in the State since pre-Civil War days.

Four other Eastern Republican Senators—Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island; Hamilton F. Kean, of New Jersey; Frederic C. Walcott, of Connecticut, and John Townsend, of Delaware—were up for reelection.

Democrats, who hoped to win all four seats, supported former Senator Peter Gerry in Rhode Island; Gov. A. Harry Moore in New Jersey; Representative Francis T. Maloney against Walcott, and Representative Wilbur L. Adams in Delaware.

New Hampshire, which had no senatorial contest, witnessed a close race between H. Styles Bridges, Republican, and John L. Sullivan, Democrat, for Governor. Livemore gave Sullivan 13 votes to 2 for Bridges, but in Waterville the latter won, 7-0.

Maine held its election in November, but observed the day by opening a special legislative session to draft a liquor law. Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, was reelected, as was Gov. Louis J. Brann, Democrat.

If You Can't Take It, Hic, You Won't Be Given License

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP).—If the ideas of A. L. Bowen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, are enacted into law, bartenders will have to see a person's "drinking license" before they fill 'em up.

Bowen, speaking before a luncheon club today, said "drinking licenses" are as necessary as other kinds. They would be issued by the State, under Bowen's plan, only to persons who had demonstrated an ability to "handle their liquor."

7 States Vote On Legalizing Liquor Sales

Some Gains Are Shown for Repeal Backers in Early Returns.

New York, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Seven States voted today to determine whether they would join 28 others in legalized liquor sales.

Early reports indicated some gains for repealists. Dry forces battled strongly to maintain their positions.

California, involved in a spectacular gubernatorial contest, also considered two State constitutional amendments clarifying local liquor laws.

Kansas Battle Close.

Early reports indicated:

Kansas, bulwark of prohibition for more than 50 years: A fight to the finish with neither side optimistic.

Nebraska: Both wets and drys claiming victory; odds favor repealists.

West Virginia: Wets considered assured of victory.

Florida: Anti-prohibitionists leading, but liquor question overshadowed by other local issues, including several constitutional amendments.

South Dakota: A close battle; outcome uncertain.

Idaho: Wet and dry chances even.

Relief Issues Decided.

Although prohibition amendments attracted close attention throughout the country, more than 50 constitutional questions were decided in 19 States—all of major importance locally.

Unemployment relief and tax reforms confronted thousands of voters. Bond issues aggregating $134,000,000, all for relief purposes, were voted upon in New York, California, Illinois and New Jersey.

Twelve States considered tax proposals. In Louisiana, voters marked ballots on a 2 to 6 per cent tax on individuals and a flat 4 per cent on corporations. The program is part of "Kingfish" Huey P. Long's campaign for redistribution of wealth.

Film Tax Up in Florida.

Florida, hearing reports that the motion-picture industry might move from Hollywood, advanced an amendment proposing exemption from taxation for 15 years of studios and other picture plants.

Nebraska appeared to be defeating a pet proposal by Senator George W. Norris, veteran Progressive Republican, to create a one-house legislature. In Missouri, voters were asked to decide whether retired teachers should receive pensions.

Pari-mutuel betting was a question in Massachusetts, with each county making its own decision. Gasoline tax problems were sidelights of balloting in Michigan and Ohio.

Democrats Win The President's Home Precinct

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—President Roosevelt's home precinct, the third district of the town of Hyde Park, today went Democratic for the fourth time in history.

Complete returns give Governor Lehman 440 to 376, and Senator Copeland 404 to 394. Lehman also won, 6,314 to 5,797, in Poughkeepsie, but returns from the rest of Dutchess County, which is normally Republican, were incomplete.

The President carried his home precinct by only eight votes in 1932. His margin in 1930, when he ran for Governor, was better, amounting to 236 votes. Al Smith is the only other Democrat ever to have carried it.

Chicago Voter Sells Ballot for 'Two Bits'

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Twenty-five cents a vote was the rate today in one downtown district, but Government investigtaors said they had found evidence of only one sale.

The Federal district attorney was notified that one Harry James Ryan had sold his vote. Ryan admitted accepting 25 cents for his pencil mark on the ballot. Ryan was released. The man who paid him is being sought.

Prince Georges Giving Ritchie A 'Safe' Margin

One-Fourth of the Ballots Indicate Majority for Democrats.

Shortly before midnight last night it was estimated that approximately one-fourth of the votes had been counted in Prince Georges County.

Figures obtained from the polling precincts, however, were few and far between at this early hour, but it was generally conceded that Ritchie was taking a substantial lead for reelection to the governorship.

At the Third Chillum Precinct, located at Mount Rainier, it was announced a final count had been made of the Ritchie votes. The count stood Ritchie, 383; Nice, 186.

Most of the precincts reported that it appeared as if all the Democratic State ticket "was safe." The majority of the county places were also destined for the Democrats, they believed.

The Hyattsville precincts estimated they would give Ritchie a 200 majority, with a proportionate majority for the other State candidates.

The Berwyn No. 2 precinct at College Park estimated that Ritchie had 70 per cent of its 458 votes, and that the county ticket had 60 per cent. Marlboro was said to be evenly divided. And the Republicans had a lead in the Queen Anne District and one Seat Pleasant District.

Late Vote is Heavy.

The county's voters appeared almost lethargic most of the day, with practically none of the enthusiasm that was expected after the heated campaign. The 29,000 county voters were nowhere near half voted in midafternoon, but with the influx of office workers from Washington that began after 4:30 it was believed a record vote would be cast.

Democrats predominated in the early voting, according to the signs observed by veteran politicians. Rumors of "trades" and "cuts" began in the late forenoon and party leaders began tightening up the reins.

The Prince Georges ballots contained 63 names and it was expected a number of "split tickets" would be voted, thus making the task of counting even harder. It was not expected any really definite returns would be ascertainable before midnight.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie is expected to receive a sizable majority in the county, according to Democratic leaders. Republicans said Nice would carry the county, but were not as vociferous as during the campaign.

8 Names Restored.

Names of seven persons which had been stricken from the registration books in the Riverdale district were ordered returned yesterday by the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro and they were enabled to cast their votes. An eighth who had been refused a place on the books also was ordered placed on the books.

Democratic leaders and workers passed most of the early hours of yesterday hunting for "scurrilous literature" which they had been "tipped off" was to be distributed under cover of darkness by Republicans. The literature was not found, and it was decided the tip was a hoax.

In the meantime, the election supervisors set at rest rumors that the list of election officials would be revamped because of the presence of several officials who also are town officials in the incorporated towns of the county. The attorney general had ruled town officials could not serve as election officials. None of those who held dual jobs, however, resigned.

The day was generally quiet as far as disturbances were concerned. There was a scarcity of intoxicated persons around the polls. All schools and public offices and banks were closed. All establishments serving liquor also were closed, the law forbidding sale of intoxicants, even beer, on election day.

Show Planned At Dog Market

Mart Is Revived After Lapse of Year; Is Old Tradition.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—A bench show to be held in conjunction with trading and sale of dogs at the annual Dog Mart Saturday was announced today by the Chamber of Commerce.

Three awards will be made in each of several classes of competition. Judges will be W. Marshall King, Dr. R. T. Gregory and Mrs. George Hamilton Scott.

The Dog Mart will be revived this year after a lapse of a year. The Mart had been held on a smaller scale for the preceding six years, using as an example the original Dog Marts which were held more than 200 years ago by colonial settlers.

The event will be held in the city park. Trading will take place in the morning and afternoon, with private and auction sales being held during midday hours.

Votes of Hoovers Go to Merriam

Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 6 (AP).—Former President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover today cast their ballots in the Stanford University campus election booths set up in the woman's clubhouse. Mrs. Hoover drove the family car to the clubhouse from the Hoover home on San Juan Hill.

The Hoover votes were for Acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam, Republican candidate in the gubernatorial race, the former President had no hesitancy in making known.

But in response to a query about the vote on Senator Hiram Johnson, who won nominations of the Republican, Democratic, Progressive and Commonwealth Parties, Mr. Hoover's secretary, Paul Sexton, would say only, "No comment."

Yesterday's National Election Returns From All the States

Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 6.—Voters today elected a Democratic Governor and five Democratic candidates to the House of Representatives over nominal opposition.

Bibb Graves, Governor from 1927 to 1931, will go back to the executive mansion. His opponents were Edmund Dryer, of Birmingham, Republican; John M. Davis, Communist, and Arlie Barber, Socialist.

Samuel F. Hobbs, of Selma, defeated Charles R. Robinson, his Republican opponent, for a seat in the House. Joe Starnes, who beat former Senator J. Thomas Heflin's attempted comeback in the Democratic primaries, won the Fifth District House seat from Dr. James C. Swann, of Wedowee, chairman of the State Republican central committee.

In the Seventh District, Representative W. B. Bankhead defeated J. W. Dodd, of Nauvoo, an Indedendent, while Representative John McDuffies defeated Andrew Forsman, a Communist, in the First District.

Arizona

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Complete returns from three precincts and incomplete returns from three more gave Democratic incumbents a strong lead over their Republican opponents in Arizona.

Senator Henry F. Ashurst, 1,142 votes to 471 for J. E. Thompson; Representative Isabella Greenway, 1,113 to 467 for Hoval A. Smith, and Gov. B. B. Meour, 1,132 to 926 for Thomas Maddock, was the early count.

California

Los Angeles, Nov. 6.—Upton Sinclair, EPIC candidate for the California Governor's chair, trailed his Republican opponent, Gov. Frank C. Merriam as votes from the State's first precincts to report were recorded tonight.

In 11 precincts in Los Angeles County, Sinclair, winner of the Democratic nomination but loser of the Administration's support, had polled 931 votes to Gov. Merriam's 1,514. Raymond F. Haight, Commonwealth candidate, polled 282 votes.

Colorado

Denver, Nov. 6.—Gov. Ed C. Johnson, Democratic candidate for reelection to Colorado's governorship, had a fair lead over his Republican opponent, Nate C. Warren, tonight as returns from 27 scattered precincts showed 2,842 votes for Johnson and 2,251 for Warren.

Connecticut

Hartford, Nov. 6.—Democracy was winning its battle for a firmer hold on normally Republican Connecticut on the basis of early returns tonight.

The New Dealers made a sweep of every city except Bridgeport which gave the majority of its votes in the gubernatorial election to Mayor McLevy, the first Socialist ever to head a city government in the State.

In the Senate race the Democratic candidate, Maloney, was leading the Republican incumbent, Walcott, 122,885 to 104,874.

The Republicans were looking for the rural districts, where the returns were slower because of the use of paper ballots instead of the voting machine, to stem the Democratic tide.

In the contests for the House, early returns were:

Delaware

Wilmington, Nov. 6.—By a margin of 535 votes in 60 out of Delaware's 226 precincts, United States Senator John G. Townsend was leading the Democrat, Wilbur L. Adams, in his fight for reelection tonight.

Returns in all precincts were running close, with the New Deal making slight gains over 1932. Both candidates campaigned on national issues.

Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 6.—Prohibition was the issue in Florida tonight, with leading candidates conceded victory by virtue of primary triumphs.

The repealists held a long lead with 144 of the State's precincts voting 7,297 for; 3,184 against.

Senator Park Trammell was reelected without opposition.

Georgia

Atlanta, Nov. 6.—Georgia sent Gov. Talmadge back to the Statehouse today. He was without an opponent in his stand for reelection.

Early reports from the Peachtree State indicated the voting had been unusually heavy.

Illinois

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Democratic candidates for Congress were leading in all 10 Chicago districts on the basis of early returns. Even Fred Britten, veteran of 11 terms, and Oscar de Priest, only colored person in the House, were trailing.

Two Democrats seeking election as Congressmen-at-large—Michael L. Igoe and Martin A. Brennan—held substantial leads over their Republican rivals, C. Wayland Brooks and Milton E. Jones.

James McAndrews, former West Side Democratic Representative, led Britten on Chicago's near North Side, while De Priest was far behind his colored Democratic rival, Arthur W. Mitchell.

The standing:

Britten—1,448 (9 precincts).
McAndrews—1,780.
Igoe—79,509 (390 precincts).
Brennan—76,819.
Brooks—40,675.
Jones—36,354.

Idaho

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 6.—Returns filtering in slowly out of the rural precincts of Idaho tonight showed Gov. C. Ben Ross fighting a losing battle against the Republican Stephan for reelection.

Indiana

Indianapolis, Nov. 6.—With his home city against him, Senator Arthur R. Robinson, arch foe of the New Deal, was trailing his Democratic rival, Sherman Minton, in the outstanding contest in this State.

With 504 of the 5,836 precincts reporting, Minton had 138,977 votes, against 121,857 for Robinson. Minton held a 10,000-vote lead over Robinson in the latter's home county, Marion.

Iowa

Des Moines, Nov. 6.—Gov. Clyde L. Herring, Democrat, and former Gov. Dan W. Turner, Republican, were running nip and tuck in the Iowa gubernatorial race tonight on the basis of early returns. Wallace M. Short, Farmer-Labor, was far behind.

The standing (15 out of 2,452 precincts):

Herring, 1,698.
Turner, 1,819.
Short, 54.

Kansas

Topeka, Nov. 6—Scattered election returns last night indicated that Kansas would remain Republican and "bone dry" in the face of a national New Deal triumph.

Republicans threatened to increase their seats in the House of Representatives from four to six out of seven, the Republican governor was leading, and the 54-year-old prohibition law appeared safe.

While the vote still was small enough to keep the outcome in doubt, the standing was:

For governor (96 out of 2,691 precincts):

Alf M. Landon, Republican, 15,533.
Omar B. Ketchum, Democrat, 12,717.

On prohibition (27 precincts):

For repeal—4,359.
Against—3,398.

For Congress:

Mrs. Kathryn O'Laughlin McCarthy, Democrat, was trailing Fran: Carlson, Republican in the sixth district. In the fourth, Hal E. Harlan, Republican, led the Democratic incumbent, Randolph Carpenter, by more than 300 votes.

The only Democrat ahead was John M. Houston, who was seeking to succeed W. A. Ayres, resigned, in the fifth district. He held a slight lead over Ira C. Watson, Republican.

Louisiana

New Orleans, Nov. 6.—In a quiet election which was a formality, for the greater part, Louisiana voters today ratified Senator Huey Long's program of constitutional amendments, returned eight Democratic Representatives to Congress and reelected two members to the Louisiana Supreme Court and a State public service commissioner.

The only congressional candidate who faced opposition was Representative J. O. Fernandez, of the First District. Stoutly supported by the Long forces, he easily defeated Mrs. Louise S. Jessen, a Socialist.

Maryland

Baltimore, Nov. 6.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie had a margin of about 1,800 votes over Harry W. Nice, his Republican opponent, for reelection, in returns from 47 of the 685 precincts in Baltimore tonight. The vote to that point stood: Ritchie, 7,896; Nice, 6,067.

The Governor's running mate for the Senate, George L. Radcliffe, held a lead over former Senator Joseph I. France, Republican. The figures were: Radcliffe, 7,816; France, 5,020.

Massachusetts

Boston, Nov. 6.—James M. Curley, ardent supporter of President Roosevelt and thrice mayor of this city, was leading by more than 15,000 votes in the race for Governor on the basis of returns from 244 out of 1,716 precincts. He had 64,693 votes, as against 49,437 for his Republican opponent, Gaspar G. Bacon.

These early returns included 50 precincts in Boston, while those from New Bedford and Brockton were complete.

Election of Curley by a 120,000 majority was conceded at 10 o'clock tonight by the Boston Herald, the only local morning paper which supported Bacon.

Michigan

Detroit, Nov. 6.—Senator Vandenberg, Republican incumbent, held a slight lead in the race for reelection as returns were reported from 190 of the State's 3,451 precincts.

The count: Vandenberg, 31,645; Frank A. Picard, Democrat, 29,925.

Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican nominee, held a similarly small lead over Arthur J. Lacy, Democrat, for the governorship. Returns from 205 precincts gave the former 37,438 and the latter 34,691.

Minnesota

St. Paul, Nov. 6.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, candidate for reelection on the Farmer-Labor ticket, had a meager lead in early returns from Minnesota. The first 31 precincts out of 3,700 gave him 4,815 votes. A close second was Martin Nelson, Republican, with 4,059, while John E. Regan, Democrat, trailed with 1,263 votes.

Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 6.—Facing no opposition, Theodore G. Bilbo, the former "paper cutter" of the Department of Agriculture, today became Mississippi's junior Senator. Bilbo, a colorful figure in Mississippi's official life, was unopposed after he defeated Senator Hubert D. Stephens in a Democratic primary run-off.

Missouri

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6.—Senator Roscoe Patterson appeared to have lost his fight to retain his seat, on the basis of early returns. Election officials showed that out of 219 precincts of a total of 4,271, his opponent, Harry Truman had a lead of 66,023 votes to 12,248. The remainder of the Democratic ticket was running well ahead of Republican candidates. Congressional returns were too meager to predict the outcome.

Montana

Butte, Mont., Nov. 6.—United States Senator Burton Wheeler appeared to be well on his way to another term in the United States Senate on the basis of returns from 12 of the 1,260 precincts of the State. He had a lead of 2,785 to 1,260 for his opponent, George M. Bourquin.

Nebraska

Omaha, Nov. 6.—Returns from 20 precincts in Nebraska gave E. R. Burke (D) a lead of 2,024 votes to 1,027 for R. G. Simmons in the Senate race. For governor, R. L. Cochran had 1,961 votes on the Democratic ticket and Dwight Griswold had 1,176 on the Republican. The vote for repeal had taken a turn and was favoring elimination of prohibition by a vote of 3,121 to 572.

Nevada

Reno, Nov. 6.—Senator Key Pittman, Democrat running for reelection, led George W. Malone, Republican, in early unofficial returns. Democrats sought also to reelect the State's lone representative, James G. Scrugham, as they fought to put a banker in place of Acting Governor Morley Griswold.

New Hampshire

Concord, Nov. 6.—Democratic Representative William N. Rogers was trailing, 799 to 1,193, as Republicans jubilantly scanned returns from 45 out of 294 towns and wards. T. Styles Bridges, Republican, led for governor, 3,993 to 2,611, while Representative Charles W. Tobey, Republican, headed his Democratic opponent, 1,913 to 1,245. Heavy voting in Manchester gave it the largest total of votes cast in history, 28,000, except for 1932.

New Jersey

Newark, Nov. 6.—Republicans cheered up as first reports put Senator Hamilton F. Kean ahead of Gov. A. Harry Moore, Democratic candidate for Kean's Senate seat, 250 to 188. Harold G. Hoffman, Republican, headed for Moore's chair in the State House with 323 votes to 129 for William L. Diel, his Democratic opponent.

New Mexico

Albuquerque, Nov. 6.—Fighting valiantly against the opposition of the New Deal he helped foster, Senator Bronson Cutting, independent Republican, trailed his Democratic opponent, Representative Dannis Chavez, slightly, 369 to 465, as the first five precincts out of a total of 785 reported. Democratic leaders predicted his ousting in a party landslide.

New York

New York, Nov. 6.—With the New Deal of its native son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, at stake, New Yorkers piled up a landslide victory for the Democrats today.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Roosevelt's successor at Albany, triumphed over Robert Moses, the Republican nominee for Governor, in smashing fashion. Moses conceded defeat early in the night.

Senator Royal S. Copeland won just as handily over his Republican opponent, E. Harold Cluett, Troy collar manufacturer, who likewise conceded.

The vote was:

Lehman, 469,966; Moses, 259,343.

Copeland, 1,339,127; Cluett, 705,797.

In addition to these victories, the Democrats picked off a House seat from the Republicans, James P. B. Duffy, New Deal candidate, winning over Representative James L. Whitley in the Thirty-eighth District.

One of the few things the Republicans could be thankful for was the reelection of Representative Bertrand Snell, G. O. P. leader of the House. He wired Republican National Committee Chairman Henry Fletcher that he had won "by more than a normal majority."

Among other Republicans who clung to their House seats were Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., an outspoken critic of the New Deal; Representative Clarence Hancock, jr., and Representative James W. Wadsworth, a potential candidate for President in 1936.

Said Fish:

"The people are still on the side of Santa Claus."

North Carolina

Charlotte, Nov. 6.—The Democrats made a clean sweep of national offices in today's election. The vote, however, was light, interest being at a low ebb.

Representative Alfred Bulwinkle, of the Tenth District, was reelected over his Republican opponent, Calvin R. Edney, by a ratio of better than two to one.

The margin of victory for other Democratic nominees to the House was even greater.

Representative John H. Kerr, in the Second, and Representative Frank W. Hancock, in the Fifth, had no opposition.

North Dakota

Fargo, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Lydia Langer, Republican candidate for Governor, running on a "vindication" platform, was far behind her Democratic opponent, Thomas Moodie, on the basis of early returns.

With 14 out of 2,242 precincts reporting, the vote was, Moodie, 2,203; Langer, 576. The returns were principally from the cities.

Mrs. Langer announced her candidacy after her husband, William Langer, had been ousted from the Governor's office following his conviction on a charge of soliciting contributions from Federal relief workers.

Ohio

Columbus, Nov. 6.—Senator Simeon D. Fess, one of the chief Republican critics of the New Deal, was far behind his Democratic opponent, former Gov. Vic Donahey, in the senatorial race.

Martin L. Davey, Democratic nominee for governor, was leading his Republican opponent, Clarence J. Brown, a newspaperman, but not by so wide a margin.

The vote on the basis of returns from 103 out of 8,559 precincts was:

Donahey, 9,760; Fees, 4,769.

Davey, 11,507; Brown, 9,127.

Senator Fess has been on Capitol Hill for 22 years, having been elected to the House in 1912, the year of the split in the Republican party.

Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, Nov. 6.—The Democrats apparently elected a Governor and seven, possibly eight, members of the House of Representatives today.

Representative E. W. Marland, Democratic nominee for Governor, had a comfortable lead over the Republican nominee, former Senator W. B. Pine.

Democrats elected to the House were Will Rogers, at large; Wilburn Cartwright, Third District; Jed Johnson, Sixth; Jack Nichols, Second; P. L. Gassaway, Fourth; Sam Massingale, Seventh, and John Lee, Fifth.

In the Eighth District, normally Republican before Marland ran for the House there, Phil Ferguson, Democrat, was leading T. J. Sargent, the Republican nominee.

Oregon

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 6.—A big vote was cast in Oregon today, but the returns were slow coming in.

Peter Zimmerman, known as "the fighting Progressive," ran for Governor on a platform of relief for workers, an old-age pension and a State-owned bank. His opponents were Charles H. Martin, New Dealer, and Joe E. Dunne, Republican, who advocated a pay-as-you-go system of State finances.

Three Congressional candidates were on the ballot.

Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic candidate for Senator, began reducing an early lead of David A. Reed, Republican incumbent, late tonight.

The incomplete totals included 615 of Philadelphia's 1,283 districts, where the vote was: Reed, 160,562; Guffey, 155,468.

Rhode Island

Providence, Nov. 6.—Two almost neck-and-neck races developed in Rhode Island. Returns from 80 districts out of 232 showed:

South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 6.—Olin D. Johnston, a New Dealer, was elected Governor of South Carolina today without opposition.

The complete Democratic ticket was elected.

South Dakota

Aberdeen, S. Dak., Nov. 6.—Tom Berry, Democratic incumbent, was running ahead of W. C. Allen, his Republican opponent for the Governorship, with 34 precincts complete out of 1,941.

The vote: Berry, 10,349; Allen, 8,045.

Twenty-three precincts gave for Congress in the Second District: Theodore B. Werner, Democrat, 290; Francis H. Chase, Republican, 183.

Fourteen precincts gave for Congress in the First District: Fred Hildebrant, Democrat, 1,369; C. A. Christopherson, Republican, 1,274.

Tennessee

Nashville, Nov. 6.—With votes from more than half of Tennessee's precincts tabulated, Senator K. D. McKellar, Democrat, seeking reelection for another six-year term, had a lead of 20,414 over former Gov. Ben W. Hooper, Democrat, running on a Fusion ticket. The vote was: McKellar, 71,994; Hooper, 51,580.

Another Democrat, Senator Nathan L. Bachman, candidate for the two years remaining of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's term, was leading his independent opponent, Dr. John R. Neal, by a vote of 70,889 to 18,573. This was on the basis of returns from 1,214 precincts.

Gov. Hill McAlister, Democrat, on reports from 1,254 precincts, was leading Lewis S. Pope, Independent, by 76,836 to 58,779 for retention of the Governorship.

Memphis citizens voted overwhelmingly to allow the city to issue bonds up to $9,000,000 to acquire a distributing plant for TVA electric power. From 91 precincts in the city, the first 35 to report showed 11,669 in favor of the bond issue and only 676 against it.

Texas

Austin, Nov. 6.—Tom Connally, junior Texas Senator, was reelected with all other Democratic candidates for State and national offices.

Texas voters, approving their choices in the August Democratic run-off primary, also balloted on eight amendments to the State constitution and on the question of retaining 3.2 beer.

Vermont

Montpelier, Nov. 6.—Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican incumbent and bitter foe of the Administration, held a slight lead over his Democratic opponent, Fred C. Martin, for reelection to his seat in the Senate. Returns from 145 of the State's 248 communities showed: Austin, 32,778; Martin, 26,983.

On returns from 136 cities and towns, Lieut. Gov. Charles M. Smith, Republican, led James P. Leamy, Democrat, by 26,779 to 15,129, in the governorship contest.

In the Senate race, however, Martin was given a margin in complete returns from Bennington and Washington Counties and was running ahead of Austin in incomplete returns from Franklin and Grand Isle Counties.

Virginia

Richmond, Nov. 6.—With only 616 precincts from a total of 1,694 yet to be heard from, Senator Harry F. Byrd was leading by a wide margin for reelection to his Senate seat. From unofficial returns he led his Republican opponent, Lawrence C. Page, by a vote of 82,774 to 23,795.

Complete city returns were:

Richmond — Byrd, 6,272; Page, 1,046.

Newport News—Byrd, 1,188; Page, 121; Ansell 59.

Bland, Montague, Woodrum, Robertson and Darden were leading in the House race.

Parents to Act As "Pupils" in School Meeting

Rosichan to Tell of D. C. Transient Relief at Board Meeting.

Parents of Alexandria High School students have been invited to attend a program which has been prepared for their entertainment Monday night by Principal Henry T. Moncure. The teachers will attend their respective classes and give a discussion of the various subjects they teach, with parents acting as pupils. The class instruction periods, however, will be limited to 15 minutes instead of the usual 55 minutes.

Arthur Rosichan, who is in charge of the transient bureau of the Department of Public Welfare in Washington, will deliver an address at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon to the advisory board of the Alexandria Public Welfare Department, in the quarters of the bureau on the Cameron street side of the city hall. He will tell of the work being done for transients, and efforts being made along rehabilitation lines, and also what is being done for those sent to his Washington office from Alexandria.

Announcement was made by A. W. Boehringer, in charge of the Alexandria bureau, that at this meeting there will be exhibits of the work being done by the bureau's sewing circle.

Members of the advisory board include Councilman A. Slater Lamond, chairman; Dr. Martin D. Delaney, Miss Mary Lindsey, Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, Robert M. Reese, Mrs. Naomi Craver and Mrs. Taylor Burke.

Benjamin F. Swann yesterday was appointed a member of the Alexandria police force by Capt. John S. Arnold. Swann has been employed by the city for the last two years, looking after the painting of street traffic lines.

Returns from the card party held in Armory Hall for the benefit of the charity shoe fund show that the net profit was $275.81. The party was promoted by the Parent-Teacher Association and the funds will be used to purchase shoes for underprivileged children. Policeman George F. Walker is being given credit by the P.-T. A. for his active interest in making the party a success.

The funeral of Thomas Louis Risheill, who died Sunday in a Baltimore hospital, was held yesterday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Richard B. English, 130 Summers drive, Alexandria, conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial was in Union Cemetery. Pallbearers were Col. Alexander Murray, Elmer Alexander, Walter Jett, John Gilliam, F. Clinton Knight and J. Roland Goode.

Fairfax Votes Decisively for Two Democrats

All Other Candidates Trail Far Behind Byrd and Smith.

Fairfax County voted an overwhelming Democratic victory in yesterday's election, with Senator Harry F. Byrd and Representative Howard W. Smith piling up huge majorities.

Senator Byrd's vote, with all precinct heard from, was 1,617 as against 339 for his Republican rival, Lawrence W. Page.

In the House race, in the Eighth Congressional District, Representative Smith polled 1,572 votes as against 411 for John Locke Green, the Republican candidate.

Other candidates lagged badly. Herman Ansell, the Socialist candidate for the Senate, polled but 10 votes. Alexander Wright, the Communist, got 10; the two independent candidates, J. L. Litz and John G. Bowman polled 1 and 16 votes respectively. Prohibition Candidate Newman H. Raymond got a total of 5 votes.

F. A. Shelton, Socialist candidate for the House seat, polled 28 votes.

Washington Attorney Wins; W. H. Harland Loses Council Race.

Michael J. Lane, Washington attorney, was swept back into the mayor's office yesterday in the voting at North Beach, popular summer resort for Washingtonians. He soon starts his third term.

Mr. Lane, Democrat, polled 340 votes to 46 cast for Louis A. Weed, Republican, the latter running on an "economy and low tax" platform.

William H. Harland, who used to be director of vehicles and traffic in Washington, ran a poor fourth in the councilmanic race in the First Ward. Robert S. Mead and John F. Hickey polled 111 and 84 votes, respectively, to defeat John Hudson, 75, and Mr. Harland, who received 49 votes.

Mrs. Z. Elizabeth Fitzgerald was reelected to the office of town treasurer in an unopposed election. Henry E. Glotzback and Oscar Marshall were reelected councilmen from the Second Ward, and Ralph Fisher and Ralph Davis reelected in the Third Ward. Twenty-seven bus loads of voters were transported from Washington to North Beach and back again.

Only Another Day For One to Whom Nation Owes Much

A certain American, whose name is invoked more than any other by aspiring office seekers, sat by listlessly yesterday while the Nation he helped found chose its Senators, coroners and dog catchers.

Stolid and unmoved, he sat in classic majesty in a space provided for him in the Smithsonian Institution. Honored and revered in life and by posterity, he reposed unnoticed in an obscure niche looking out on a row of old time printing presses.

It is the famous Greenough statue we're talking about, the one which shows George Washington clad as a Roman senator. Ridiculed and made the butt of many jokes, for 93 years it has been shunted about in the Capital until now it rests secure, if inconspicuous, in an old red brick building on the Mall.

The first President, as depicted by Horatius Greenough, is seated in an ornate chair. The figure is wearing a toga, carved like an apron, and is bare from the waist up.

In his extended hand is a sword and the right is held aloft, its index finger pointing significantly. Washington's face, wrought into a stern expression, is about 18 feet from the base of the pedestal.

"Simulacrum Istud—Ad Magnum Libertatis Exemplum—Nec Sine Ipsa Duraturum—Horatius Greenough—Faciebat."

Sherwood Bros. Keep Agency

Sale of Richfield Company to Have No Effect on Gas Distribution.

Distribution of Richfield Oil Co. products by Sherwood Bros., Washington and Baltimore, gasoline and oil dealers, will continue despite the purchase of Richfield by Harry Sinclair, it was announced yesterday by John W. Sherwood, of Baltimore, president of the distributing concern.

The name Richfield will continue to be used in merchandising its oil and gasoline products and there will be no change in the company's personnel, Mr. Sherwood said.

Guy Livingston is in charge of the Washington business.

With announcement of the Sinclair purchase last week, it was felt that the Washington company would be used as an additional outlet for his products.

Wynekoop Insurance Litigation sI Settled

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan today dismissed a suit brought by the New York Life Insurance Co. seeking to cancel the $10,000 policy which Dr. Alice Wynekoop had taken out on the life of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, for whose murder she now is serving a prison term.

The suit was dismissed upon stipulation of attorneys for both sides who said a settlement had been made out of court.

Cotton Production Drop Is Forecast

A reduction of almost 3,000,000 bales in the total supply of all cotton for the 1934-35 season, despite a sharp increase in the foreign supply, was predicted yesterday by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the Associated Press reported.

The bureau, placing the probable total supply at 39,200,000 bales, against slightly more than 42,100,000 in the previous season and a ten-year average of around 35,700,000, noted a decline of about 4,500,000 bales in the American supply, but figured the foreign supply at about 1,600,000 bales larger than for cotton for the 1934-35 season, despite amount being accounted for in the carryover.

The new foreign crop was estimated at 13,600,000 bales, 600,000 more than the record yield of 1933-34. The heaviest prospective increases were noted in China, India and North Brazil, with decreases in Russia and Egypt.

Heirs Seek Pay After Ouster Of Humphrey

U. S. Court of Claims Will Decide Case of Late Trade Commissioner.

(Associated Press.)

An old political dispute cropped up again yesterday when it was learned that the right of President Roosevelt to remove William E. Humphrey as Federal trade commissioner will be decided by the United States Court of Claims. Humphrey was appointed by President Hoover to serve on the commission until 1938. In October, 1933, President Roosevelt removed him from office.

The ousted trade commissioner, declining to agree to his removal, filed a claim for salary. After he died last February, his estate pressed the suit. Final arguments were completed Monday on whether the estate should get $3,000 as pay for services from October, 1933, to February, 1934.

Roosevelt Explanation.

When President Roosevelt asked for Humphrey's resignation, he said, "I do this because I feel that the aims and purposes of the Administration with respect to the work of the commission can be carried out most effectively with personnel of my own selection."

The Chief Executive proceeded to nominate George C. Matthews, of Wisconsin, as a Republican commission member for Humphrey's place. After considerable discussion of the case, the Senate confirmed Matthews' appointment. Meanwhile, Humphrey wrote the President:

"I refuse to recognize such an order (the removal order) as valid, or as being within the President's rightful powers. I am convinced that the order is without warrant of law and is ineffectual."

On the day he wrote that, however, Humphrey was notified that the commission itself had recognized the Presidential order and decided that his office was vacant.

Humphrey's Contention.

One of Humphrey's contentions was that an executive officer whose appointment was confirmed by the Senate could not be ousted save for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. President Roosevelt gave none of those as his reasons for removing the commissioner.

But in his final argument Monday, George C. Sweeney, Assistant Attorney General, told the Court of Claims that the President had authority to remove Humphrey for any reason which he, acting with a due sense of his official responsibility, thought sufficient.

During the height of the controversy between the President and Humphrey, claims were made that Mr. Roosevelt was about to turn the Trade Commission into a political organization. Republicans even indicated they would make the ouster a political issue, but decided to hold off until a final court decision was returned.

There were intimations that the case would be carried to the Supreme Court, whatever the Court of Claims ruling.

Troops Watch Voting Booths In New Mexico

G. O. P. Chairman Alleges Democrats Seek to Win by Bayonets.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Nov. 6 (AP).—As State troops watched the heavy balloting in several New Mexico cities today, P. L. Rapkoch, Republican State chairman, declared "the Democrats have abandoned hope of winning this election by ballots and have resorted to an attempt to win it by bayonets."

"Unwarranted excitement" in sections where the fight of Democrats to unseat Senator Bronson Cutting, independent Republican, has been most bitter, was suggested by John E. Miles, Democratic State chairman, as the reason for the presence of the National Guardsmen.

Gov. A. W. Hockenhull said he had not ordered the Guard mobilized, but had told Brig. Gen. Osborne C. Wood, adjutant general, to take observers to Los Vegas if Wood thought it necessary.

Detachments of the National Guard, armed and in uniform, were on duty in Las Vegas, in Los Lunas, in Valencia County, in Santa Fe, and another group was sent to El Rito in Rio Arriba County.

The Senatorial contest in which Representative Dennis Chavez, supported by National Democratic headquarters, sought to unseat Cutting held the center of interest over the State, although another Senator was elected for the short term expiring January 3, 1937, and a Representative, a Governor, and other State officials were named.

Funds and speakers were sent into New Mexico by the Democratic national committee in behalf of Chavez.

'Pagan' Textbook's Suppression Urged

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Nov. 6 (AP). Church organizations continued to protest today against a school textbook described as "an unfair and insidious attempt to foster a pagan philosophy upon our children."

A petition signed by 1,200 Presbyterians of Sydney called upon Premier Angus L. MacDonald to withdraw from Nova Scotia schools the book, "The Story of Civilization."

"This textbook," the petition said, "affirms the hypothesis of man's brute origin and indirectly repudiates Christianity, the faith and religion of the people of Nova Scotia."

Reduced Tobacco Crop Is Predicted for 1935

The crop forecast for 1935, issued yesterday by the Agricultural Department, predicted reduced stocks of tobacco and improvement in the supply situation next year, but warned that continued Government control of acreage was necessary to continue progress in reducing surpluses and increasing prices to growers, according to the Associated Press.

In spite of the improvement that has occurred and increased domestic consumption of several tobacco products during the last year, the department said, supplies of several types of tobacco remained large when compared with the rate of consumption, particularly in the case of burley.

Hull to Place Curb on Suits Involving U. S.

Americans Who Assist Foreign Claims Face New Regulations.

(Associated Press.)

Americans who aid foreign governments in prosecuting claims against the United States must tell the State Department the circumstances of their employment.

An order issued yesterday by regulations to determine whether citizens and former Government employes shall be permitted to appear against this Government.

The order specifies that all persons counselling, advising or assisting a foreign government shall be required to make full disclosure of the circumstances of their employment, whether solicited, the nature and amount of compensation, and whether this be on a contingent basis.

Former employes of the American Government must show full details of their previous service and whether the foreign contact was established while in the Government service.

Secretary Hull specified that each case be brought to his personal attention with all the facts in order that he could determine the applicants' eligibility.

Present laws provide heavy penalties for Americans makin unauthorized approach to a foreign government with the intent of influencing that government in relation to disputes or controversies with the United States. Similar regulations also apply to Government or former Government employes doing such work.

Court Allows Sale Of Costello Home

Dissolves Injunction on Foreclosure Action.

An injunction prohibiting the foreclosure sale of the home of Mrs. Agnes L. Costello, wife of John F. Costello, Democratic national committeeman for the District, was dissolved yesterday by Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in the District Supreme Court.

Mrs. Costello had been granted the injunction to give her time to effect a settlement with Velma and Tina M. Skeer, who hold a $14,000 note secured by a trust on the property at 3149 Newark street northwest.

A petition in bankruptcy was recently filed by Mrs. Costello and at that time she obtained the injunction. The Misses Skeer sought a dissolution of the order so that foreclosure proceedings could be instituted. They alleged taxes running back to 1927 had not been paid nor had some of the interest payments been made. Attorney Arthur P. Drury represented the trust holders.

Ex-Envoy Cleared In Bank Stock Suit

Judge Dismisses Liability Claim Against Dr. Floria.

Judge Nathan Cayton, in the Municipal Court yesterday, directed a verdict holding Dr. Salvatore Floria, 943 Massachusetts avenue northwest, formerly a member of the Italian diplomatic corps, not liable for an assessment of $1,000 levied upon him by John T. Dinger, receiver of the International Exchange Bank.

Dr. Floria held 100 shares of stock in the bank. He disposed of these in 1931, although he remained a director until January, 1932. The bank was closed in July, 1932.

Dr. Floria, through Attorney Lewis Shapiro, claimed exemption from the assessment because of the sale of the stock many months before the collapse of the bank. Judge Cayton held his liability had ceased and dismissed the case. According to Shapiro, some 40 other suits, aggregating $100,000, are subject to the same rule of law.

A record Washington vote roundup of 22,000 absentee ballots was claimed for the District division of the Young Democrats yesterday by the chairman of its general campaign committee, Ralph Lawrence.

In the Willard Hotel the organization maintained headquarters at which voters were provided with free notary service and free postage, and from which 200 workers representing 48 State units coralled the vote for the New Deal.

Contact was made by phone, letter and personal canvass, and yesterday the organization operated a fleet of 75 autos carrying voters to nearby Maryland and Virginia polls.

Appreciation for the Young Democrats' efforts was expressed by Postmaster General Farley, national committee chairman, and his lieutenant, Emil Hurja.

Garners Cast Votes And Leave for Movie

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—Vice President John N. Garner was among the first to vote here today on Democratic office seekers and eight constitutional amendments designed to improve city, county and State affairs. He had no comment to make on the general election elsewhere in the country.

Virginia Tobacco Sales.

South Boston, Va., Nov. 6 (AP). Market officials estimated the quantity of tobacco sold during yesterday at 400,000 pounds and placed the approximate average price at $30 per hundred.

Labor Violations Charged to Mills

Violation of section 7 (a) of the recovery act by failure to bargain collectively with its employes was charged against the Atlanta Hosiery Mills in a decision yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The firm was given seven days to agree to enter into negotiations "in good faith" with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers. Otherwise, the board ruled, the case will be referred to NRA compliance officers and other Government officials "for appropriate action."

"The company," the board held, "seems unwilling to bind itself in a collective agreement, whether oral or written, for any period of time with a union designated by a majority of the employes as representative of all. * * * * It offers instead a process of adjustment of particular differences as they arise, which we have repeatedly ruled is not collective bargaining.

Code Ban Placed On Candy Chances

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—The wholesale confectioners' code has placed a ban on offering children chances for free candy on one reason among others that the practice tends to develop a gambling instinct.

Alex J. Brown, jr., executive secretary for the Code Authority, said yesterday that the practice which "leads children to expect something for nothing" is a direct violation of the fair trade provision of the code and "violators will be subject to prosecution."

He partially condemned the practice of selling one cent candy bars, some of which contain slips entitling the purchaser to an extra bar free.

HOUSEWIFE. Mrs. C. Daly says: "I keep house—like millions of other women. And we all know how much energy a woman has to put into that job! My recipe for renewing energy is to smoke a Camel. Camels do pick up my energy when I'm tired, and they have such a mild flavor."

STEEPLECHASE RIDER. Crawford Burton: "Whether I'm tired from riding a hard race, or from a crowded business day, I feel refreshed and restored just as soon as I get a chance to smoke a Camel."

Victory Gained By Democrats In Southwest

Kansas Going Republican; Truman, in Missouri, Leads Patterson.

Kansas City, Nov. 6 (AP).—Southwestern States snapped into old-time regularity in today's election on the face of early returns.

The Democratic organization, strong in Kansas City, was having its way in Missouri and appeared to be electing to the Senate Judge Harry S. Truman, New Dealer, instead of Senator Roscoe C. Patterson, Administration critic. One Republican candidate for Congress, Dewey Short, had a chance to win the Seventh District.

Kansas Going Republican.

Historically Republican Kansas, which won a Republican governor on a three-man squeeze play two years ago and seemed close to losing him in the face of New Deal enthusiasm this year, was giving Alf M. Landon a strong lead for reelection, seemed likely to send six Republicans to its seven seats in Congress instead of four, and was voting against repeal of its prohibition amendment.

In Oklahoma, it was apparent that at least seven and probably all of the nine seats in Congress would remain in the hands of Democrats. Democratic fears that W. B. Pine might win the State's first Republican Governorship, on his campaign of criticism of relief expenditures, were being dispelled. Although Pine had won much support normally belonging to Representative E. W. Marland, oil man and his Democratic opponent, tradition was asserting itself and Marland had more than a comfortable lead.

Texas Democratic.

Texas was not excited about the general election and, as usual, expected it to be a confirmation of Democratic nominations. It was. Tom Connally, junior United States Senator, was reelected along with all other Democratic candidates for State and national offices. James V. Allred, 35-year-old attorney general, headed the State ticket as Democratic candidate for Governor.

All was not peaceful in the Southwest, however. At Holland, Mo., gunmen seeking to prevent voting of Negroes, killed one white man, woulded two others, beat several Negroes and disappeared before State troopers arrived to restore order. There were polling place disturbances in St. Louis, also, and James H. Miller, justice of the peace, was indicted for alleged interference with challengers.

Roll Call Drive To Be Started

Frederick Dinner Meeting Will Plan Red Cross Campaign.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.). About 100 persons will attend a Red Cross meeting and dinner at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, Thursday, at which plans will be made for the annual membership drive to begin next week.

J. Harrison Heckman, of Washington, D. C., will make an address and bring greetings from Judge John Barton Payne, National Red Cross chairman, who is attending the League of Red Cross Societies in Japan.

Benjamin B. Rosenstock, of the Frederick bar, will preside and other speakers will be Edward S. Delaplaine and Mrs. Edgar S. McBride, of Frederick; Mrs. Endrew A. Annan, Emmitsburg, Mayor Lloyd C. Culler and Mrs. Margaret Lewis, Maryland State Red Cross field representative.

The committee in charge of the event is Mrs. McBride, chairman; Mrs. Benjamin B. Rosenstock, Mrs. Ross Hunt, Mrs. James H. Harris, Mrs. Ernest Webb, Miss Thelma Culler, of Frederick; Mrs. Annan, Emmitsburg; Mrs. A. W. Nicodemus, Buckeystown, and Mrs. William C. Oberlander, Braddock Heights. Miss Ruth Perry is membership chairman for Hood College.

Gen. Read Dies At Hospital Here

Veteran Soldier Received Many Decorations.

Maj. Gen. George Windle Read, U. S. A., retired, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital at the age of 74.

A native of Iowa, he entered the Military Academy in 1879. He served during the Philippine Insurrection in 1900, and during the World War commanded the Second Army Corps of the A. E. F. Later he was in charge of the embarkation center at Le Mans.

The veteran soldier held the D. S. C., Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre and other decorations. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Burton Y. Read, 2101 Connecticut avenue, and two sons, Maj. Burton Y. Read, of Boston, and Frist Lieut. George W. Read, jr., of Governors Island, N. Y.

Throne in Austria Opposed by Czechs

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 6 (AP). Edouard Benes, foreign minister, today said any attempt to restore the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria would be "answered in a decisive manner" by Czechoslovakia and the little entente.

Benes, in a speech to the Chamber of Deputies on foreign policy, expressed the hope the extraordinary session of the League of Nations in November would result in "a sensible solution" of the Saar problem.

He said this would ease Franco-German relations after the Saar plebiscite. He added that he regarded Anglo-French cooperation the best guarantee of peace in Europe.

Democrats in Montgomery Pile Up a Substantial Lead

Approximately 90 per cent of the county's 27,000 registered voters exercised their right of franchise. Leaders of the Democratic, Republican and Fusion organizations said they expected the vote to set a county record for an off-year election and predicted that between 24,000 and 25,000 persons will have voted.

Both Sides See Victory.

The Democrats claim the county for Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and the Republicans made similar claims for their gubernatorial candidate, Harry W. Nice, Baltimore attorney.

Some idea of the feeling worked up over the strictly county fight between the regular Democratic organization and the Fusion group was gained from the voting at two Bethesda precincts. At 6:30 o'clock lines were formed before both polling places and up to that time about 1,500 out of 1,800 registered voters had cast their ballots.

Takoma Park Vote Heavy.

At the fire house in Takoma Park more than 600 had voted out of the town's registration of 850. Many Seventh Day Adventist leaders are out of the city attending a conference and this is expected to cut down the total Takoma Park vote.

Silver Spring is expecting to make an all-time record in getting out 100 per cent of the registered voters. At 6:30 o'clock 727 out of a total of 820 voters had visited the polls.

All banks, schools, public offices and liquor dispensaries, including places selling beer, were closed yesterday.

No disorder was reported at any of the polling places; a few casual "drunks" added humor and not disorder to the election day.

Crowd Rushes Voting Place.

So great was the interest in the election count in Colesville at the voting places last night that police were called to eject a crowd of onlookers who had forced their way into the W. C. T. U. Hall, where the count was under way.

Onlookers brushed aside the doorkeeper in their rush to the hall, however, no arrests were made.

Carson Will Shun Conservation Post

Virginian Not to Accept Chair of New Group.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—William E. Carson, chairman of the State commission on conservation and development, tonight definitely removed himself from further consideration in connection with the chairmanship of the commission after its reorganization January 1.

Mr. Carson, in a statement issued from his office in Riverton, said:

"I can not remain as chairman of the State commission on conservation and development after the body is reorganized on January 1, in accordance with an act passed at the last session of the Legislature."

Pointing out that he had completed much of the work he had set as a goal, Mr. Carson added that he was ready "at the proper time to turn the chairmanship of the commission over to my successor."

700 Students Rebel at Rigid Social Rules

Fredericksburg Teachers' College Women Call Strike Meeting.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). Incensed over tightening of social restrictions they already had declared too rigid, 700 women students of the State Teachers' College here were threatening to strike tonight.

A mass meeting in Monroe Hall, student auditorium, called for explanations from Dr. Morgan L. Combs, college president, of new regulations he had put into effect today. Dr. Combs did not appear at the meeting.

Dr. Combs later tonight denied the imminence of a strike, and said the agitation was the work of four or five students and did not represent the attitude of the general student body. He said the regulations were passed by the student council in joint session with faculty members.

The chief features objected to were limiting the number of visits to Fredericksburg to three a week and the designation of restricted areas of the city for town visiting. Rules regarding traveling in automobiles also were made more rigid.

Restriction of city areas for town visiting was ordered to prevent students from congregating in certain confectionery shops, some students said.

Virginia Sustains Tax On Coal Stock

(Associated Press.)

The Virginia ad valorem tax imposed on the capital of the Imperial Coal Sales Co., Inc., organized under its laws and doing business in the State, was sustained this week by the Supreme Court.

The Imperial Coal Sales Co., Inc., of Lynchburg, challenged the validity of the tax. It contended its business was strictly interstate, consisting of selling coal mined in West Virginia, none of which came into Virginia.

It said taxing its intangible property, represented by bills and accounts payable, imposed an unlawful burden on interstate commerce. It added that it paid the State tax on its cash in bank. The State court trying the case sustained the position taken by the corporation, holding that its intangible assets were exempt from the ad valorem tax. Its decision was approved by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—At the annual meeting of the Warrenton Country Club the officers reelected for another year were: President, William E. Doeller; vice presidents, E. E. Jenkins and Arthur M. R. Charrington; secretary, D. Turner Day, and treasurer, Frederick W. Haserick. The board of directors includes John R. Buchanan, B. D. Spilman, C. W. Carter, F. A. Georger, H. N. Spilman and W. R. Rowland.

Weirton Labor Testifies for Company Plan

Charges 'Outside' Groups Interfered; Verbal Duel Features Suit.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 6 (AP).—A Federal lawyer and an expert on industrial relations dueled today in the Government's injunction suit over the controversial section 7-A of the National Recovery Act.

They agreed on one point: That whatever may be the merits or faults of a "company union," or a labor union, it is a question of what kind of organization the workers want; that the workers must have absolutely free action in selecting their collective-bargaining agency.

Frank K. Nebeker, chief counsel for the Government in its suit against the Weirton Steel Co., charged with violation of section 7-A because of its employe representation plan, asked George T. Fonda, in charge of the industrial relation department of the company, for his views of this statement:

"There is not any doubt but what employes have a right to engage in collective bargaining by becoming members of labor unions and making those labor unions their representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining."

"That has been recognized," Fonda replied. "And there has been no question about that."

The day's hearing closed with a group of employes testifying they were pleased with the company union plan, that they thought it was an adequate manner of collective bargaining and that there had been attempts by "outside" union men to restrain them from voting at the employes' representation elections last December.

$5,000 Offered for Killer.

Northfield, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP).—District Attorney Joseph T. Bartlett today announced a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of the Rev. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mount Hermon School. He was shot in his home on the campus September 14.

Mary Nolan Freed In Theft Charge

Complaint Withdrawn in Court Hearing.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Mary Nolan, Follies beauty and film actress, was discharged in West Side court today on the strength of a telegram to the effect that she was no longer wanted as a fugitive from Hazleton, Pa. The hearing had already started when the telegram, from James A. Carr, of the Pennsylvania State police at Hazleton, reached the court.

Miss Nolan was arrested last night for questioning about the disappearance of $2,000 in cash belonging to Louis Keffman, Newark, N. J. Keffman reported his loss after he had spent Sunday night in the company of Miss Nolan at the night club near Hazleton where the latter was employed.

The telegram from Carr read: "Release Mary Nolan. Complaint withdrawn."

Texas House Puts Ban On Bookmaking Places

Austin, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—Representative Henry C. Kyle, of San Marcos, who yesterday purchased a $2 bookmakers' ticket on a 12-to-1 shot at Arlington Downs to prove that bookmaking was practiced in Texas' capital and won $24.90, scored another victory today.

The House of the Texas Legislature voted 95 to 12 in favor of Kyle's resolution demanding that drastic action be taken by law enforcement agencies to close "bookie" establishments and speakeasies.

Hi-Hat Gathers Stellar Talent From Cinema

Bolfil and His Filipinos Entertain; New Trio at Shoreham.

By Kay Ware.

Hi-Hat gathers its newest entertainers from the cinema field. Manuel Bofil and his Filipinos are there to furnish the latest in song and music. These four entertainers were with the four Marx brothers in "Animal Crackers," with Dave Appleton and his stage revue. Two featured stars are Glicerio Serna, who sings in seven languages, and Tony Avila, known as the Filipino Cab Calloway.

These musicians have something that gets across, Hi-Hat has a cocktail list that will cheer your soul.

A girl and two dancing escorts make up a new trio at the Shoreham. They go by the name of Kehr-Rousseaux-Kehr, have been recently billed at New York's St. Regis and Chicago's Drake, and have starred in the Broadway revue, "Fine and Dandy."

Glimpses at the Lounge Cafe—Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., whose latest book, "A Woman in Washington," refers to a newspaperman's engagement with a lady at the Shoreham's cocktail room. Walter Winchell has been sipping and snooping there, too.

Madrillon's floor show is a musical League of Nations. They have Viennese waltzes, Parisian tangoes, a Danish dancer, an English ditto, Spanish boleros, a Broadway soft shoe stepper and three minstrels from Carolina.

Heather and Blackstone are responsible for the waltzes, tangoes and bolero. Anita Wyland, featured in "Rio Rita," offers the soft shoe and a modernistic interpretation of "Song of the Bayou."

The Carolina Tarheels, alias the Three Ginger Snaps, alias the Three Southern Accents, sing and make music on banjos, guitars, or whatever falls under their fingers.

These youngsters, all under 21, have been working together only a short time and have ambitions toward Broadway and movie shorts. Aside from their musical abilities, all three have wide and infectious smiles.

Leon Brusiloff adds a new member to the orchestra, Neal de Lucca. Concert music at luncheon is by the Arsenio Ralon group.

Heigh-Ho drew Jimmy Savo and Jack Denny up there the other night. Perhaps this was one reason why.

Superseding the popular dance team of Marjorie Enters and Phillipe Borgia, who left the club last Saturday, Maestro Pete Macias is now presenting a new and rather novel type of entertainment.

One of the features is Maxine, soft-singing radio star, who just completed a 20-week contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System chain. She is heard in songs of the blues type and has a fine arrangement of "Supper Time," Ethel Waters' hit from "As Thousands Cheer."

Also on the bill is the well-known eccentric dancer, Archie Hawk, who first came into prominence through his dancing in "Going Native." Archie is a young fellow whose feet hold promise.

A "preview of the debutantes" might be the name given to the cocktail and supper periods in the Mayflower's lounge every day. For there are always some of those girls who will make their debut this season in the crowds dancing to Sidney's music.

Just the other day Miss Frida Frazer, Miss Janet Harrison and Miss Dorothy Tirrell were in one party. At a nearby table were Miss Barbara Baker, Miss Margaret MacMullen and Miss Ethel Mae Taylor.

Along with these members of the younger set there are many other well-known folk, including a number of the Diplomatic Corps, listening to the foreign vocals by Sid Cowen.

Sidney, Washington musical maestro, will bring a new type of music to the Capital Thursday when the Carlton will have his new Continental Ensemble.

Sidney is striving to make his unit of the sort you find in the smart spots of Europe. They will play for luncheon, cocktail session and dinner, in the dining room and cocktail lounge.

Emile Smith has been given the post of leader of the orchestra. Durward Bowersox, Richard Lorleberg and Fritz Balzer are other members.

A diversified program of selections will be in the library of the organization, ranging from popular tunes to classical numbers.

When Maryland Club Garden's ballroom has finished silvering its walls, plushing its handrails, and decorating its ceiling, it will be something the like of which you've never seen before. Large glass stars from Italy diffuse the light. On one wall directly opposite the band stand Arabs will move; by means of intricate mechanism, palms will wave in relief against a natural looking desert.

The tall posts that hold up the ceiling will be palm trunks; large leaves will sprout above your head. Real jewels glitter in the painted sky; the floor for dancing is as smooth as glass.

But the size of the new addition is the most impressive thing about it. The floor is framed with tiers of tables; the whole room looks blocks long and wide.

When the crystal bar is installed, you'll be able to sip and admire Bohemian blown-glass grapes at the same time.

They're asking for encores from the Lotus' floor show. Baker and Owen offer rhythmic dances; Kramer, Newton and Miss Pauline whisk their feet through eccentric taps and adagios; David London sings and acts as master of ceremonies; Miss Irene Lee manages to be graceful in an eccentric dance.

The Capitolians, led by Bill Strickland and supplemented by Judy Ellington, put on another skit.

Show goes on three times a day, at 1 for luncheon, 7 with the dinner and 11 for supper dancers.

With Strings, a Song and a Smile—

Manuel Bofil and his Filipinos, late of "Animal Crackers," supplement the cocktail list at the Hi-Hat. They sing and play whatever selection pleases the patron's fancy.

La Paree changes its bill this week and manages to get a lot of names and features into the program. La Costa, Carlita and Marie go Cuban with "Cuban Nights;" Madeline Starrett whirls in her dancing, Ruth Raymond sings and dances, Beth Renouf has a new way with modernism, Vessie Lee, Helen Mane and Dee Lores, dancers; Ginger Dewlow, mistress of ceremonies; Emory Daugherty, his orchestra and his proteges, Marie Fowler and Ray Beck, complete the bill.

Here's news for patrons of the old Canton Pagoda Restaurant. Today it opens under its original name, Canton, and is located on the second and third floors of 1349 E street. The Canton is the oldest Chinese-American restaurant in town—it is 51 years and 1 month old.

Second floor front is bright and roomy, walls done in greeny blue. The back room is partitioned into little booths, some to accommodate four, others, two. Upstairs is a smaller dining room for small parties or banquets.

The new Canton will open under the same management, with the same cooks and waiters.

Club Michel continues to present Crawford and Caskey, dance team, but adds some new names and faces. Murial Parker, a tiny singer, and Peggy O'Brien are among them. Miss O'Brien is a model, both for New York's Fifth avenue shops and Greenwich Village artists.

Celebrities' impromptu performances add to the show. Recently Carl Addison, radio singer, performed, and Jack Denny was seen in a dark corner, watching the show.

For afternoon cocktails before Michel's dinner, stop in the Club Chanticleer and sip and listen to Don Gomez and his organ music.

Wherever she goes, Libby Rowland draws song lovers. Now she's drawing them to Casa Rita, over Child's. When the nights grow chilly, seek comfort at the desert's edge, listen to music and dance your cares away.

The old Taft residence, across the street from the Carlton Hotel, will open today under the name of the Berkshire Inn, a tea room. The tea room occupies what once was the reception room and library. The wood panelled walls are painted gray, curtains are in red calico and all furniture is antique pine.

Shelves, formerly bookcases, are filled with little antique knick-knacks. The linen is bright cheery yellow, and the china is cream with black and tan banding. Several lovely pieces of hand-wrought iron are for sale. They include tall candelabra, a glass top table, with a flower pot underneath, and several flower pot stands.

Luncheon served for 12 to 2; dinner from 5:30 to 8.

Saar Plebiscite Topic Of League Officials

Rome, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Saar Territory Commission of the League of Nations met here today under the presidency of Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italy's delegate to the League of Nations, with French and German experts in attendance.

It was understood the commissioners discussed the question of using French troops as police in case of trouble during or after the plebiscite in the territory in January, when the inhabitants will decide whether the region is to continue under the league, to revert to Germany or become part of France.

Lorton Rioter Seized In Virginia Holdup

One of the participants in the uprising at Lorton Reformatory several months ago was arrested yesterday in Newport News, Va., on charges of complicity in a holdup of the National Biscuit Co., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

He is James McCraw, 23, of Washington. After the Lorton uprising, he was transferred to the Atlanta Penitentiary, from which he was released a week ago.

Sweden Denies Selling War Planes to Germany

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 6 (AP) The Swedish Government formally denied today reports by French newspapers that military airplanes of this country were being sold to Germany.

A Foreign Office spokesman also scouted rumors that the Bofors Munitions plant in Sweden was selling military materials to Germany. He said a strict export licensing system which is now in force, would immediately reveal such shipments.

Rites for Archbishop Held in New Orleans

New Orleans, Nov. 6 (AP).—After a pontifical mass of requiem, the body of the Most Rev. John William Shaw, archbishop of New Orleans, was buried today beside his predecessors in a specially prepared crypt before the high altar in old St. Louis Cathedral here.

The cathedral was thronged for the impressive ceremonies attended by one archbishop and eight bishops of Louisiana and neighboring States. The Rt. Rev. John B. Morris, bishop of Little Rock, Ark., and senior suffragan bishop of the New Orleans archdiocese, celebrated the requiem.

Kyttle Must Explain Default of Alimony

Charging her husband with being in arrears $150 in his alimony payments, Mrs. Dorothy B. Kyttle yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to cite him in contempt of court for his failure to abide by a decree awarding her the money.

Through Attorney Jean M. Boardman, Mrs. Kyttle said her husband, Frederick J. Kyttle, had made no payments since she had been awarded a divorce last September. Chief Justice A. A. Wheat signed an order requiring the ex-husband to show his reason for not complying with the alimony decree.

Georgia Coleman "Doing Well."

Boston, Nov. 6 (AP).—Georgia Coleman, former Olympic women's diving champion, was reported "doing well" today at the New England Baptist Hospital here after a brain operation last night.

This month is known as November only because an old Roman emperor flatly declined the honor of having it renamed for him—otherwise today might quite possibly have been the seventh of Tiber, or some such name.

November, which derives its name from the Latin word meaning nine, was originally the ninth month of the Roman 10-month year. Eventually, however, January and February were added to make a 12-month year.

Renaming months for famous Romans was not a new practice. The month of Quintilis, meaning fifth month, became July in honor of Julius Caesar, and Sextilis, the following month, was renamed for Augustus Caesar. When the Senate offered to name November for Tiberius he declined, pointing out that if they were to continue the practice there would not be enough months to go around should Rome have 13 Caesars.

Pagosa Springs, Colo., seat of Archuleta County, derives its name from natural hot water springs located there. In the Ute language the name means "healing water." Whatever the curative powers of the water, it has another very important use—that of heating buildings. It is not even necessary to pump the hot water through the heating system, the artesian pressure is enough to force it from building to building.

Harps Gaining In Popularity, Musician Says

Even Invading Night Club, Declares Member of Sidney's Orchestra.

The harp, long associated with the celestial realm, is gaining in earthly popularity, at least as far as Alfred Manning, harpist with Sidney's Mayflower concert group, is concerned.

"People are becoming more interested in this instrument. It is leaving the concert stage, going into hotels and sometimes into night clubs," he said.

He looked around the lounge. "In a room of this sort, harp music is, perhaps, more effective than any other," he observed. "It doesn't interfere with important conversations. It fills in the gap when there's nothing to say.

"I believe the effect is soothing. The harp was originally associated with religion, and its tone is pure and beautiful.

Suited to Feminine Charms.

"Women enjoy it more than men, I have noticed. Perhaps it's because they're more sentimental, or, their more spiritual qualities give them their appreciation."

As far as players are concerned, Mr. Manning sees no reason why woman harpists should not be as good as men.

"The instrument, while it requires muscular skill, does not require strength, as a piano does," he said. "Besides it's a graceful instrument, better suited to feminine charms than—the bull fiddle, for instance.

"I like it better than other instruments—I play the piano and clarinet as well—because, in spite of its limitations, it produces beautiful music. That is, when played without the modern improvements."

These "improvements," he explained, are novel effects produced by other means than the usual plucking of the strings.

"For instance," he said, drawing his tuning key out of his pocket, "this key is used to tap the frame above the strings. It's just a noise. Or as the palm of the hand is pounded on the sounding board—a tom-tom effect. Some modern harpists draw their finger nails across the strings, producing a brittle, tinny sound, or let the pedals slip to make a sliding change of pitch in the string.

Jungles for Tom-Toms.

"I may be old fashioned, but if I want to hear tom-toms I can go to the African jungles. And tapping with the key doesn't produce music, I think it produces ugliness. And when a sound is ugly, it ceases to be music to me."

Will a harp ever have a permanent place in jazz bands? Mr. Manning is doubtful. Too soft in the first place, and too aesthetic in the second, he thinks. "But it may," he continued, "because jazz today is less violent than it was, and in a romantic ballad, the harp may be considered just the thing."

With that musical avenue shut off, it becomes hard for the harpist to find a job today. Aside from concert stage or symphony the only other alternatives are theater orchestras, hotels and cocktail lounge concert groups.

Pension Ruling To Be Appealed

U. S. Supreme Court to Be Asked to Review Railroad Decision.

Holding to its determination to have the United States Supreme Court pass upon the constitutionality of the Railroad Retirement Act, Hammond Chaffetz, special assistant to the Attorney General, announced yesterday that the Government would ask the court to review the finding of the District Supreme Court that the act was unconstitutional.

The act, described as a "social experiment" by the railroads, which estimated it would cost them at least $60,000,000 a year, provided for compulsory retirement provisions by all carriers coming within the scope of the Federal Government. It was ruled unconstitutional by Chief Justice Wheat on two grounds.

One of these was that the act included thousands of employes who were not properly classified as interstate employes, and the other was that many thousand employes who had been discharged for various reasons would be made eligible for pensions. The Chief Justice said that neither class of employes was properly subject to national legislation.

Because of the novelty of the legislation, it can be appealed to the United States Supreme Court directly. The case here was the first one to test the validity of the

The Federal Diary

(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

By Morgan Baker.

WHILE you scan the returns in other columns of The Post this morning, refer to the tabulation of candidates and their stand on Government personnel problems which we printed October 29 and urged you to clip for just such a time as this.

BAKER.

Probably never before in history have Federal workers taken such a keen interest in elections as this year. And probably never before has the fate of the Government employe been so vitally at stake as in this congressional election.

It is reassuring to the employes that all of the objectives for improving personnel status had been placed before each candidate long before the votes were cast yesterday. These objectives have been outlined repeatedly by the National Federation of Federal Employes and the American Federation of Government Employes. No longer, then, will a member of Congress have to come to Washington uninformed on the problems of the public servants. And, as the coming Congress familiarizes itself more with those problems, the employes can count on fair treatment.

Mrs. Sue Inge (P), chairman entertainment committee of Treasury Department Federal Employes Local Union, No. 262, has called her group to meet at 710 Fourteenth street northwest tonight to complete plans for entertainment following the business session of the local Monday night.

Treasury Chest Meeting.

A large meeting of Treasury Community Chest workers will be held in the Commerce Department auditorium at 5 p. m. today, L. W. Roberts, jr., assistant secretary to the Treasury, announces. Secretary Morgenthau will be the principal speaker.

A slight gain is noted in the civil service reemployment list this week with 36 names removed and 44 added, 12 of the latter being in the District.

MEMBERS of the Interior Bowling League and their invited guests will enjoy a buffet supper and entertainment tonight at the Pythian Temple, 1012 Ninth street northwest, is the announcement of C. H. Olive, league president, who is temporarily assigned to Argiculture.

In charge of the entertainment is Thomas Adams, National Parks, Buildings and Reservations; Leo Bitner, same office, and Norman Gray, (F), Office of Indian Affairs. Charles Murr, Auto Shop, is handling tickets; William F. Dawson, Land Office, and Henry D. Billings (C), Land Office, secretary-treasurer of the league, are in charge of the supper. Assistant Secretary of the Interior Walters will attend.

Plans for one of the biggest social affairs on Washington's autumn calendar, the annual Armistice Ball of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, are nearing completion, S. D. Harman, (P), Internal Revenue, chairman, announces. Bill Marshall, also of Internal Revenue, promises a gala program of entertainment. Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, heads the Box and Patronesses committee.

Sick Benefit Association.

The first regular meeting of the Government Employes Sick Benefit Association will be held in the Red Room of the Hamilton Hotel tomorrow night, according to Mrs. Maude M. Anderson, Internal Revenue, assocaition founder and president.

Membership applications are pouring in, Mrs. Anderson says. The association, which is under auspices of the American Federation of Government Employes, offers nursing, ambulance, hospital and other benefits. Dr. Emma Eichelberger (C), District Government, is chairman of the sick committee.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF your name is followed by F. P. or C., call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to (F) Loew's Fox (stage, Jack Denny and his orchestra and other acts; screen, Nancy Carroll in "Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round"); or to (P) Loew's Palace (Jeannette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier in "The Merry Widow"); or to (C) Loew's Columbia (Pat Patterson and Nils Asther in "Lovetime").

Diary office hours are daily, except Sunday, 12 noon to 1 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturdays, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology, National Museum, will deliver a lecture at 8:15 o'clock in the auditorium of the museum on "New Light on the Peopling and the Cultural Developments of the Far North."

Engineers' Council "Mixer."

Many Government employes will attend the annual "mixer meeting" of the Engineers' Council of the School of Engineering of George Washington University tomorrow night at the Interior Department auditorium, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Morris L. Cooke, National Resources Board, will speak on "Don't Start Licked."

Norman Bruce Ames, G. W. U., will preside. Refreshments will be served at the close of the session. Terry J. McAdams (C), Bureau of Contract Information, is president of the council. Other officers are: Paul L. Moats, (F), Carnegie Institution; Andrew F. Freeman, Federal Trade Commission, social chairman; J. Harold Link, Public Health Service, treasurer; Edward J. Thomas, State; Harry Connor, Naval Gun Factory.

Post Lecturer Tells History Of Mystic India

India, land of mystic religion and ancient temples, was visited in fancy last evening by nearly one thousand Washingtonians as Walter T. Biscoe, well-known traveler and lecturer, delivered the third of the 1934-35 series of Washington Post Travel Lectures at the Masonic Auditorium. The colored slides and Mr. Briscoe's interesting descriptions of India, Burma, and Ceylon made this one of the most popular lectures of the series.

In discussing India, Mr. Biscoe told much of the remarkable history of this ancient land. Many scenes of ancient temples, modern cities, and breath-taking mountains were shown. A picturized tiger hunt, revealing the method whereby these majestic beasts are hunted down and shot from backs of tamed elephants, was one of the highlights of the lecture.

In visiting Burma, Mr. Biscoe told of the temples to be found there, temples decorated with gold leaf with towers encrusted with precious jewels. Scenes along the Irawaddy River, lined with houseboats, were shown.

"Africa and Her People" will be the subject of the fourth Washington Post travel lecture, to be given at the Masonic auditorium, Thirteenth and New York avenue, Tuesday evening, November 13. The lecturer will be H. G. Moore, traveler, author and cruise director, who has spent much time in the dark continent, and who knows this rich territory thoroughly.

Tickets for this and future Post Travel Lectures may be obtained from the business office of The Washington Post, E street near Fourteenth, or at the auditorium box office on the evening of the lecture. Doors will be opened at 7 p. m., and the lecture begins promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Suicide's Rites Set for Today

F. S. Curtis Succumbed to Razor Wounds Called Self-Inflicted.

F. S. Curtis, chief clerk of the Navy Department, died yesterday at Casualty Hospital from razor wounds, self-inflicted last Thursday at his home, 100 Maryland avenue northeast. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide. He had been in ill health for more than a year, friends said.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at the parlors of S. H. Hines Co., 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. The body will be sent to Mount Vernon, Ohio, for burial. Honorary pallbearers will be the chief clerks of the Navy Department bureaus.

Active pallbearers will be R. H. Moses, J. E. Tibbitts, William T. Bergman, of the office of the Secretary of the Navy; Clyde Reed, of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, and William M. Smith, of the Bureau of Yards and Docks. All have been associates of Mr. Curtis for many years.

Mr. Curtis is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hannah Kinney Curtis, and a sister, Miss Jane Curtis, of 2127 California street northwest.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Curtis attended the funeral of her mother at Mount Vernon, Ohio.

First To Vote.

The first Tuesday after the first Monday in November brings New Ashford out of obscurity. Year after year this little town in the Berkshire hills has been the first in the United States to announce its election results. It has, we believe, held this curious distinction almost unchallenged, although another Massachusetts town, Mashpee by name, has upon occasion slipped under the wire first.

Hardly have the evening newspaper offices got under way for the day when the bell on the teletype rings, announcing an impending bulletin of more or less significance. Newswise veterans on election day know intuitively that it is New Ashford.

New Ashford takes its distinction lightly. It has only 38 registered voters and all of them, being good Yankees, arise with the chickens, anyway. One can not travel far in New Ashford, and so it is no great difficulty for the faithful 38 to get their day's work done. Election day is the only day that milking is postponed until after breakfast.

Americans have a passion for "firsts" of all kinds. New Ashford, always a real first, really hasn't this passion. It just happened. Voting, like any other chore, is best done if done quickly. And so New Ashford got up collectively, voted, and went home. After doing this for years it gained a reputation. Now it would probably be mortified if it came in second.

A few years ago one of its 38 voters was sick. So he voted from his hospital bed by absentee ballot the week previously. And was Mashpee sore!

Only A Start.

Many diverse interests are represented in the newly appointed Committee on Criminal Justice. It was the purpose of the organizing group to secure the services of several experienced lawyers who are not now actively handling criminal cases, of persons experienced in the drafting and promotion of legislation, of a political scientist and of others closely identified with the interests of Washington as a community. From the viewpoint of these objectives the committee appears to be very well chosen.

The very fact that the committee represents various groups, however, tends to make its task more difficult. It must investigate existing conditions, on which diverse conclusions may be anticipated. It must set up an objective. Shall its endeavors be directed toward new legislation, toward more effective enforcement of existing law, or toward a combination of the two?

Whatever course is decided upon, continuous effort must be exercised to obtain the united support of the community. To tie all these threads into a lash strong enough to drive organized crime out of Washington is a task that will require skillful leadership as well as untiring work.

The committee's first need is an aggressive and tactful chairman. It will be his function to coordinate the committee's efforts and to prevent it from tapering off into the state of lethargy to which many groups of this sort succumb. Even the most capable chairman, however, may not be able to direct the committee's efforts into channels where it can serve most effectively. To make certain that this community effort will strike at the most vulnerable aspects of our law enforcement system an expert investigator is needed. Such an appointment would add immeasurably to the prestige of the entire undertaking.

The tendency of voluntary groups to spend their energy in a transient flare of indignation is a formidable challenge to this anticrime committee. President F. Regis Noel, of the District Bar Association, has properly reiterated the necessity for careful study and persistent effort. But the committee itself will decide whether its work will amount to more than a flash in the pan.

Congressional Libel.

Many a word has been spoken behind the cloak of Senatorial immunity which, if said elsewhere, would clearly be libel. But because those wise men who wrote the Constitution inserted therein a clause forbidding the arrest of Congressmen, save for treason, felony and breach of the peace, during a Congressional session or during their journeys to and from one, the speeches of many have transgressed the laws of dignity and decency. Congressmen thus have been, in the felicitous phrase of the New York Times, "the chartered libertines of libel."

Reviewing the immunity plea of the senior Senator from Louisiana, the Supreme Court has unanimously declared that there is a definite limitation to the meaning of this constitutional provision. Mr. Long, who allegedly had libeled former Judge Advocate General Samuel T. Ansell, attempted to evade responsibility for his statements, which he not only spoke but had printed in the Record and circulated through the mails. He rushed to the Constitution, declaring that immunity from arrest meant also immunity from service of a process in a civil suit.

The Supreme Court has now ruled once and for all, in a decision written by that wise jurist, Mr. Justice Brandeis, that such congressional immunity does not exist. Hitherto, neither the House nor the Senate had ever attempted to claim that it did. But Mr. Long, to say the least, is not always like his fellow men. This decision may afford some explanation of his desire to take the State of Louisiana out of the Union. But the secession movement will scarcely take precedence over the Ansell suit.

The Elections.

The first New Deal election has passed into history and the Administration may well register gratification over the result. It has brought few variations from the nonpartisan advance predictions, all of which conceded unchallenged control of both houses to the Democrats.

That this should be the case is, from the national viewpoint, desirable. In a period of emergency a strong government is essential. An executive arm rendered helpless by legislative hostility during the next two years might well prove ruinous to any coordinated program of recovery. This weakness in the system of checks and balances has made itself felt on several occasions in our history. But at the present time the deficiencies would be particularly pronounced.

It is not this defect, but its opposite, from which the Roosevelt Administration has heretofore suffered. In the last Congress the absence of an effective opposition permitted the passage of much legislation now generally conceded to have been insufficiently scrutinized in advance. There is nothing to be gained from any viewpoint by the enactment of unwise or unworkable laws. Yet this is the outcome to be expected when honest criticism is stifled beneath the steam-roller of an overwhelming majority.

From this danger the forthcoming Congress will not be immune. But incomplete analysis indicates that the future difficulty may be insubordination from Administration supporters rather than pusillanimity on the part of the Republican minority. The latter has for the most part won office by criticizing various features of the New Deal, and should therefore be expected to fill the role of opposition with more assertiveness than was shown in the last Congress. But many Democrats who were chosen at the polls yesterday are likely to become impatient at any signs of Presidential moderation.

This situation does not coincide with a political alignment like the British, where there are three parties representing the natural reactions of an electorate—radical, liberal and conservative. The division in the new Congress is actually similar. But it must be compressed into a two-party alignment in a way certain to cause difficulties between the right and left wings of the majority. Here would seem to be the chief problem ahead for the Administration.

It is, of course, the tendency of all experimental governments to become conservative. This is true when their experiments fail to work, in which case those in power must soon or late react toward tested methods in order to show results. And it is equally true when the experiments prove successful, which demands concentration on demonstrated achievement and repudiation of further innovations. As a case in point, even before the election the Administration turned a very cold shoulder toward EPIC.

Thus the political picture changes as the Roosevelt Administration swings into the second half of its assured term. This is not because of, but in spite of, the election returns. Its sweeping electoral triumph does not mean that plain sailing is ahead for the New Deal. On the contrary, its most difficult period is now at hand.

On the one hand, the attacks of a recalcitrant minority must be disposed of. On the other, the possible excesses of a majority faction must be held in check. That is a task which obviously requires skillful parliamentary leadership. Even more, it demands concrete evidence that the Administration's program is more promising than anything offered from either left or right. In other words, the time for glittering generalities and easy assurances is past. Practical results must now be the order of the day.

The Municipal Center.

Reconsideration of the Municipal Center project is a logical sequel to the careful revision of plans for the District sewage disposal plant. A most convincing argument brought forward in securing this economy of capital outlay and overhead is that funds are also urgently needed for other improvements. Among the first on this list is the Municipal Center.

Early construction of the first unit of the proposed Municipal Center is especially urgent because of the inadequacy of the present quarters occupied by the Municipal, Police and Juvenile Courts. The District can not hope to go forward with the entire project as it is planned at present. Indeed, it appears that unless the Commissioners are able to find a way out of the present impasse, the District's investment in an expensive site will continue to be a liability over a long period. In the meantime the local government's housing problem is becoming more acute.

Citizens have been asked to submit plans for the financing of this improvement. Before they have had a chance to reply Commissioner Hazen offers a plan of his own. He would sell to the Federal Government half of the site chosen for the Center and go forward with a much revised project. It appears that on this basis much of the construction might be cared for out of the savings afforded by alterations of plans for the sewage disposal plant. But it will need further study to determine whether this would operate to the best interests of the District.

Undoubtedly the Municipal Center as it is now planned is more pretentious than the District can afford. That is not the fault of local authorities. It was Congress that insisted upon a very expensive development to match the Federal buildings in the triangle. If such a project is undertaken, aid from the Federal Treasury certainly must be forthcoming. As matters now stand, the extravagant plans for the Municipal Center are the foremost obstacle to its construction.

Revision of the plans is probably essential. But talk of reducing this project by half may run to the opposite extreme. After all, the Nation's Capital ought to establish headquarters that will not be incongruous with the Government's elaborate structures. Moreover, the Center ought to be planned with sufficient space to house the local government for many years.

Certainly this project should be kept out of the makeshift class, even if its development is slow. It might be more advisable to work out a less drastic revision and present the problem to Congress with a request for Federal aid to cover the extra costs made necessary by that body's demand for architectural harmony.

In Search Of Markets.

The annual survey of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics contains a highly informative discussion of the outlook for farm products next year. It is significant that attention is concentrated almost exclusively upon the prospects for a revival of industry and an increase in export trade. There is no danger of misinterpreting the meaning of this emphasis. It indicates clearly that the agricultural experts of the bureau fully realize that future prosperity for the farm population can not be assured merely through restricting output and selling at high prices.

Secretary Wallace has voiced this opinion upon many occasions. But the conclusion is forced home with especial cogency by the unadorned recital of facts contained in the present report from one of the agencies under his command. The opinions voiced are deduced so logically from the premises that they, too, take on the appearance of incontrovertible facts.

Thus, the bureau starts from the assumption that domestic demand for farm products fluctuates with changes in consumer incomes, while incomes vary with industrial activity. After an impartial analysis of the data relating to industrial production, the conclusion is reached that demand for farm products will be slightly better during the first half of 1935. Subsequent improvement, however, is said to depend primarily upon further recovery in the durable goods industries.

In discussing the outlook for our export trade in farm products, plain speaking comes close to being outright criticism of the policies that have been pursued. No doubt the agricultural experts would say that their implied criticisms are directed against a permanent policy of restriction and perpetual monetary instability, not against the emergency measures taken during the past year. However, it is clearly indicated that the outlook for an expansion of foreign demand for American farm products is far from encouraging.

Bilateral trade agreements of a barter type are said to be especially unfavorable to the United States, which customarily has a large excess of commodity exports to countries that need to import agricultural products. While not decrying the value of reciprocal trade pacts, the report notes that agreements with countries constituting the principal markets for our agricultural exports are unlikely to be concluded in time to affect our exports for the 1934-1935 marketing season.

Probably the most telling indirect attack upon price-raising restrictionist policies lies in the admission that while foreign demand for agricultural products has improved, the United States is not likely to profit from that expansion. The reasons given for that failure are curtailed domestic production; increased foreign production (incidentally partly due to our domestic restrictions); and "less favorable price relationships with foreign competitive supplies." Mention of the obstacles presented by trade barriers follows this disheartening summary.

For some time it has been evident that experts of the Department of Agriculture are worried about the long-time effects of New Deal policies upon the market for farm products, particularly abroad. This latest report is further proof that many consider a radical alteration of present methods essential to permanent improvement in agricultural conditions.

The Fall Of Doumergue.

France has gone another step toward a situation of great domestic gravity. The withdrawal of Edouard Herriot and his fellow Radical-Socialists from the coalition cabinet of Premier Doumergue does more than destroy that regime. It brings closer a national crisis long delayed, frequently narrowly avoided and, of late, anxiously expected.

Through the dust of the political turmoil, the figure of Doumergue himself gains still greater dignity. It is the figure of a physically frail, mentally alert, old man called from well-earned retirement to fight for national stability. And he has fought heroically, to the last ditch, after the cruel loss sustained in the assassination of Barthou, up to the disaffection of his uncertain Radical-Socialist supporters.

Herriot, by his destruction of the Doumergue cabinet, is probably assured of the next premiership. He has certainly assumed a tremendous responsibility.

Disaffection with parliamentary methods is mounting in France. If a practical dyke is to be built, partisan politics must be dropped. Having ended a triumvirate, Herriot may substitute a division of power between the liberals and the conservatives—between himself and Andre Tardieu. But the indications are none too good that such a coalition will survive.

It must be true that the good die young—something becomes of them.

Sewage Disposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On April 24, 1933, the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs went on record as indorsing the urgent need of a sewage-disposal plant, for the health of the community and also as a means of giving work to the unemployed as a part of the public works program. During the past year, the members of our federation have watched with interest the various fluctuations in this plan, and our chairman has worked steadfastly for the original project.

The action taken on November 3 by the administrator of public works and Engineer Commissoner Sultan in now proposing to construct a primary treatment plant is a blow to our hopes to secure an adequate sewage-disposal system for the City of Washington. Published reports are to the effect that the primary treatment system will remove only about 30 per cent of the pollution caused by dumping the city's sewage into the waters of the metropolitan area, whereas we are advised that the activated sludge system would remove about 95 per cent of this pollution.

As the District taxpayers ultimately must foot the bill for whatever system we have, it is only fair that the wishes of organized citizen groups should be adhered to in their desire for the best system for our city. False economy at this time would be a serious blunder at a later date, in our opinion. A grant of but $4,000,000 of public works funds at this time will mean that the remaining funds to complete the plant at a later date will have to be paid for entirely by our citizens, without the advantage to be obtained by the 30 per cent gift which is being allowed now from the public works fund.

A Parental Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For fourteen years I have lived in Washington. For 30 years previous I was a criminal and during that time had spent 21 years in five of the most famous prisons in America. I had been tried by judge and jury fourteen times and broke even with seven convictions and seven acquittals. I have met and associated with more noted criminals than probably any other man, and I have never met one who would or could say that crime paid.

Several years ago I was invited into a number of colleges and universities to lecture on crime prevention and later, after a series of talks at New York University, I organized the "League for the Prevention of Crime." It flopped, as every movement of the kind does, because of a lack of individual interest, and the local movement will flop, too, unless supported by the interest of every law-abiding citizen in the District of Columbia. The answer to this most puzzling of social problems will manifest itself only after careful consideration by the real makers of our Nation, the fathers and mothers of our rising generation.

Crime prevention is a medicine to be administered as a tonic to build body and character in youth. There is no other remedy to prevent crime.

THE CRIMINOLOGIST.

A Roman Holiday.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How long will we remain the laughingstock of the world? To what extent have we become the consummate hypocrite of all the nations? How far will our lust and greed and blatant cynicism lead us? Would we have the rest of the world believe that we are completely devoid of reason and conscience?

These are questions that all honest Americans must help to answer. But it will be most difficult to convince anyone living outside of the United States that we are not very largely a Nation of morons and incompetents, if our story of crime means anything.

On October 26, one of the most brutal and cold-blooded murders occurred that is known in the annals of crime in America. This was the occasion of the lynching of Claude Neal, near Greenwood, Fla. The affair was advertised and thousands gathered to satisfy their sadistic instincts, as they did centuries ago in Rome, where the favorite pastime was to gather and see men thrown to the lions. In those ancient days of blood, mostly men and a few women visited the arena. But the "Roman holiday" in Florida was crowded with women, children and babies, if the press is to be relied upon.

Indifference to crime, on the part of officials, whose sworn duty it is to enforce the law, or their actual collusion with the criminals in carrying out their dastardly deeds, removes every vestige of hope for a better day.

An aroused public conscience is our only hope. A Federal law for the protection of American citizens is our only justification.

Another Deal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Back in 1917 and 1918 this Government paid me $6.40 per day to lie in the mud of France and shoot at Germans. These Germans, they told us, were trying to run the whole world. They wanted to levy taxes on us and control our free United States. We thought that could not happen, so we shot them down as enemies. Then we came home—some of us at least got back. We had saved the world!

Now, 15 years later, we have what is called the New Deal, which endeavors to do just what the Germans tried to do to us once before.

And this Mis-Deal gang have the nerve to deliberately ask us—yes, even implore us,—to turn the country over to them so they may put on the finishing touches to their handiwork so well started.

The slackers of 1917 were patriots compared to the voters for this Mis-Deal.

No Connection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I represent the Continental Distilling Corporation of Philadelphia, one of the largest distillers of alcoholic beverages in the United States, whose many nationally known and widely advertised brands include Rittenhouse Square, Keystone State, Snug Harbor and Sweep Stakes whiskies and Dixie Belle and Cavalier gins.

My client finds its interests to be adversely affected to a serious extent by publication on October 30 in your newspaper of an article referring to a stop order proceeding before the Securities and Exchange Commission with regard to a registration statement filed by "Continental Distillers and Importers Corporation." My client has absolutely no connection or affiliation with the latter company and, as a matter of fact, a proceeding was instituted by my client and is now pending in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware with the objective of having enjoined the simulation of my client's name by the company referred to in your article.

May I ask you to assist in clarifying the situation by publication of an article stating that my client is in no way connected with the company involved in the proceedings before the Securities and Exchange Commission?

J. MAURICE GRAY.

Thank You.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your report of my sermon given on October 28 in the National Church of the New Jerusalem just came to my notice. I am one who does not believe in waiting until one is dead before good is spoken of him. It seems more encouraging and useful to give commendations on the spot. Hence, I say now that the brief report of the sermon was a masterpiece of reportorial work. Although I have been doing that work for half a century, I could not equal the reporter in his ability to get the essence of a long discourse and preserve the literary order so well in the space used.

Thank you for your efficiency, and with the best of good wishes.

As Others See It

The Crime Alibi.

Even people who should be better informed adhere to the notion that American criminality, crime waves and so on are traceable to the undigested alien population. The Hauptmann case has been cited as confirming this more or less prevalent fallacy, the joint Bar Association of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut adopting the following solemn resolution:

Said Hauptmann case calls attention to the fact that so many of our dangerous criminals are either alien or naturalized foreigners, and that they congregate about our large centers of population, and have for many years presented our greatest problem and burden in criminality.

Hauptmann is of German extraction and birth, but the late Dillinger, Pretty Boy Floyd, the new public Enemy No. 1, Baby Face Nelson, Dillinger's lieutenant, John Hamilton, other notorious gangster gunmen, Harvey Bailey, Machine Gun Kelly, the crazy Robinson, Clyde Barrow, and so on, have old-fashioned home names, as did the James boys, the Daltons and the Benders of an earlier day.

It is recalled by the St. Louis Post Dispatch that the Wickersham Commission in its report completely disposed of the mythical alien accountability for crime, which it termed "the easy theory that our social difficulties are not to be charged to our own mistakes and failures. It is easy," remarked the commission, "to shift the responsibility for what is wrong by charging it upon the nationals of other countries. . . . Charging our high crime rates against the foreign-born is merely evading the real difficulties of life, instead of trying to solve them."

We get our alien population from countries none of which is bedeviled by organized criminality as we witness it in the United States. There were generations when Italy suffered from its historic "bravos," persons who professionally hired out to commit murder, and from Sicilian gangsterism. To the credit of Mussolini he has cleaned that up. Otherwise the United States holds the world's record for organized criminality. To charge it to aliens in our population is to imply that this immigration is preponderantly of the world's criminal classes, so called.

It is, as the Wickersham Commission termed it, an "easy" alibi. But easy ways out of social problems are not ordinarily sound or constructive. The more formidable the problem, of whatever nature, the more intricate and complex it is, and the more difficult to find the solution or remedy.

Getting Rid of Peggy.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

SHOOTING a woman spy was a shocking thing—to most of us Americans and our English cousins, during the World War. We felt it was bad manners.

When the Germans executed Edith Cavell, their bullets spattered all over this country and half of Britain. We didn't much like it when our own French allies shot Mata Hari at Vincennes. To this day, 99 out of every 100 Americans and Englishmen will tell you:

"Our people never did such things!"

Yet now, after all these years, there is told, the story of how, on August 6, 1918, the English shot a woman spy who had been run down by American agents.

It is a story which some few of us heard at the time of its happening, but which is certainly unknown to the many. It is remarkable, moreover, because the guilty woman seemed to have every chance in her favor.

All that summer the Germans were getting detailed information of American naval plans and operations in British waters. None of our cruisers or destroyers could leave a base without the enemy soon giving evidence that its destination was known to them. None of our transports could enter or leave the zone without Berlin being quickly informed of "where it came from, the troops it carried and their training."

But, beyond the fact that a potentially disastrous leak existed, almost nothing was certain about it. Since the betrayed information was concerned merely with movements originating from the British Isles, its source must be somewhere within them. Since the data were confined to American vessels, it was most likely drawn from Americans—however innocent those Americans might themselves be. Yet at this point knowledge ceased. Speculation itself had nothing on which to feed.

The spy might be a sailor or civilian. He might be one person or a corps. There were no means of guessing his whereabouts, and of his methods of communicating with his employers it was certain solely that they were successful.

Still, the leak had to be located at any pains. And that job was given to Don Wilkie and a couple of his assistants.

He was the son of John E. Wilkie, head of the United States Secret Service under McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson. Young Wilkie—well, he was young then!—tells of it in his "American Secret Service Agent," which the Stokes have just published. We remember him as a promising investigator during his early Washington days. This book indicates that he kept every promise. And the incident of Lady Peggy provides a case in point.

Wilkie had all England to search—and no suspect to begin on!

He decided that he had but one choice. He must not waste time hunting for his shark. He must toss out some attractive bait and then watch for a nibble.

He chose London for his initial attempt.

First, he induced authorities to give out "confidentially" a piece of entirely false information of such a nature as infallibly to attract the spy or spies in question: The Americans were contemplating an attack upon the German fleet "bottled in the Kiel Canal."

Next, liberal shore leaves were granted American naval men on duty about the British Isles—72 hours in London.

Then Wilkie and his assistants began to frequent all the places in London generally most frequented by such men on such leave.

And the shark nibbled immediately.

Among the scores of charming ladies of position who shone at a certain night club particularly patronized was "a woman of culture and breeding"—and beauty—on whom Wilkie bestows the alias of "Lady Peggy." During a Zeppelin raid, she asked Wilkie to her flat. Thither they went in a cab curiously plying its trade amid all that destruction from the skies.

And Lady Peggy was interested in the matter of the Kiel Canal.

She asked one of Wilkie's friends (an assistant in uniform, posing as a censor) to pass, through American channels, a letter to her "sister in Switzerland:" some manuscript music that joked with Bach by queer variations on a Bach fugue. The thing was so harmless that her humorless fellow-countrymen in the British censorship would be sure to stop it.

Well, well—there was the beginning of the end for Lady Peggy.

That cab driver who put business before safety in Zeppelin raids was arrested with his German secret-service credentials on his person. The fugue, deciphered, proved to contain the Kiel misinformation. It also contained authentic data calculated to sink a transport with 9,000 troops. Lady Peggy was executed in the Tower of London, just as Herr Lodi had been executed there some four years earlier.

Aside from being a woman—and ever being found out—the odd and ironic thing in the affair is this: Lady Peggy was an accredited "agent in the British naval intelligence engaged in checking the morale of American naval officers under British orders!"

However, she had rather exceeded her assignment when she sent information to the Germans, even though she had a German father.

Stability in Its Politics Spain's Greatest Need

Hearings on Trade Agreement With U. S. Must Take Internal Conditions Into Account.

By J. C. Rocca.
(Special Correspondence of The Post.)

THE revolt has been crushed in Spain owing to the vigor of the army and the police. The republican constitution, tested in the crucible of civil war, seems now to enjoy more general support than previously. But what will be the effect of the political unrest on the economic life of the Spanish nation? And may we assume that the troubles which devastated the whole country for almost a week were due to political causes only? Or, as it has often happened before in Spain, did the general strike represent at the same time a political and an economic weapon?

It may be of interest to analyze the underlying economic forces operative in Spain, in view of the present trade negotiations for a trade agreement with the United States, hearings on which are scheduled for next week. The announcement that this country was willing to negotiate a trade agreement was well received in Spain, but without political stability no commercial negotiation can be successful. Once, at a League of Nations conference in Geneva, the Spanish government sent a delegation composed half of Castillans and half of Catalans, who were not even in agreement among themselves about the language in which to deliver their speeches!

Spain is preeminently an agricultural country; and, roughly, 5,500,000 people, or one-fourth of the total population, live in strictly country districts, as distinguished from larger villages, towns and cities. The republic promised, above all, to end the almost feudal servitude of the peasants and to confiscate in their favor the large estates that were still uncultivated. But that promise has not been fulfilled as yet, nor could it be, except gradually. The dispute between Madrid and Barcelona over the enforcement of a new law on land contracts seems to have been one of the principal causes of the abortive movement in support of a Communist Workers and Peasants Republic.

* * * *

THE typical Spaniard, a good patriot, is naturally conservative. Although the various provinces are separated by linguistic, economic and racial differences, still they are bound together by a passionate patriotism, as was demonstrated during the Napoleonic invasion and more recently during the Moroccan War. The Spanish peasant is thrifty; nothwithstanding the economic crisis, the savings bank deposits tend to increase steadily in Spain. They amounted to 1,955,000,000 pesetas at the end of 1929 and to 2,546,000,000 pesetas at the end of 1932. (The average exchange value of the peseta in 1933 was about 13 cents.—Ed.)

Spain's emigrants are a great source of wealth to the mother country; most of them go to Central or South America. They struggle and accumulate money, biding their time to return home. Returning emigrants are called "Indians" by their fellow countrymen, and not long ago, one of these "Indians" gave more than 40,000,000 pesetas to improve the province of Santander.

The recent armed revolt was concentrated in the northern industrial districts where the Socialists were strongest. As the London Economist remarks: "The Spanish republic, which has clearly failed in many spheres, had to its credit the one big success of having solved the Catalan question by the grant of a kind of 'dominion status' under a constitution which rightly defines Spain as an integral state of federative tendencies. Some federal solution sooner or later, whereby local affairs may be dealt with by local assemblies, would seem the only way by which Spanish democracy can learn the necessary lessons of responsibility." The real reason why the miners of the Asturian region were the last to capitulate in the revolt was that they claimed at least as much autonomy as was granted to Catalonia.

In the north of Spain are the principal mines of coal, lead, iron and potash. Spain, incidentally, occupies the fourth place among lead producers, being surpassed only by the United States, Canada and Mexico. The United States is the leading market for potash, taking approximately two-fifths of the total quantity exported. In Barcelona centers an important textile industry, which requires the importation of about 200,000,000 pounds of cotton annually, chiefly from the United States.

* * * *

CATALONIA'S demands for local autonomy are strongly tinged with economic motives. Being the center of the majority of Spanish industrial workers, they are also tinged with Socialistic tendencies. The labor movement in Spain has always been characterized by extremes—on the one hand anarchy, on the other syndicalism. In recent years Spain has been the only country in Europe where the labor movement has developed an anarchistic trend leading to violent excesses. All observers of Spain's evolution agree that the chief causes of the anarchist movement lie in the feudal land system and in the rigid system of centralization which hampers industrial progress.

In announcing the future negotiations with Spain, the Department of State recently declared that: "Commerce between Spain and the United States has not escaped the adverse effects of the general economic depression. In 1929 the value of United States exports to Spain was $82,120,730. This had declined to $30,656,698 in 1933. Spain's exports to this country also fell off in the same period. In 1929 they had a value of $36,059,277, which had decreased to $13,701,439 in 1933."

Principal exports of the United States to Spain are raw cotton, automobiles and motor trucks, mineral oils, auto tires and other rubber manufactures, leaf tobacco and chemicals. Spain's principal exports to the United States include cork, olive oil, olives, almonds, hides and skins and pepper. In some articles, especially motor cars, there is active competition between American and English products, and the British trade commissioner in Madrid, in his last report, suggests that British exporters should imitate American methods in order to withstand American competition, namely, by forming their own selling and credit organizations in Spain and by investing a certain amount of capital in premises, stock and advertising. France and England recently asked for and obtained a rebate in customs duties on automobiles.

These reduced rates are not applicable on the products from the United States. Thus, one may understand the importance of the imminent commercial negotiations between this country and Spain, especially if one takes into account the fact that more than four-fifths of Spanish imports of automobiles came, during the last few years, from the United States, and that new French and English imports are increasing at the expense of American.

The most significant feature in the economic life of Spain is a tendency to extend the functions of the state. At the beginning of the republic there was an attempt to declare illegal the existing contracts between the former Spanish government and all foreign companies. As a result of diplomatic negotiations the interference of the government in private industry, however, has been much curtailed.

* * * *

THE ECONOMIC reconstruction of Spain depends, as in other countries, upon a balanced budget and credit expansion. As regards public finances, a 4 per cent loan of 250,000,000 pesetas was oversubscribed last July, and the minister of finance announced that this loan, together with budget economies, would bring about a balanced budget within three years.

The Bank of Spain has always pursued a very conservative policy, and banking in Spain is centralized in the hands of comparatively few institutions. During 1934 the Bank of Spain has increased its reserves both of gold and silver; at the end of September, 1934, the gold reserve amounted to 2,266,000,000 pesetas and the silver reserve to 680,000,000 pesetas. The government recently tried to extend the organization of cooperative credit to agriculture and industry.

The Spanish republic has been compared by the London Statist to one of those "deft surf riders of the South Seas who skim triumphantly over one breaker after another on catamarans so flimsy that they look as though they would never keep afloat in a duck pond. The republic has been perpetually encountering, and surmounting, these waves of unrest ever since its birth, until the onlooker has become almost equally skeptical about Spain's troubles ever ceasing and about their even proving fatal. * * *"

What Spain chiefly needs is political tranquillity, and if this condition is fulfilled, if agrarian reform and the Catalan question can be solved by peaceful means, economic progress should be sure and steady.

Atterbury Ill at Miami.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP).—W. W. Atterburg, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was in port here today aboard his 110-foot yacht Arminia on a leisurely cruise.

Atterbury was reported by members of his party to be in ill health. He is recovering from a recent operation. The Arminia came here last night from Jacksonville.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

The Smart One

WITH the election now all over, the Democratic managers hereabouts and their hangers-on will devote the next week or 10 days to reminiscing over the smart things they did individually and severally in the campaign. The rivalry is always keen in such discussions, as every smart fellow naturally wants his particular smart work accepted as the smartest thing which was done.

BARGERON

Of course, all of them defer to the President. Necessarily all of his contributions were the smartest. That goes without saying. The contest is for the smartest contribution after him.

One has been hearing for a week, in fact, how smart it was for Mr. Roosevelt to bring the bankers into camp. Such smartness as that is something which one simply cannot meet. We had not associated the bankers' incident with the political campaign, and somehow now do not believe it added a single vote to the Democratic cause. But the political boys assure us that it was a political master-stroke.

* * * *

Another smart contribution of Mr. Roosevelt's which we have heard a lot about was his statement one day in behalf of his friend, Gov. Lehman, of New York, without any reference to Senator Copeland. The interpretation of this was that he was for the Governor and against the Senator, a very startling thing. It was so startling, in fact, that it was announced for him the following day that the interpretation was wrong, that he intended to vote for Copeland, too.

We assumed Mr. Roosevelt, in his rapid-fire exchange with the White House correspondents, had made a slip up, and one which did not amount to anything. But lo and behold, his explainers explained that no, we were wrong, that this had been a smart and deliberate thing on the part of the President. He wanted the country to know, it was explained, that he didn't particularly like Senator Copeland, so he planned a 24-hour campaign in the press. That is to say, he deliberately planned to speak laudatory of Gov. Lehmann on one day and the day following to say, "By the way, I meant to say I would vote for Senator Copeland, too."

Such planning as the publicity boys would have us believe this to be really awes us non-planners.

Which is all by way of saying that the real smart contribution in this campaign was Vice-President Garner, and so far as known he didn't open his mouth. He was responsible, however, in my opinion, for the overwhelming nature of the Democratic victory.

He gave the Republicans their issue of "Balance the Budget."

It was all they could bring themselves to say. And the Democrats had only to reply, "Do you mean to let people go hungry?"

* * * *

For sheer tenacity that slogan will go down in history along with Frank Simond's prediction of a war in Europe. We have heard it now for some three years. And Mr. Garner started it.

It was back in the early campaign days of 1932 when Publisher Hearst had put the idea in Mr. Garner's head that he could be President. Looking around for an issue, the then Speaker of the House, hit upon "Balance the Budget." It made him, wrecked him, and remade him—all in the brief space of two weeks.

To balance this budget, he said, we shall have the sales tax and the conservatives shouted gleefully that Mr. Garner was one of the biggest men ever to come about. Then the House members bowled him over and the conservatives said he was certainly a flop.

Some sort of a tax bill was subsequently passed, however, and Mr. Garner said this was what he really meant. Balance the budget was all he was concerned in, he said, and his stock rose again, but to uncertain Vice Presidential, instead of Presidential, proportions.

The Republicans, in the meantime, had picked the slogan up. They were jealous of Mr. Garner's grabbing it in the first place. They liked the ring of it. Even Mr. Roosevelt went through the Presidentail campaign talking about "balancing the budget."

He knew, however, when to let the slogan drop. The Republicans didn't. They probably won't let it go now, and maybe it will work—sometime. As for Mr. Garner, who started it, he has forgotten about it long ago.

WILLIAM IRVING MYERS, governor, Farm Credit Administration. The only college professor in the top rank of administrative positions, he came to Washington as Morgenthau's right-hand man in reorganizing the FCA. Born 42 years ago on a farm, he has raised chickens and taught cooperative marketing and finance at Cornell. Since his accession to office, he has been flitting around the country in airplanes setting up regional agencies and selecting personnel for the FCA. Level-headed and practical. Though slight of stature, rather stocky, he was runner-up to Tugwell in Washington's shop-girl's poll for the Beau Brummell of the brain trust. No mere theorist, he has 5,000 laying hens. They return him a good profit.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

No End of Books

Suggested Reading for Essay-Writers in The Post Scholarship Competition.

By Theodore Hall.

ESSAY WRITERS for The Post Scholarship Competition will find here a brief list of recent books, with comments, which may help them with one or another of their topics. I've included only one book which appeared in the Public Library's very sound reading list, published in yesterday's Post, and that because it had not yet been mentioned in this column.

Let's look at it at once, then—the field International Problems, subtopic Russia today. "Russia's Iron Age" (Little Brown, $4), by William Henry Chamberlin, should prove of the greatest usefulness. The author, now transferred to the Far East, spent the last 12 years in Russia as the correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. In 1930, he wrote "Soviet Russia," a classic at the time. But so much has happened since then—"the erection of a far-flung network of new factories and electric power plants, the widespread employment of forced labor, the compulsory regimenting of the peasants in collective farms, and the great famine of 1932-33"—that a fresh report is called for.

His summary: "I believe that the progress of civilization in Russia will go hand in hand with the progress of skepticism. When the Communists are no longer so self-righteously certain that they are leading the country to a future millennium, they will perhaps not be so ready to impose on it some of the characteristics of a present-day purgatory."

* * * *

For an able report on Russia's technical progress, without philosophic criticism, you'll find Alcan Hirsch's "Industrialized Russia" (Chemical Catalogue Co.) crammed with material hard to gain elsewhere.

Behind the topic of naval limitations stands the general problem of sea power, Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, one-time of the British admiralty, now professor of naval history at Cambridge University, has written a thorough and rather deep study of this in "Sea Power in the Modern World" (Reynal & Hitchcock). Specialists will find it the logical successor to Admiral Mahan's "Influence of Sea Power Upon History (1889). But it gives well-ripened conclusions upon the topic of limitation of armament. Use it for background.

Hoffman Nickerson's "Can We Limit War?" (Stokes) deals more broadly with the question of warfare, especially in history. Also good for background.

On Hitlerism you will find few books which give a more specific as well as rounded attack as "Nazism: An Assault on Civilization" (Smith & Haas), a symposium presenting the opinions of 21 leading critics of Germany's present regime.

On Latin-American relations, look into "Modern Hispanic America" (George Washington U. Press), a symposium edited by A. Curtis Wilgus. Numerous topics are developed by experts, some of them very much to the point.

For background to Far Eastern policy, especially in all manner of statistics, the one indispensable volume is "Economic Handbook of the Pacific Area" (Doubleday Doran), edited by Frederick V. Field. It is exhaustively complete, and backed by the authority of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

* * * *

In the field of economics, subtopic housing, you musn't ignore a paper-bound booklet—"America Can't Have Housing" (Museum of Modern Art, N. Y.) Edited by Carol Aronovici, it presents articles by a number of international figures well-trained in the problem. The book is packed with information and argument.

In agriculture, one of the most stimulating of recent books is W. O. Willcox's "Re-Shaping Agriculture" (Norton). The author is an agro-biologist, and speaks out frankly on technical advances in farming.

* * * *

In the field of civics, you will find one book exceedingly useful for the topic of our socialistic experiments. Henry Savage, jr.'s "America Goes Socialist" (Dorrance) recites the history of our rising socialization of Government, beginning with our Revolutionary founders. It was Washington who first proposed a subsidy for agriculture.

On dictatorship, read Lindsay Rogers' "Crisis Government" (Norton), which will give you an idea of the basic European situations.

For pointers on our need of an augmented civil service, read T. Swann Harding's pungent little volume—"TNT: Those National Tax-Eaters" (Long & Smith). Mr. Harding may seem a bit too sarcastic, but he is certainly outspoken.

* * * *

In the field of American History, subtopic reform, may I suggest Lincoln Steffens' "Autobiography" (Harcourt Brace) and John Chamberlain's "Farewell to Reform" (John Day). Both are little short of classics. Steffens is better for personal background, Chamberlain for the specific history of reform movements during the last 40 years.

On the Constitution in relation to our social progress, Mr. Harding's book, mentioned above, holds a valuable chapter—"Economic Planning and the Constitution." Remember, it is militantly liberal.

Cross-reference to a great number of topics will be found in "The State Papers and Other Public Writings of Herbert Hoover" (two volumes, Doubleday Doran, $7.50). William Starr Myers, professor of politics at Princeton, edited the collection.

* * * *

But the proper use of such books is only to give you basic facts, and to sharpen and quicken your own thinking. I can not pretend to speak for the judges of the essay competition, of course, yet in every realm of writing value never rises from a dry and a plodding summary of what others have said. The best writing is always that which presents an honest and individual point of view, accurately and forcefully.

Code of Honesty

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

ACCORDING to the report in the New York Times, Monday, October 8, the Rev. Charles C. Cole, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, in his sermon on the preceding day, gave out for the daily guidance of church members a Code of Honesty, and it seems so excellent I wish to be sure that my readers may have the privilege of reading it.

Never pay less than the correct amount of any bill, and never accept more than the correct amount of change.

Never keep any article which you find without making an honest effort to locate the owner.

Never defraud any one, not even a "soulless" corporation. Insist on paying your fare on a street car even if the conductor overlooks it.

Never permit children over 5 to ride on the subway or train without paying their fare, and never purchase half-fare tickets for children over 12. It harms the child more than it helps your purse.

Never put a letter in a parcel post package without acknowledging it and paying full postage.

Never use your employer's postage stamps, telephone or time for private business without his knowledge and consent.

Never pass on counterfeit money—not even to a church collection plate. You can't fool God.

Never falsify an expense account even when the amount is under the expense allowance.

Never fail to pay old accounts due doctors, dentists and others for professional services, even if statements have stopped coming.

Never make a false report or statement even in support of a worthy cause, such as a charity or church.

Never misrepresent goods you are selling even if your job depends upon it.

Never make a dishonest excuse for something you have forgotten or failed to do. Tell the truth and shame the devil.

Never do or speak anything dishonest either to shield a friend or hurt a foe.

Never tell even a "white" lie—not even to quiet a child or comfort an invalid. If the truth won't do—keep silent.

Never do or say anything dishonest without expecting to face it sometime, somewhere. Every lie is a boomerang and hurts the teller more than any one else.

I agree with all of this except the two before the end. I should certainly lie to a would-be murderer if by so doing I could save a human life.

In the same way, I would lie to save the life of an invalid.

Life can not be regulated entirely by rules; but in general the rules set forth by Dr. Cole are very much needed by the best of us.

New Deal Popularity Is Key to Congress

Roosevelt Assured of Huge Nominal Majorities With Misleading Labels.

By Elliott Thurston.

NOW that President Roosevelt is assured of huge, nominally Democratic majorities in both branches of Congress for the next two years, the important questions are whether he will retain command of Congress and how he means to do it.

The party labels in Congress are just as misleading as they were during the campaign. There is just as much latent opposition to the New Deal among the Democrats as among the Republicans—probably more. If the New Deal loses its hold on the great masses of the country, both Democrats and Republicans who now consider discretion the better part of the political valor will desert the New Deal.

The line-up in Congress is unnatural, just as the campaign was unique. The division in the campaign and in Congress is between New Dealers and dissenters in both old parties, rather than between Democrats and Republicans as such. Dissent has been and continues to be smothered under the mass popularity of the New Deal—and its unprecedented command of the means and money to maintain popularity with the masses.

The plight of old-line Democrats is more desperate than that of the few old-line Republican survivors. The Republicans are free to speak out, if they have the courage, and they are free to form a united, even if decimated, opposition as soon as they can discover and agree upon a policy. The Democrats are much more hampered. Aside from the fact that only one in thousands has the courage of Senator Glass, they are branded as bolters if they break finally with the Administration. They have nowhere to go except to join with Republican dissenters. And that is out of the question for Democrats held by strong political traditions such as prevail in the South.

* * * *

THE OLD-LINE Democrats see the New Deal deliberately smashing old party lines. Mr. Roosevelt studiously avoids using the word "Democrat." Eager to lure former Republicans into the New Deal fold and to keep them there, he discards a label which would be as unwelcome to the converts as the Republican label would be to the Democrats of the South. Mr. Farley still thinks in terms of the old party labels and line-ups. But Mr. Farley is the last champion to whom the disquieted old-line Democrats in the Senate, for example, would care to turn.

There is obvious conflict between Mr. Farley's conceptions and political practices and Mr. Roosevelt's. Both continue to exist side by side as incongruously as clashing New Deal policies go along simultaneously. Mr. Farley strives to keep and expand the old party organizations. He is frankly for the spoils system. He personifies in his own occupancy of dual official and political roles a practice which Mr. Roosevelt has denounced.

Disturbed as they are by Mr. Roosevelt's evident desire to mold his own New Deal party out of the old parties, leaving dissenters in both to shift for themselves, the old-line Democrats are caught between the unhappy choices of bolting or seeming to side with Mr. Farley. Their predicament is far worse than that of Republican dissenters.

* * * *

MR. ROOSEVELT will retain command of the few actual and potential dissenters only so long as for various reasons of party tradition or expediency they remain silent, or divided, or without a formulated opposition policy or without leadership. He has huge nominal majorities in Congress, but the one unifying element is the New Deal's popularity with the mass of the voters. If that should go, Congress would become a shambles of conflicting political factions.

Accordingly, it seems reasonable to assume that Mr. Roosevelt will pursue the same tactics he has followed all along. That is, he will count on the continuing popularity of the New Deal and do what he thinks will maintain that popularity—knowing that Congress will follow after him as long as the popularity lasts and no longer.

Those who would have Mr. Roosevelt draw an issue along old party lines, who would like to see the traditional division between Republicans and Democrats as such, are wasting their breath. It might be the best thing. But one has only to scan Mr. Roosevelt's history, his progress toward a New Deal party, notwithstanding Mr. Farley, and to take note of the meaninglessness of the old party labels in the campaign and in Congress to see that Mr. Roosevelt has no intention of adopting any such line or any such tactics.

Snowden Near Collapse, Address Is Cut Short

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—The frail Lord Ickornshaw, the former Philip Snowden, almost collapsed today during a luncheon address at the Cobden Club in which he rapped the national government's protectionist policy.

The former chancellor of the Exchequer cut his speech short in obvious distress upon the advice of Lady Ickornshaw who sat nearby.

"Sit down, my dear," she said, "You are not well."

2 Defendants Stanchly Back Insull's Ability

Sills and MacNeillie Testify on Their Faith in Utility Firm.

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two of the 16 mail fraud trial codefendants of Samuel Insull took the witness stand today and asserted that throughout their connection with the Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago they had been guided by an unwavering faith in the business ability and integrity of Insull.

One, Clarence W. Sills, testified that such was his confidence that he sold his best municipal bonds and invested $305,000 of his own money in Corporation Securities allotment certificates.

The other, Clarence T. MacNeille, declared that under the same circumstances he would reenact his part in the procedure.

Both Officers of Firm.

MacNeille and Sills, both of whom were officers in Corporation Securities and in the brokerage firm of Halsey Stuart, were the second and third defendants to take the stand in their own defense.

Sills related the story of his rise from cattle buyer in the Chicago stock yards to the position of vice president and sales manager for Halsey Stuart and Co.

Questioned by his attorney, John J. Healy, Sills told how he had bought $305,000 worth of the certificates "at the same time and at the same price" as they were offered to the public.

A payment of $200,000 was made in October, 1929, just before the big crash, he testified.

On December 22, 1930, he said, he sold 561 of the units at $41 a unit to a trust fund he had created in 1926 for his mother. They were still there, he said.

Voices Faith in Stock.

"Did you believe they had value at that time?" asked Healy.

"It would have been incongruous for me to create a trust fund for my mother and then put worthless securities in it," Sills replied.

"Then you did have faith in the stock?"

"Oh, absolutely!"

On cross-examination by Leslie E. Salter, special assistant to the Attorney General, Sills admitted that his salaries for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931 totaled $500,000, and that in addition he received $25,000 in stock dividends.

Sills asserted that at no time during his association with Charles B. and Harold L. Stuart, Frank K. Shrader and MacNeillie, all defendants and officers of the brokerage firm, had he had any reason to doubt their integrity and honesty.

Since 1907, he said, he had helped the brokerage firm deal in more than $2,000,000,000 in Insull bonds and that there had never been a default on the principal or interest of any of them.

Backs Insull's Integrity.

"To us the name of Insull on a bond became the same as sterling on silver," he said.

Sills said it had been his job to purchase the stock of Middle West Utility Co. for Halsey Stuart & Co., which was later turned over to Corporation Securities upon formation of the latter company.

Sills testified that his wife, his father-in-law and other members of his family had investments in Middle West Utility.

His health was poor in 1930 and in 1931, Sills said, and for that reason he resigned his position as a vice president of Corporation Securities. In April, 1932, he said, he resigned his position with Halsey Stuart.

On cross examination, Salter sought to bring out that during the time that Sills was disposing of most of his holdings in Corporation Securities he knew the company was insolvent. Sills insisted that he had no such knowledge.

Dividends As "Income."

MacNeille, secretary and treasurer of the Corporation Securities Co., admitted to Prosecutor Salter that $6,000,000 of the $7,000,000 income of "Corp" claimed as net earnings in a stock-offering circular in March, 1930, was made up of stock dividends.

The Government from the first has contended the company had no right to carry these stock dividends as earned income.

Approximately $2,000,000 was required for dividends on the preferred stock, MacNeille said.

"If the stock dividend was not considered as earned income there would have been nothing left for the common stockholder, would there?" asked Salter.

MacNeille said there would not. However, he pointed out that most of the stocks in the company's portfolio were ones which paid dividends in stocks, and asserted that the company's method was justified.

"I would do identically the same thing again today under the same circumstances," he declared.

"Have you no concern for the thousands of stockholders who lost their money through these inflated accounts?" Salter inquired.

"I regret it exceedingly," said MacNeille, "but that's hindsight."

Warrenton Rotarians Will Meet Tomorrow

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The Warrenton Rotary Club will hold its Thursday meeting at 6:30 p. m., in the auditorium of Upperville High School. This meeting will be in charge of the rural-urban committee of the Warrenton club, and a turkey supper will be served.

The Warrenton club has held such meetings from time to time in the past in the nature of a get-together movement to promote friendship between people of the county and business men and citizens of Warrenton.

Senator Long Wants His Cash; Louisiana Students Dig Down

I. O. U.'s for Football Trip Being Repaid at Rate of $40 Per Day.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 6 (AP).—Louisiana State University students began digging in their jeans today for the wherewithal to repay Senator Huey P. Long for his generosity in financing their mass descent on Nashville and the L. S. U.-Vanderbilt football game Saturday before last.

The Senator passed the word around the campus here yesterday that he expected students and the many townsfolk who signed laundry checks as I. O. U.'s at $7 a head to "pay back."

Long had turned Santa Claus, in a fit of generosity, and handed out fistfuls of currency so that his specially promoted trip to Nashville might be a roaring success.

And it was, thanks to the Senator.

E. N. Jackson, university business manager, estimated that all the money would be paid back within two months. Jackson said that $275 had been paid of the $3,500 expended by Senator Long and that the money was rolling back into Senatorial possession at the rate of $40 a day.

Asked whether he expected to get back his money, Long said:

"Well, I might lose about $100—you know, we never lose much."

Naval Accord Imperative, Is Powers' View

But Japan, Looked to by Others for Concessions, Remains Adamant.

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—Great Britain and the United States agreed again today that tri-power naval conversations here must continue until an accord is reached, but insisted any concessions must come from Japan. The Japanese, however, were reported still unwilling to modify their program.

A meeting between Norman H. Davis, American delegate, and Sir John Simon, British Foreign Minister and member of Britain's delegation, resulted in reassertion of their opposition to Japanese proposals for new methods of naval limitation.

British and American officials meanwhile watched developments at Geneva where Nobubumi Ito, Japanese diplomat, was questioned as to Japan's alleged refusal to permit an American warship to visit former German islands in the Pacific now under Japanese mandate.

Should it be proved that Japan has violated her mandate by fortifying the islands, the matter would be brought into the sphere of the naval conversations, authoritative quarters here said.

An unofficial report that Japan, in the event the negotiations here fail, has laid plans to build four ships of an entirely new type, also was in the background.

The new vessels, it was said, would be so powerful that they might render meaningless categories for naval armaments established in the Washington and London treaty.

Jacques Maritain To Speak Tonight

French Author Will Talk at Catholic University.

Jacques Maritain, French follower of Bergson who later turned from his teacher to the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas, will speak tonight at 8:30 p. m. in McMahon Hall auditorium at The Catholic University on "Knowledge and Wisdom, an Application of Thomistic Philosophy to Modern Problems of Art and Science."

Author of several books stressing the expression of Christian principles in the political and economic sciences, M. Maritain will be heard in Washington for the first time on a program sponsored by the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, Bishop of Modra, and rector of the university.

M. Maritain will be the guest of the Very Rev. Justin McManus, O. P., prior of the Dominican College, during his stay in Washington.

Home Workers Plan Program

Prince William Unit Will Meet Tomorrow at Methodist Church.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The home demonstration unit of Prince William County will hold its achievement program in the Sunday school rooms of the Methodist Church Thursday.

The program will open with the judging of the exhibits by Miss R. Belle Burke and Miss Sara Thomas.

The following representatives will report: Dumfries, Mrs. McGruder Keys; Hickory Grove, Miss Jennie Ewell; Aden, Mrs. Mark Kerlin; Greenwich, Mrs. Baldwin Cook; Bethel, Mrs. Wallace Dawson; Haymarket, Mrs. O. M. Douglas; Nokesville, Mrs. Ernest Spetler.

Plans for 1935 will be made by the advisory group, which includes the home demonstration officers of Prince William County at a meeting Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in the postoffice assembly room.

Kiwanis Club Of Arlington Elects Today

Progress in Construction of 'Camp Arki' for Boy Scouts Reported.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington Kiwanis Club will elect officers at its luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. today at Windsor Arms. On the nominating committee's slate are Charles W. Smith, president; Frank H. Rowe, immediate past president; Dr. Lamar Harris, first vice president; Lyman M. Kelley, second vice president, and Earle W. English, treasurer.

For directors, of which seven will be elected, are Harold Whittle, John F. Webster, Lawrence Manning, William K. MacMahon, Arthur C. Stickley 2d, Earle Kirby, William E. Robey, Dr. Ed. J. Payne, Amos C. Crounse, Bailey Byars and Arthur F. Campbell.

John F. Webster reports progress in construction of Camp Arki, on the Henderson estate, which will be used by Scout camps of the country.

An illustrated lecture by A. M. Day, of the United States Department of Agriculture, on "Wild Animal Research," will feature the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Henry Clay School in Lyon Park tomorrow night.

Calvin I. Kephart, chairman of the Arlington County public utilities commission, announces a letter has been sent to the Washington, Maryland & Virginia Coach Co., asking consideration of a 5-cent bus fare from Rosslyn to the county courthouse.

The commission pointed out that the fare from Clarendon to the courthouse is 5 cents and, inasmuch as the distance from Rosslyn to the courthouse is approximately the same, the fare should be the same.

The commission also has requested County Manager Roy S. Braden to install adequate lights along Washington street extended from the Military road to the Oil Plant road leading to Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The Arlington County Woman's Democratic Club will hold a benefit bingo, bridge and 500 party the evening of November 19 in the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall. The committee on arrangements is headed by Mrs. Crandal Mackey.

The Arlington Volunteer Fire Department tonight will nominate officers for the coming year. The election will be held at the December meeting. The building committee, which is perfecting plans for an addition, will report.

Harry B. Mason, of Cherrydale, has been appointed district deputy high priest for District No. 1 of the Royal Arch Masons.

American Girl Assured Speedy Reich Inquiry

Judge Says Many Angles Requiring Secrecy Are Being Traced.

Berlin, Nov. 6 (AP).—The magistrate in charge of the case of Miss Lillian Steele, of Hollywood, Calif., said today vigorous efforts were being made to bring the "extremely serious" case to an early conclusion.

Miss Steele, a young music student, has been held in Moabit prison for 88 days as a result of her expression of opinion on the Nazi regime.

Judge Zimmer of the People's Court, the investigating magistrate, said many ramifications requiring the greatest secrecy are being investigated.

He refused requests to see Miss Stele or to answer questions about her welfare.

Reason Called "Serious."

"You understand, of course," he told an interviewer, "the reason she is here is extremely serious."

The semiofficial Nationalsozialistische Partei Korrespondenz said regarding the case of Miss Helen Lyster, of New Rochelle, and G. Griffith Johnson, jr., of Washington, "we hac an opportunity to ask Mr. Johnson about his arrest. The American student explained that false articles in the foreign press surprised him considerably. It apparently was a matter of exaggeration. He and Miss Lyster were treated politely in every respect. The attitude of the police was correct throughout. The statement that they were questioned for hours was entirely wrong."

30 Germans Declared Involved.

Johnson and Miss Lyster reported last week that secret police had arrested them on suspicion of espionage. Miss Lyster had a camera at the Munich Airport where she and Johnson were watching troop maneuvers. They said they were released after several hours' imprisonment.

The American Consulate has tried to obtain the release of Miss Steele or to learn the basis of the accusations against her.

It was said 30 Germans are involved in the Steele case and are still at liberty. The authorities fear if the exact nature of the charges is revealed, the suspects will escape.

Fair Trial Promised U. S. Pair Held by Nazis

A promise that two Americans held in Germany for several months without charges would be "given exactly as fair treatment as if they were German citizens" was made yesterday by Ambassador Hans Luther, of Germany, the Associated Press reports.

The ambassador gave this assurance following a call at the State Department to review the matter with acting Secretary Phillips.

The State Department was disclosed Monday as having proceeded actively to clarify the status of the two citizens, Isabel Lillian Steele, of Los Angeles and Richard Roiderer, of Chicago, both jailed last summer for suspected espionage.

The department is awaiting full reports from it consular representatives in Berlin and Munich as to what steps have been taken to bring the prisoners to trial or dispose of the cases.

Stormy Days Seen For Spain Ministry

Parliamentary Skirmish Is Won by Government.

Madrid, Nov. 6 (AP).—A sharp Parliamentary skirmish over policies in suppressing the recent radical revolt ended in triumph for Premier Alejandro Lerroux's government today, but there were indications stormy weather lay ahead of the new regime.

While Parliament, with most of its radical deputies absent, voted confidence in Lerroux, 233 to 0, syndicalists announced general strikes throughout Spain in protest against the government's decision that at least two of those found guilty of rebellion in Asturias must die.

Socialists, still nursing wounds they suffered in the abortive general strike less than a month ago, refused to join the syndicalist movement and belief was expressed it was thereby predestind to failure. The government was confident it had enough facilities at hand to overcome any difficulties.

Long Suggests Louisiana Secede From Federal Union

'Too Many Crats in D. C.,' Says Senator, Silent on Ansell Suit.

New Orleans, Nov. 6 (AP).—Huey Long, pushing aside the fact that a Federal grand jury is investigating his income taxes and another matter of a pressing $500,000 libel suit against him in Washington, today unburdened himself of a series of messages to the Nation.

Chief of these was the declaration that the State of Louisiana ought to secede from the Union and set up an independent government, or team up with Mexico or something. That was "Emperor" Long speaking.

Next in importance, from Huey's own viewpoint, was a flat proclamation that Louisiana State University has the best football team in the country. That was "Coach" Long speaking.

The Long political machine, backing 14 State constitutional amendments in today's unexciting election, would make a "clean sweep" of the Commonwealth of Louisiana. That was the Kingfish-Senator-Dictator Long speaking.

But Huey shied away from comment on yesterday's adverse turn against him in Gen. Samuel T. Ansell's half-million dollar libel suit for remarks Long made about the General when he was counsel for the Senate committee investigating Long's political outfit.

"No comment," said the "Kingfish," brusquely terminating that line of thought. "We'll try that case later."

On his Louisiana secession proposal, however, the potential emperor spoke in the manner of an Aaron Burr.

"The only way for us to get out of this here depression," said the "Kingfish" in his best kingfish fashion, "is to secede from the United States—sever all connections and make a clean start."

To accomplish this, he suggested that "we reach some friendly agreement with the Government to let us go."

"Or some other kind of agreement, if necessary," added the Senator, warming up to his subject.

"We ain't a-goin' to get anywhere until we get rid of these damn bureaucrats, hobocrats, autocrats and all those other 'crats up there."

By "up there," it was understood he meant Washington.

Body Exhumed For Evidence Of Foul Play

Family of Denton Man Awaits Reports of Chemists' Probe.

Denton, Md., Nov. 6 (AP).—The family of Harry Fearins, who died near here October 28 under unusual circumstances, today awaited chemist's report on the contents of Fearins' stomach to determine if exterior causes had contributed to his death.

Fearins' body was exhumed yesterday and the stomach sent off for analysis. Dr. Dawson C. George, of Denton, and Dr. Jesse Fifer, of Ridgely, conducted the autopsy and said they found no marks on the body indicative of foul play.

An attorney representing the Fearins said the family just "wanted to make sure" Fearins had not died of poison. The attorney said the family had no reason to believe that he had.

Fearins had been dead for more than an hour when his body was brought to his home in West Denton by his brother-in-law, Harry Vickery, and Ed Jester, of near Denton, with whom he had left home in the morning. Jester is said to have thought that Fearins was only asleep, not dead.

Physicians who examined the body at that time said Fearins had died of heart disease.

Virginia Plant Buys 122 Million Pounds Of Native Apples

Winchester Company Pays $732,000 to Producers of Fruit.

Winchester, Nov. 6 (Spl.).—With approximately 122 million pounds of apples purchased from orchardists in this section of Virginia and nearby West Virginia, Joseph U. Dellinger, vice-president of the National Fruit Product Co., today estimated that the supply would keep the local plant operating until Thanksgiving at a high level of production.

Approximately $732,000 has been paid producers for their fruit, Mr. Dellinger said, and while the by-product plant in this city is being operated at the present scale, a payroll of $50,000 per month is being distributed among 1,000 employes. Practically all of the fruit available for use in by-products has been placed on the market although some of the larger orchards are expected to continue to supply some fruit until the end of this week.

Cider apples this year commanded 40 cents per hundred, an increase of 100 per cent over the price paid last year, it was said, and other grades brought from 50 to 70 cents per hundred, depending upon quality.

2 Deaths Stir Police to War On Bad Liquor

Sailor Blinded by Drink Found Wandering on Norfolk Street.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Belief that bad whisky was responsible for the deaths of two men and the sudden blindness of another within the past 48 hours caused the beginning of an intensive investigation by police today.

An unidentified colored man about 30 years old was found dead in a cell at the Frsit Precinct Police Station at 3 a. m. today, a short while after he was arrested on a charge of drunkenness last night.

Howard Mayfield, 35, colored, was found dead, apparently of alcoholism, Sunday night.

A 20-year-old sailor, attached to the naval operating base here, was found by a policeman at 1 a. m. today, feeling his way up Main street, completely blind. The sailor told police he bought and drank some whisky last night, but said he does not know the house in which he obtained it. Police turned the sailor over to the naval authorities and he was taken to the Naval Hospital for treatment.

It could not be learned this afternoon whether the sailor had permanently lost his sight.

Being a mere man, we are firmly convinced that if Madame la Ritzy, the Social Leader, were to become absent minded and put her evening gown on backwards, it would be hailed immediately as a New Fashion . . . for how else could some of these Paris creations get that way? We still think that these new slit-skirts happened just because some clumsy dressmaker cut the wrong place. And most men agree with us; they don't care a whoop about the New Fashions . . . unless, of course, some pretty girl is wearing them.

But Virginia Lee Warren just sniffs, "Oh, you men!" and condescendingly explains the importance of Fashion to us. Virginia Lee is the Fashion Editor of The Washington Post, and she can pronounce ensemble "on-sombl" without batting an eye. She's teddibly, teddibly smart, and she knows whether the dresses next Spring will have ruffles or flounces, and she can forecast waistlines with more accuracy than the AAA's slide-rule experts can predict a corn-crop.

"Fashion," she explains, "is, after Men, the greatest interest in a woman's life. It means keeping in style. It means wearing the right thing at the right place. It means . . . oh, you're a man and wouldn't understand, anyway."

Maybe she's right . . . women so often are, darn 'em. Maybe the problem of a new hat is more important than the California election! Anyway, Mrs. Jones has a miserable time at the week-end dance if her new gown is not absolutely de rigeur, and Miss Smith bungles her dictation if her new Fall outfit is not a later style than that thing the other typist wore down to the office yesterday. That's why the ladies turn to the woman's pages of The Washington Post and study Virginia Lee Warren's fashion column. You see they have to know what They're Wearing This Season, and they have learned that Miss Warren's advice is absolutely necessary. Then, on Sundays, they read Miss Warren's fashion page, which gives many hints on the new frocks and coats and shoes and hats in smart Washington shops. Miss Warren is a friendly beacon in that woman's world which revolves around the dressmakers.

We men can't understand Dame Fashion . . . but we like to see the ladies well dressed . . . and the ladies know it. And . . . whether they select their clothes to please the men . . . or themselves . . . or to lord it over other women . . . they'll be well dressed if they follow the advice of Virginia Lee Warren in

Detective Unit Lacks Supplies, Burke Reveals

17,323 Cases Investigated in Year by 55 Men, Records Show.

What is the exact truth about crime conditions and law enforcement in Washington? In a series of articles, of which this is the sixth, The Post undertakes to answer this question.

The Detective Bureau—universally regarded by criminologists as the heart of any crime detection unit—numbers 55 men in Washington. This small group, under Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke, investigated 17,323 crimes in the fiscal year ending June 30.

Surprising as it may seem, this unit, which includes approximately 4 per cent of the department personnel, made 55 per cent of all arrests for felonies during the year. The total of arrests for felonies was 4,919, and of this number the detective bureau made 2,780.

Handicapped by lack of sufficient personnel and woefully deficient in modern devices for crime suppression, Chief of Detectives Burke believes that his department could function at maximum efficiency with the addition of 25 detective sergeants and a small supply of equipment.

Diversified Calls.

An idea of the diversity of cases and the efficiency of the bureau under handicapped conditions is revealed by the work of the homicide squad, which is composed of seven detective sergeants.

During the year this unit investigated 1,460 cases of violent deaths, or an average of 208 per year for each member. In that period there were 82 murders, of which 74 were solved. Of the remaining eight, the killers are known in six cases; but have not been apprehended.

Ten murders which were committed in nearby States, in which the victims died in District hospitals, were solved.

	Number Reported	Number Cleared
Traffic deaths (D. C. cases)	111	109
Traffic deaths (Occurring outside D. C.)	57	57
Deaths from criminal operations	17	17
Miscellaneous deaths: accidental, falls, burns, drowning, alcoholism and natural causes	979	979
Miscellaneous deaths originating outside D. C., but deaths occurring here	48	48
Justifiable homicide by police and citizens	11	11
Killed by trains	5	5

Tedious Work.

Investigation of a violent death entails many hours of painstaking work. In many cases two or three men sometimes work for weeks and even months before the killers are actually placed under arrest.

Here is a synopsis by Inspector Burke of the various steps followed in the investigation of a violent death: photographing of the death scene and gathering of physical evidence; interviewing and obtaining statements of witnesses; assembling of witnesses for the inquest and attending the hearing; search for the murderers, which sometimes takes months; presentation of the cases to the grand jury, which often requires a full day; attending and testifying at trials, which often takes days.

Frequently the homicide squad detectives are compelled by necessity to halt their search for murderers to assist other squads in the detection of criminals. This occurs whenever a major crime, such as a bank robbery, is perpetrated.

In addition to their specific tasks, the men are detailed every Saturday night to guard shoppers in the downtown section. Whenever there is a public reception of any magnitude, virtually every man is detailed to guard the crowds against pickpockets.

"That outline," Inspector Burke said, "will give one a general idea of what problems confront one squad of this bureau."

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Copper—Reports in the trade indicate a continuance of efforts to promote a meeting of foreign producers to discuss curtailment, although nothing definite has been arranged so far.

Carpet wools—Prices continue firmly held in foreign primary markets in spite of a listless buying interest on the part of American consumers. Imports have been lighter during the past two weeks.

Knit goods—Sales of hosiery and some outerwear lines picked up substantially last week, according to manufacturing quarters.

Zinc—Prices continue soft with buying limited to small amounts for immediate needs.

Paper—Trade sources report a moderate increase in demand for wrapping paper and some gain in orders for fine papers.

Wholesalers Report Dips In Price Trend

New York, Nov. 6.—The slight downward movement registered in the trend of wholesale prices during the latter part of September showed some acceleration during October, with the result that the Dun & Bradstreet Wholesale Commodity Price Index declined for the second month in succession.

The November 1 index stood at $9.2791, a loss of 1.9 per cent from the October 1 figure of $9.4566. The October 1 number, in turn, showed a drop of 0.2 per cent from September 1, when the index reached the peak point for over three and a half years.

The November 1 index, however, still is 5.1 per cent above the January 1, 1934, figure of $8.8329, and compares with $8.8480 on November 1, 1933, or a gain of 4.9 per cent. Comparison with the November 1, 1932, number, ($6.9658) shows a rise of 33.2 per cent.

Number of Advances.

Only 13 of the 96 commodities included is the index advanced during the past month, while 33 registered declines.

Weakness was particularly noticeable in the breadstuffs, livestock, provisions, and naval stores groups, with the metals, oils and miscellaneous groups showing smaller losses.

Advances were recorded in only three groups: fruits, hides and leather, and naval stores. The remaining groups, coal and coke, building materials, and chemicals and drugs remained unchanged.

Monthly Commodity Index.

Following are the group totals comprising the Dun & Bradstreet Monthly Commodity Price Index (the sum total of the price per pound of 96 articles in common use) for November 1, 1934, together with comparative figures for the preceding month and year:

	Nov. 1, 1934	Oct. 1, 1934	Nov. 1, 1933
Breadstuffs	$0.1179	$0.1247	$0.0969

Daily Oil Yield Is Decreased 150,331 Bbls.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 6 (AP).—The elimination of "hot" oil in East Texas and reductions in Oklahoma and California brought total United States crude oil production down 150,331 barrels from 2,445,052 to 2,294,721 barrels last week, the Oil and Gas Journal says.

The total Texas reduction was 90,210 barrels, from 1,058,737 to 968,527 barrels, but there was a drop of almost 100,000 in East Texas, where production fell from 513,329 to 414,770 barrels.

Oklahoma production fell from 439,550 to 400,450 barrels, the lowest point since Gov. Murray ordered the fields shut in during the 10-cent era of 1931.

Kansas production fell from 124,755 to 119,975 barrels. Eastern fields, including Michigan, showed a decrease from 132,374 to 130,736 barrels while the Rocky Mountain area had a slight increase.

Kingsford-Smith Declares Pacific Flying Feasible

Los Angeles, Nov. 6 (AP).—Transpacific commercial flying found a booster today in Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator who on Sunday finished a flight from Australia via Honolulu.

"Of course, trans-pacific flying by commercial planes is feasible," said Sir Charles, "and it will be done by land planes, not seaplanes or flying boats, I believe—or at least it ought to be that way. * * *

"In a short time, when pay load has been increased, without sacrificing fuel load, the California-Honolulu flight will be as simple and devoid of hazards as my own hop was."

The aviator said he would remain here "to fight to the finish" an attachment against his plane filed by E. Beverly, assignee of Tom Cation, who alleged the flier owed him $1,750 for money, goods and service given for his 1928 flight from Oakland to Australia, and $1,000 for interest and service charges.

The aviator said he and his navigator, Capt. P. G. Taylor, may attempt to better the recent record established between London and Melbourne.

Philippine Shipments Of Sugar to U. S. Rise

Shipments of raw sugar from the Philippine Islands to the United States amounted to 1,270,047 long tons from November 1, 1933, to October 15, 1934, an increase of 23.5 per cent when compared with shipments of 1,008,945 tons in the similar 1932-33 period, according to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Refined shipments for the same period totaled 62,873 tons, an increase of 9.4 per cent when compared with the previous period, when 57,451 tons were shipped to this country in a refined state.

Crude Oil Price Raised.

Blackwell, Okla., Nov. 6 (AP).—F. L. Ehle, vice president and general manager of the Globe Oil & Refining Co. of Blackwell today said his company would increase its crude oil price from 62 cents to $1.08 top price for north Oklahoma and Kansas production.

U. S. Grain Exports Rise During Week

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 506,000 bushels against 43,000 the previous week and 356,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

The Commerce Department gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those for the week before:

Barley, 505,000 bushels against 40,000; wheat, 1,000 against 3,000. No exports of corn, oats or rye were reported for either week.

Canadian grain exported last week from United States ports totalled 406,000 bushels against 788,000 the previous week while exports of North American wheat flour were 47,000 barrels against 43,000.

Wool Futures Continue Fall In Past Week

New York, Nov. 6.—Prices of wool top futures on the New York Wool Top Exchange continued to decline during the past week. At the close of the market on Friday, they showed a loss of 13 to 25 points from the previous week's close, with the largest recessions on the nearby months. Trading was quiet. The spot price of the exchange standard certificated top was quoted at the close on Friday at 84.0 cents, as compared with 85.0 cents a week ago.

Domestic consumption of combing and clothing wool for September was 14,647,000 pounds, according to an estimate released during the week by the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. This compared with a consumption of 27,327,000 pounds in August, and 50,248,000 in September a year ago. Consumption for the season, from January 1 to September 30, totaled 243,889,000 pounds, as against 413,147,000 pounds for the corresponding period last season.

Futures abroad closed the week at somewhat higher levels. Prices at Antwerp were up seven-eighths to 1 penny, while at Roubaix they showed an advance of 90 to 110 centimes. Bradford spot quotations were unchanged to up half a penny.

Hoover Hints At Illegal Arms In Morro Castle

Incendiarism, Spontaneous Combustion Also Noted in Final Report.

(Associated Press.)

Possibility that an explosion of contraband munitions aboard the Morro Castle caused the fire which swept the liner and resulted in the death of 134 persons is mentioned in the report Dickerson N. Hoover has made on the tragedy.

Hoover, assistant director of navigation and steamboat inspection, said yesterday his repoft on the disaster also reviewed other possible causes, among them incendiarism, spontaneous combustion and defective electric wiring.

His summary is in the hands of Secretary Roper. A copy has been delivered to Martin Conboy, Federal district attorney in New York, for study in connection with possible criminal proceedings.

"I am not undertaking to state how the fire started," Hoover said. "I don't know how it started. Our job is to analyze all possible causes and let others form the conclusions."

Testimony during the Senate munitions inquiry brought out that it might be a comparatively easy matter to ship munitions on a passenger liner since the Customs Service lacks facilities for checking outbound cargoes.

Proposals that ammunition be smuggled to Latin-American countries aboard crack passenger boats like the Morro Castle were brought out during the hearing, although no specific instances were revealed.

The study of the Morro Castle disaster failed to produce testimony which indicated an explosion started the flames, but Hoover said the munitions angle had been closely scrutinized.

Hoover said his report advocated several specific reforms, among them fireproofing of all vessels, practical examinations for able-bodied seamen and revision of laws limiting the liability of ship owners.

Trade Bodies Join in Move For Better Tourist Routing

Representatives to Meet at Orange Thursday to Map Plans for Convenience of Motorists Visiting Newly Opened Skyline Drive.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). Cooperation in informing tourists of the routes to Washington through this section leading from the Skyline drive will be sought at a joint meeting of the Chambers of Commerce of Fredericksburg, Orange and Charlottesville Thursday at Orange.

The movement to acquaint tourists with the routes in this section has been instituted by the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce, in the belief that many tourists, after taking the Skyline drives are retracing their original routes because of ignorance of routes near here.

Directors of the chambers will attempt to direct attention of motorists to the Seminole Trail into Charlottesville from Ruckersville, and to Washington by way of Gordonsville. Orange and Fredericksburg. It is thought that under present conditions motorists are returning via the Valley of Virgina road or the eastern base of the Blue Ridge.

Fredericksburg representatives who will attend the meeting are B. T. Pitts, chamber of commerce president; C. Archer Smith and E. G. Heflin. The gathering will take place at 10 a. m. in the James Madison Hotel in Orange.

Girl, 14, Who Vanished 5 Days Ago, Is Found

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Jane Merrell, 14-year-old Forest Hills girl missing five days, was found early today in front of an upper East Side rooming house with her father, James E. Merrell, night club manager.

She told police she was supposed to have gone to a Halloween party Wednesday night, but decided to come to New York and was given a ride into the city by a man who hailed her from an automobile. She said the man paid a week's rent for her at an East Seventy-eighth street rooming house, where she gave another name.

$75,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Treasury Department yesterday asked bids for $75,000,000 of Treasury bills of 182-day maturity, to be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Proceeds from the issue, which will be dated November 9, will be used to retire $50,080,000 of maturing obligations, while the rest will be applied to the Treasury balance.

You tested: Seagram's won!

—in 60 days CROWN WHISKIES became America's Favorite!

When Crown Whiskies were introduced Seagram's said frankly—"Test them yourself. Then taste them—and compare!" And what happened? In 60 days CROWN BLENDED WHISKIES became America's favorite medium-priced whiskies!

And why? The answer is inside the bottle! It's in the taste of Seagram's Crown Whiskies. In their mellowness, warmth, and flavor. Remember, they are blended by a house world-famous for 77 years.

HERE'S THE PROFESSIONAL WAY TO TEST WHISKEY

1. Pour a little into a glass. Swish around to moisten glass. 2. Pour whiskey back into bottle. 3. Warm glass. 4. Inhale aroma left in glass.

The aroma of Seagram's moderately priced Crown Whiskies will be mellow, warm and smooth—like that of the most expensive whiskies. Aroma indicates quality—as your taste will verify.

Hauptmann's Lawyer Fights 'Third Degree'

Charges Silent Guards Seek to 'Break Down His Mentality.'

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP). Bruno Richard Hauptmann's New Jersey defense attorney, Lloyd Fisher, today charged the State with subjecting the Lindbergh kidnap-slaying suspect to "an insidious third degree to harass him and break down his mentality."

A grim, silent guard of State troopers and deputy sheriffs, never fewer than five, stands outside Hauptmann's cell night and day, never speaking to the prisoner or to each other.

When the prisoner asks for something, the attorney said, it is handed him without a word. When the guard is changed there are at least ten men outside Hauptmann's cell at one time.

May Ask Troopers' Removal.

"Hauptmann ought not to be subjected to any indignity not imposed on other prisoners held under the same charges," Fisher said, indicating he would ask Attorney General David T. Wilentz to remove the troopers as guards.

Fisher declared the State troopers were part of the prosecution force and should not be allowed continual access to the prisoner lest they question him improperly.

"We have no objection to a guard of deputy sheriffs, but we do object to the troopers," the lawyer said. "This is a State police case and the troopers should be withdrawn from the guard."

Wilentz Stands on Rights.

Wilentz, informed at his Perth Amboy home of Fisher's statements, said the State police "have a right to maintain a guard."

"I will consider Mr. Fisher's request for a reduction of Hauptmann's guard when he writes me setting forth specifically the defense's complaint," Wilentz said.

"Hauptmann has been extended privileges not ordinarily accorded a man charged with murder. He has been allowed to see his wife daily and his child frequently although defense counsel asked for only three days a week for Mrs. Hauptmann and one visit a week for the child."

1,000 Treasury Clerks To Hold Rally Today

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., will address more than 1,000 Treasury Department employes in a department rally for the Community Chest at 5 p. m. today in the Commerce Department auditorium.

Maj. Gen. Frederick Coleman, chairman of the governmental unit of the campaign, also will speak, while Assistant Secretary L. W. Robert, jr., chairman of the Treasury unit, will preside.

Key leaders have been designated so that, for the 17,000 Treasury employes, there will be a key man for each 40 employes.

Baltimore—Mrs. Mary Fleetwood, who is 68, voted today for the first time in her life. She cast the ballot in the Sixth Precinct, Fourth Ward, which is in the same block as her home.

Leonardtown — The 470 cattle shipped to pasturage in St. Mary's County from Western drought areas are faring well, according to County Agent G. Frank Wathen. The cattle are now so fat that they will be shipped out for slaughter not later than November 18, Wathen said.

Cumberland—Cumberland parents will go to school again Thursday night. They have been invited to Allegany High School here and will go through the same routine—with shorter class hours—as their children go through every day.

Leonardtown—The job of innoculating 5,000 St. Mary's County elementary school children against diphtheria has been started by Dr. Donald St. Claire, county health officer. Clinics are being held in various schools of the county.

Frederick—The Frederick Ministerial Union has designated November 25 as the day on which all ministers will cooperate in the drive for cleaner moving pictures. Pledges will be distributed to various congregations, and ministers will preach their views on the subject.

Frederick—The fact that the State roads boundary sign marking the boundary line between Washington and Frederick Counties has been moved several times did not keep Robert D. Webber, Mary C. Webber and Margaret E. Moler from voting in Frederick County today. Their registrations in Frederick County were challenged but it was held in criminal court here that their names should not be stricken from the books, though the court also held it was not in a position to rule on the county boundary line.

$250,000 Left Without a Will

Hainen's 5 Brothers and Sisters Are Heirs.

An estate valued at $250,000 was left by Joseph Hainen, who died October 17, it was shown yesterday, when a petition seeking permission to administer his estate was filed in the District Supreme Court.

The petition disclosed that he left no will. He is survived by five brothers and sisters who will share in the estate unless other heirs are discovered. They are Anne Hainen, Samuel R. Hainen and Alice L. Reynolds, all of Edgemere, Long Island; Ethel G. Jenkins, Meadville, Pa., and Joseph Hainen, of Ohio.

The National Metropolitan Bank, R. P. Hollingsworth, trust officer of the bank, and E. C. Sasser, of Washington, were suggested as administrators of the estate. They said the estate was made up of $236,000 in personal property and real estate in North Carolina of an undisclosed value.

Phantom Thief Is Sought Here

New Robbery Spurs Police on Trail of Raider in Northwest.

Police are on the trail of an elusive sneak-thief, believed responsible for a series of robberies throughout fashionable residential sections for nearly two years.

No one has seen the suspected robber and only once has he been near capture. He is credited with loot totaling $10,000 and follows the same routine on each "job."

Police increased efforts to apprehend the phantom intruder following his appearance in the home of Goodwin P. Graham, 3000 Thirty-fifth street northwest early yesterday. Graham reported loss of jewelry valued at $230.

Operating in the Chevy Chase and Cleveland Park sections, the thief enters a house, turns off the main electric light switch and plugs the front door key-hole with wax, matches and tooth picks. Apparently he waits until he knows a house is empty and breaks in a basement window.

A Chevy Chase resident was awakened from a nap and grappled with the intruder, but was unable to describe him to police. One time, police said, he remained in a house for three hours, ransacking rooms and rifling drawers.

Washington's Bohemia

Close by on every side, Washington's noisy traffic throbs . . . but within the haven of St. Matthew's Court, silence hangs like a veil. Here is the Capital's Bohemia . . . a little labyrinth of studios, formerly stables, where live painters, sculptors and artists are supposed to have a peculiar genius for other things besides painting. Yet, while New York's Greenwich Village may be fertile ground for wild life and Paris' Latin Quarter the perfect setting for Bacchanalian orgies . . . Washington's Bohemia has only decorum, peace, a certain quaint, well-flavored beauty . . . and a white rabbit named Kiki. Virginia Lee Warren introduces Post readers to St. Matthew's Court in a fascinating story today.

New D.C. Crime Committee to Push Program

Chairman for Permanent Criminal Justice Body to Be Selected.

The newly appointed permanent committee on criminal justice will hold its organization meeting the latter part of this week, F. Regis, president of the District Bar Association, said yesterday.

Its first duty will be to select a chairman from among its nine members, after which it will map a tentative program of procedure.

Meanwhile, nominees for three other anticrime groups are being sought.

Noel is considering nominees to be proposed to the bar association's committee of 40 next Monday for the committee on criminal procedure and on police case prosecutions.

A vigilance committee, sponsored by the Federation of Citizens Associations, is being chosen by James G. Yaden, president, and will be announced within a few days.

The permanent committee is expected to have a proposed legislative program prepared in time for consideration at the anticrime conference to be held December 10, under auspices of the Department of Justice and the American Bar Association.

Changes in laws affecting criminal procedure, and probably an amendment to the District parole law, doubtless will be recommended by the committee to Congress.

Farm Students in 25 Counties Of Va. Earn $113,189 in 1934

High School Boys Cultivated 2,747 Acres and Cared for 3,652 Animals, 98,997 Fowls; Nursery of 10,000 Plants was one Project.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Income from projects of boys pursuing courses in vocational agriculture in high schools of 25 counties in northern and western Virginia during the past year amounted to $113,189.72, according to a statement issued today by D. J. Howard, supervisor.

During the same period students cultivated 2,747 acres and cared for 3,652 animals and 98,997 fowls. A nursery containing 10,000 plants was the project of one student.

Declaring that a survey made at higher institutions of learning in Virginia has revealed high school school students who pursue courses in agriculture four years are able to equal and often excel in proficiency other student classifications, Mr. Howard said he believes the trend is toward increased facilities for teaching those who wish to become farmers.

Counties in Mr. Howard's division to which the figures quoted apply include Louisa, Fauquier, Greene, Clarke, Rockingham, Botetourt, Augusta, Madison, Culpeper, Shenandoah, Stafford, Richmond, Warren, Goochland, Fairfax, Albemarle, King George, Loudoun, Prince William, Bath, Frederick, Westmoreland, Orange and Rappahannock, and the City of Winchester.

Court Orders Release Of Machado's Brother

Havana, Nov. 6 (AP).—An order for the release of Arlos Machado, brother of former President Gerardo Machado, reached Cabana Prison today, but officials said Machado would not be released until they are certain no other charges are pending against him.

The release order came from the court of sanctions of Santa Clara which exonerated Machado of charges of attempted murder.

Whenever you hear anyone mention the "Result Number," he is talking about Post Classified Ads—National 4200.

Arm Out of Sling, Nice Able to Grasp Pencil for Voting

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—Harry W. Nice, Republican gubernatorial candidate, was able to remove his arm from a sling today for the first time since he suffered a fracture early in the campaign.

Nice found he was unable to raise the arm, but could grasp a pencil long enough to mark his ballot.

Crushed Body Found on Road

Clinton Webster Thought to Have Been Killed by Hit-Run Driver.

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 6 (AP).—The crushed body of Clinton Webster, 45, of Deals Island, was found this morning on the Princess Anne-Salisbury highway near here. Authorities investigating the accident believed Webster was the victim of a hit-and-run driver, but had no clews as to the identity of the driver.

Webster was last seen early last night walking along the highway toward Salisbury. Motorists came upon the body today.

Indefinite Leave Given School Chief

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—At a special meeting of the Loudoun County school board this morning, Superintendent of Schools O. L. Emerick, who has been in ill-health for the past few months, was given an indefinite leave of absence. Mrs. Emile N. Windle, Loudoun County rural supervisor, was appointed acting superintendent.

Due to the crowded condition in the Lincoln Colored School, the board ordered the Purcellville primary teacher to supply half a day at the Lincoln School.

Alvin T. Kline, of Nokesville, Va., was appointed principal of the Aldie High School to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. B. Potts.

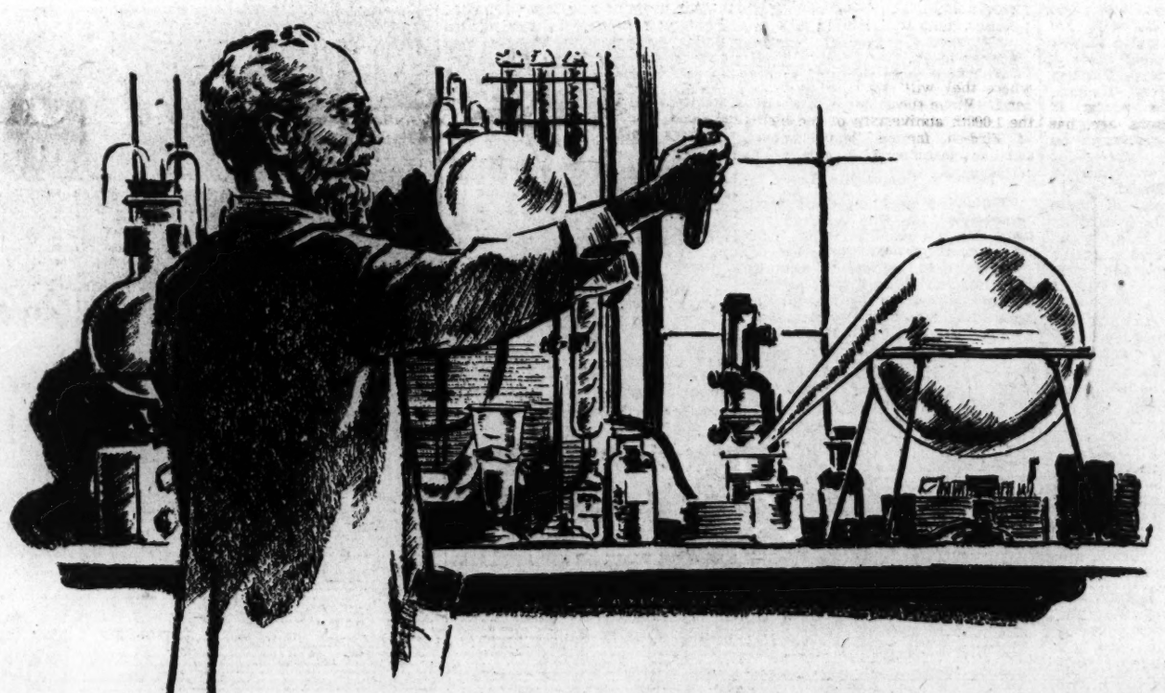
ELEMENTS OF PROGRESS

Determination



PASTEUR possessed high purpose and stanch determination. Toiling with inspired resolve, he saved the brewing industry from destruction by creating the microbe-arresting process of pasteurization. And his determination to confound those who scoffed brought him to a discovery that rescued silk growers from the silkworm plague that was causing their ruin.

Vigorous determination carried this frail little paralytic to heights of noble service. Poultry raisers could thank his invincible will for saving their fowl from the ravages of cholera. His anthrax vaccine arrested the cruel sheep death that was starving herders. And, each year, thousands owe their lives to his determination to conquer rabies from the bite of a dog.

Pasteur's determination founded an epoch of medical progress.

DETERMINATION to give Washington the best newspaper that brains and skill and response to reader demand can produce is accountable for The Post's amazing progress. This determination has brought thousands of new readers to The Post every month for the past year.

The qualities that attract new readers intensify the interest of old readers. And bring increased results to the advertiser who intelligently places his product before these readers.

De Farraras Pay Fleeting Visit to City

Friends Disappointed as They Learn Popular Couple Has Left.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The news that the popular former Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Ferrara had been in Washington on a fleeting visit en route from Virginia to New York, where they now make their home, reached the attention of Washington society after they had left. It caused no end of consternation among their many friends, who would have flocked to greet them on their first visit here since their departure more than a year ago. The de Ferrars left the Capital in the spring of 1933 and returned to the island republic, where Dr. Ferrara became Secretary of State.

After the change of government in Cuba, and a good deal of trouble, Dr. and Senora de Ferrara went to New York, where they are established at the Ritz-Carlton. Dr. Ferrara, who is an Italian by birth, is a most interesting person, and his wife is a most charming hostess.

A Favored Rendezvous.

While they were here the embassy was a rendezvous not only for the members of official, diplomatic and resident society of their own generation, but also a favorite place for young people to gather for afternoon tea, or for the fencing matches which the Ambassador with several of his friends arranged three or four times a week.

It was a delightful place to drop in for a cocktail or tea in the late afternoon, when small groups gathered in the library, a huge oak paneled room, to watch Dr. De Ferrara, a famous duelist at one time, test the prowess of his competitors. And to all of their larger, as well as small, dinners, a number of young people always were invited to ease the formality of an embassy dinner. Dr. De Ferrara is also the author of the "Life and Letters of Machiavelli," which has been translated into English, and Senora De Ferrara is the proud author of a little book of memoirs of her trip from Tokio to Moscow written several years ago when Dr. De Ferrara was returning to Europe after presenting his credentials as Cuban ambassador to Japan. The book was privately printed and presented in lieu of Christmas cards to her friends.

De Ferraras Guests at Tea.

Last Sunday Dr. and Senora De Ferrara were guests at a tea given by Mrs. Victor A. I. Llewelyn, another erstwhile Washingtonian who is in New York from her home in London. Mrs. Llewleyn, the former Mrs. Alicia duPont Glendenning, who spent the winter in Washington two seasons ago, has taken a charming apartment on East Seventy-fourth street for several months, and on Sunday a delightful group gathered in her drawing room. Many of them knew the De Ferraras from their Washington days, and to many inquiries, Senora De Ferrara replied that she and her husband were planning to return to the Capital later this winter for a real visit, and please to tell everybody who was interested that they hoped to see all their friends in the not too distant future.

Dr. de Ferrara is no longer wearing the dapper mustache which he affected when here, but says he plans to grow another before coming to Washington, so his friends will not find him changed!

Mrs. Llewelyn ot Return.

Mrs. Llewelyn, who has not been in Washington since last spring, also is planning to renew friendships here in the near future, and will arrive early in Thanksgiving week to visit for about a week. Her half-sister, Miss Emily Maddox, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Amory Maddox, will go to New York the end of next week to visit with Mrs. Llewelyn for several days, and the first of the following week they will come to the Capital together.

Old English Fair and Dinner To Be Given on November 22

The women of the Rector's Aid Society of All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church are again marshaling their forces to make their big event of the year, the Old English Fair and dinner on November 22, an even greater success than it was last year.

This year the women are striving, not only to meet expectations of last year, but to add new touches of interest and color.

The famous old inns, the White Horse and the Red Lion, will again offer savory dinners.

Gay booths will display gifts of many kinds, also sweetmeats and Banbury tarts.

An added interest will be the Old Curiosity Shoppe, while the old English folk dances on the green, and the English song group in the lovely garden will all help to create again the atmosphere of those early years in merrie England.

Dr. Stokowski Leads Concert Here Tomorrow

Rachmaninoff Is Soloist With Philadelphia Orchestra.

Dr. Leopold Stokowski, conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra tomorrow night at Constitution Hall, has chosen as the opening number a concert suite arranged from Igor Stravinsky's colorful ballet, "The Fire Bird," which was performed for the first time in America in 1916 by the Ballet Russe in New York City. The six movements of the suite include "Introduction," "The Fire Bird and Her Dance," "Dance of the Princesses," "Kastchei's Infernal Dance," "Berceuse" and "Finale." The music is as creative and imaginative as the theme suggests, even as his "Petrouchka" and "Sacre du Printemps."

The Brahms Symphony No. 3, in F major, will form the entire second half of the evening program and Sergei Rachmaninoff, the guest soloist, will be heard in his new composition, "Rhapsodie on a Theme of Paganini," and the occasion is made even more notable because it will be the premiere of this new composition, which was completed by the great Russian composer-pianist last summer.

Mary Howe's "Sand" will be the other number on the program, which is under the local management of the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, is a patroness for the concert.

Mrs. William Phillips has taken a box, and well-known members of the Diplomatic Corps, including the Minister of Portugal and Senora Dona de Bianchi, Senor Don Rafael Fuentes, First Secretary, and Senor Don Alfredo Garduno Pombo, Third Secretary of the Mexican Embassy, will attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend will entertain distinguished guests in their box, including the Princess de Ligne, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Belgian Embassy; the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila, and the Baron von Grengal-Douglas, Charge d'Affaires ad interim of The Netherlands Legation.

Luncheon Give At Mayflower

Mrs. Hood Entertains for Her Daughter and Miss Dampman.

Mrs. Charles Emerson Hood entertained at a luncheon yesterday in the presidential dining room of the Mayflower Hotel for his daughter, Miss Aileen Vaiden Hood and Miss Marjorie Dampman, debutante daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Paul E. Dampman.

The centerpiece of the luncheon table was an effective arrangement of corsages of delicate pink rosebuds with satin streamers going to the places of the guests.

The guests included Miss Silvine Clagett, Miss Anne Clarkson, Miss Mildred English, Miss Frida Frazer, Miss Lucie Fridell, Miss Mildred Brown, Mrs. James F. Hood, Miss Nancy Lesh, Miss Moss Lee Love, Miss Mary Tyler McCormack, Miss Estherbelle McHarg, Miss Margaret McMullen, Miss Mary Katharine Spinks, Miss Margaret Speir, Miss Marie Whitehurst and Miss Jean Wolfe.

Mrs. Charles W. Fairfax will be hostess at the dinner at the Arts Club tonight, preceding the concert by Winifred Howell Artaud, pianist; Anne Yego McGuffey, soprano, and Fanny Amstutz Roberts, accompanist.

Deb's Diary

Who, What and Where —as She Sees It.

DEAR DIARY:

The other day, while tea-ing at the Mayflower I met two attractive brunette debutantes from Richmond, Helen Jones, who had just made her debut at home, and Glenn Parkinson, who is to be presented in December.

They had come to Washington for a few days and were being shown the sights by Mary Patterson. We are very much delighted they have promised to return later in the season for another visit.

Let's hope that no one mentions overcoats or keys to Bob McCandlish, at least not for a while. After the experience of the other evening when, with the keys in the overcoat pocket and the coat taken by mistake by some one who left a coat without key in the pocket, a huge silver punch bowl was left to the spooky mercy of a dark and deserted club, small wonder that Bob just doesn't like coats and keys.

William Phillips Takes New House

Occupies Hicks Residence on Thirtieth Street.

The Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips have recently moved to 2211 Thirtieth street, just around the corner from the house they occupied last year, the former Hungarian Legation. Their new house is the home of Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks. They will entertain at a dinner dance on New Year's Eve in honor of Miss Jean Martineau, who with her mother, Mrs. Cyril Martineau, is spending the winter here from England.

While here Miss Martineau will be a guest at the White House. She is a niece of the United States Minister to Canada, Mr. Warren Delano Robbins, and is therefore related to President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Martineau and her daughter are visiting Mrs. Price Collier in New York, mother of Mr. Robbins and sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Cummings Back In Washington From New York

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has returned from New York.

On Friday the Attorney General and Mrs. Cummings were guests of honor at a dinner given at the Parke Lane, in New York, by Mrs. Bartow S. Weeks in celebration of Mrs. Cummings' birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Weeks had her country estate, Halcyon Point, on Grenadier Island, reproduced in miniature for table decorations, with a large birthday cake replica of her home.

The table was covered with green moss and dotted with trees. Flower beds with butterflies, collected on the estate last summer, also were part of the decoration, with gravel paths and small lamp posts completing the picture.

Among the other guests were Former Gov. and Mrs. Horace White, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Justice Harmon Black, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hackett, Stamford, Conn.; Maj. and Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lafayette Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin LaRue, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kremer, Mr. and Mrs. Rapelge Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schewlzel, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bonham, Riverside, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. John C. Newman, and Mr. Herbert Bingham, Washington.

New Brassiere Is Strapless And Backless

By Katherine Smith.

AT LAST, ladies, here's the bit of underwear you've been waiting for. A backless, strapless, invisible brassiere. It's just a scrap of net and satin, some little hooks, and four tabs of adhesive tape to stick on your skin. Two tabs go in the front, under the shoulders, and two in the back, just a little behind and below the arm. The adhesive is specially made, will not slip, is easily applied, will not leave a smudge when removed. Each brassiere comes with two sets of tabs and more may be purchased when these give out.

Another model has the usual elastic strap crossing in the back and fastening in front, but is also equipped with the adhesive tabs in place of straps.

The backless variety is $1.50, and the one with the elastic strap, $2.

Another strapless brassiere is wired across the top. Still another has a little ribbon running through the top, which can be pinned or tied to the underside of the dress.

New Beauty Kit.

A new beauty kit is on the market. It includes cold cream, beautifying cream, a liquid cleanser, skin tonic and powder. The kit, which is modestly priced at $1, would make a fine gift. It is attractively boxed, with soft velvet linings.

Triangular Scarfs.

Triangular scarfs leave the football field, and appear with evening dresses. These serve double duty, like so many other things, and are reversible. One side is a crepe material shot through with gold, the other side is soft gleaming lame. Suitable for formal afternoon dresses, informal dinner frocks, you'll need one to supplement your wardrobe. Only $1.95. Other styles at the same price are plain lame and plaid lame.

With the general glitter that accompanies evening activities, these scarfs will make you feel extra sparkling.

Dagger Bottles.

Here's a perfume bottle that won't tip over for the simple reason that it's intended to lie on its side. It's shaped like a long, slim dagger, fashioned of cut crystal, with a really gorgeous stopper, ending in a glass dauber. You can get these dagger bottles in amethyst blue and clear crystal.

Another dagger bottle is dangerously curved. White ones with red crystal stoppers are stunning. These come also in blue glass.

While you're in this store, please look at the imported bottles, bathroom sets, and perfume containers. There's every kind of bottle you could wish, and every color. Some are clear crystal, with polka dots in colors; others are painted with lilies of the valley. There are square glass bottles labeled, or unlabeled, to hold your mouth wash, antiseptic or cotton. These come in clear crystal trimmed with black; amethyst, green, or amber, trimmed with gold. Very heavy looking and altogether smart. No bathroom is well dressed without them.

Artist Smock Pajamas.

Even if you aren't an artist, you'll want an artist's smock. Why? Because the artist smock pajama is about the best thing to lounge around in. They're made of sunfast percale, dark blue or red backgrounds with white dots. They have long sleeves, a dashing bow at the neck, and inverted pleats in the back. And, best of all, the price is only $1.95.

The roominess of the smock is as comfortable as it is becoming. Its length prevents the "parting in the middle" that is so prevalent among most two-piece affairs.

China Made to Order.

If you need any made-to-order china, there's a Thirteenth street shop that will reproduce, within reason and manufacturing ability, any color, or combinations of colors, you wish. Hand-painted pieces may be made to order, too.

You select your shape from the undecorated samples and there are many styles from which to choose. Lovely tea sets, with tall pots, sugar bowls and creamers, short fat nut dishes, lovely Grecian looking lamp standards are in the collection.

Look at the gold china on display. The shop has its own formula for this gold work, and the workmanship is so fine that the china pieces look solid.

Novelty Perfume Bottle.

That silly little man in the high hat is a perfume bottle, no less. His black hat unscrews when you want to dab your perfume. He's very short and squat, with an altogether foolish face, but he's amusing, and costs, plus perfume inside him, only half a dollar.

Call Katherine Smith, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 105, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Ensemble Is Suitable For Day and Evening

Pattern No. 648.

THIS ENSEMBLE was designed with a thought of the woman who must look efficient and business-like all day, feminine and "dressed-up" for an engagement in the evening. The dress, made of dark silk with pastel silk or metallic cloth for the blouse section, is quite formal enough for restaurant and theater. Slip on the little jacket and the ensemble is appropriate for daytime wear. The pattern may also be used for a dinner gown with "drawstring" neckline.

The sizes are 14 to 20; 32 to 38. Size 18 (36) requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch fabric for the short length skirt and jacket; 1⅜ yards of 39-inch fabric for the blouse section. The dinner dress and jacket require a total of 6⅛ yards of 39-inch fabric.

"Leave It to Me," Said Hound Dog.

When Hound Dog got to Blackie's house he found him walking up and down in front of his door, and Jay Bird had just that moment got there Blackie told Hound Dog that all about missing Billie for two or three days, and that his bed had been cold all the time, so he knew he hadn't slept at home. Jay Bird had already told Hound Dog that he had flown all around the neighborhood, but couldn't find any 'possum hide nor any other sign of Billie. Yes, he had been to Mr. Man's house, too, but he didn't see anything there to make him think that Billie had been there. He didn't go to the kitchen, and he didn't hear Mr. Man and his wife talking about anything. And he hadn't seen Hee-Haw. He did see Rover Dog lying out in the grass, like he was dead, just as he did lots of times, but he didn't learn anything at all.

"All right," said Hound Dog, "If Billie's skin is still on his back it will stay there. And now, Blackie, I wish you would stay right here. There are enough of us to find him, and you ought to be here so any of us can come to you at any time. The birds can help more than you can in the woods."

"I hate mighty bad not to be out hunting for that boy when I know he is in trouble," and Blackie, but maybe you are right. I am mighty big to be running around in the day time, and since so many folks think I am dead, I reckon I had better let them keep right on thinking so. Somehow, I feel like you are going to find Billie, and I want Jay Bird to go along with you, so he can fly back and tell me just as soon as you get on Billie's track. I just wouldn't have anything happen to that boy for the world. The old "Grinning Jake!" I don't know how we would ever get along without him. Now go ahead, and don't you come back here without Billie."

"Just have an extra place fixed at your table for a late supper," said Hound Dog, as he and Jay Bird started off toward Uncle Joe's.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Bed Wetting.

BED wetting is a common symptom, and, in the majority of cases, may be identified as a nervous manifestation. The number of children who give regular or occasional evidence of the symptoms is fairly high.

After one has ruled out the routine physical causes, such as bladder abnormality, disease of the kidneys, or metabolism disorders such as diabetes, the cause may be ascribed either to faulty training or to the existence of a nervous tendency.

It is frequently noted that bed wetting may occur following days or evenings of unusual excitement, or of vigorous play. The symptom following nervous excitability may be due to an increased secretion of urine and hence greater pressure in the bladder.

We are inclined to forget that the child's bladder is quite small and that relaxation of the sphincter muscle, even under moderate pressure, may result during deep sleep. Many mothers will say, "My child sleeps so soundly that it is difficult to arouse him." In spite of the contradictory conclusions of some authors it would appear reasonable that sleep may be so sound that stimulation from a filled bladder will fail to wake the child. Many children, however, waken as soon as the bladder has been emptied, aroused no doubt by a sense of discomfort.

Preventive measures have been tried, such as restricting fluid after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, waking the child at stated intervals, avoiding sleeping on the back, and elevating the foot of the bed. All of these may be helpful to some extent. Occasionally a child will be aroused by the sense of a full bladder, but not sufficiently so to get out of bed. Others can be trained to recognize the first symptom and respond to it.

Balanced Meal Can Be Cooked In 30 Minutes

Simplicity Is the Secret of Planning; Menus Are Suggested.

By Dorothea Duncan.

EVERY employed woman who maintains an apartment faces daily the same problem: "Shall I go home and prepare dinner or is it worth the trouble?"

However, if she doesn't go home and enjoy the fun of cooking, half the pleasure of having an apartment is lost. Moreover, a well balanced meal can be prepared in 20 to 30 minutes, and the time spent in the kitchen will be so short that the results will be gratifying, and leisure time will not be encroached upon.

The whole secret then is to plan a meal for simplicity. The following menus can be prepared in at least 30 minutes.

Dinner Menus.

Cream of mushroom soup
Corn with scrambled eggs
Broiled sausage links
Whole wheat toast
Apricot marmalade
Avacado salad with French dressing.
Coffee

Tomato juice cocktail
Broiled lamb chops with pineapple rings
Green asparagus tips Pickled beets
Rolls Butter
Ice cream with chocolate sauce
Tea

Fruit cup
Beef stew
Broccoli with melted butter
Lettuce and tomato salad
Crackers and Roquefort cheese
Coffee or milk

The simplicity of the above menus is in the number of dishes that need little or no preparation. Many of the dishes are canned foods, and yet, if treated with a little imagination and a touch of originality, they will please the most particular appetite. For example, try this recipe for corn and scrambled eggs, and see how a bit of canned corn will turn a breakfast dish into a tempting dinner one.

Beat four eggs well with ¼ cup cream, ¼ teaspoon salt and a little pepper. Add ½ cup whole kernel canned corn and cook in a frying pan with butter or bacon fat, stirring well until eggs are cooked and creamy. Served with broiled sausage links.

Here are a few suggestions that will help you when you plan and prepare 30-minute meals. There are many canned soups, stews, prepared spaghettis, etc., on the market that are equally as good as the homemade article. If you include these staples among your quickly prepared foods you will have a greater variety from which to choose. A market list will add to your efficiency in shopping. There is nothing that so wastes time as a hurried trip to the store for a forgotten loaf of bread. Plan your cooking routine so that all the dishes taking the most preparation are started first. This will leave time while they are cooking to set the table, pour the water and make the coffee. A working table where all the foods may be gathered together before the actual preparation of dinner begins saves time and extra steps.

Vote for Women Drive Outlined

A CAMPAIGN to obtain the vote for women in the District of Columbia was outlined by Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president of the National League of Women Voters at the semiannual dinner of the District of Columbia League of Women Voters held at the club house of the American Association of University Women last night.

Miss Wells spoke on "Fifteen Years of Enfranchisement and the League of Women Voters." The strength of the league, she pointed out, lay in the policy of concentration on a few important issues, and working to pass suitable legislation regarding them.

A series of eight meetings to study unemployment insurance has been arranged by Mrs. William Kittle, chairman of the committee on Government and economic welfare. The first meeting will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. At that time Mrs. Kittle will review the history of unemployment insurance.

This winter the league will study and discuss unemployment in England and Europe, the attitude of labor toward unemployment insurance, plans for unemployment insurance already in existence, compulsory plans for unemployment insurance, such as those in Ohio and Wisconsin and the findings of the President's commission on unemployed.

Mrs. Edna Johnston, chairman of a subcommittee on government and its operations, has organized a group to study national representation for the District of Columbia.

Miss Charters to Speak On Character Education

The method of procedure and some of the results expected by the inauguration of character education in the local schools will be discussed this morning before the meeting of the Women's Guild of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Miss Margaret Charters, who is associated with Miss Bertie Backus, assistant superintendent of schools, will speak on "Character Education in the Public Schools."

Educator Tells Teaching Gains

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (Spl.).—In developing individuals for effective social usefulness, education reaches its highest triumph, Dr. Eugene A. Colligan, president of Hunter College, told members of the Educational Records Bureau at the Hotel Roosevelt today.

Only when education produces a citizenry trained to think things through independently and honestly, and addressing itself with courage and intelligence to the wise solutions of the problems of social and economic life which beset the people, is the money spent for education a prudent social investment, Dr. Colligan said.

"The proper development of the individual student necessitates sound guidance," he continued. "Even as the medical profession developed the barometer and the stethescope, so also has the teaching profession developed and refined standards by which the individual diagnosis and treatment of student difficulties may be aided.

Crepes Suzette Invented by Boy, Named by King

THE ORIGIN of crepes Suzette is revealed in Henri Carpentier's new book, "Life a la Henri."

Henri invented the sweet himself, when he was only 14, he relates. The Prince of Wales, later to become King Edward VII, and a little girl were the guests of Henri at the Cafe de Paris in Monte Carlo.

"Bonjour," said the prince, "What shall we have for luncheon today?"

"A sweet never before served to anyone," said Henri, and began experimenting with French pancakes. Into the bubbling butter he poured maraschino, curacao and kirschwasser; and, to his alarm, they caught fire. But he could not admit error to a prince; he tested, and thought he had discovered perfection. The Prince of Wales thought so, too, and asked Henri the name of his dish. Henri was French, royalist and grammatical. He must name his dish for the prince, but pancakes in the French language are feminine.

"Crepes princess," said Henri.

"But there is a lady present!" exclaimed the prince, "Call them crepes Suzette." And so they were named.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

IF NOVEMBER 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 4:45 to 6:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

On this November 7 a friend may reveal a trait of character which might surprise you pleasantly and prove to your satisfaction that there is such a thing as loyalty. You may have a very lucky break in a business transaction, or some deal involving money. This should be a very auspicious day for the planning of definite lines of activities whether of a commercial or social nature.

Social activities will divert your mind and prove enjoyable providing you do not overtax your nerves and physical self by keeping unreasonable hours. Married and engaged couples, as well as those trying to impress someone with their qualifications to become a worthy husband or wife, will avoid complications if they stick to the plain, unvarnished truth and do no try to "pull the wool" over their beloved one's eyes.

If a woman and November 7 is your birthday, your charitable disposition and readiness to understand the other person's mental reactions has gained you probably more sincere love and admiration than you realize. An abundance of money may evenutally be yours to do with as you please. You should be very skillful with your fingers. If you apply yourself in a commercial way to some line applying to the culinary art, you might not only make a reputation well worth while, but also money.

Helping Declarer to Make Up His Mind.

One of the prettiest stratagems of defensive play is to help the declarer make up his mind to adopt the losing line instead of the winning line when he has a choice of plays. Naturally this stratagem depends upon several factors. First, the declarer must have a reasonable choice; second, one line of play must lose and the other win; third, his opponents must be able to infer the entire situation; fourth, the cards held by the defense must admit of a persuasive false-card or other play that will induce declarer to continue an actually losing line.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K 10 9 7 ♡ 9 4 3 ◇ A J 10 2 ♣ 8 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1◇	1♡
1NT	Pass	2♠	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the five of hearts, and South won the ten with the Queen. Declarer could now count two top hearts, four diamond tricks and the Ace of Clubs. For the two additional tricks he must develop either the spades or the clubs. He would have to develop his two additional tricks, probably, with only one intervening loss of the lead, since the moment he lost the lead another heart lead would establish the suit.

Declarer could be fairly certain that East held the club King and the spade Ace for his heart bid, but there was no way of placing the spade Queen and the club Jack. It was fairly certain that one additional club trick could be won through the finesse of the Queen, but the second must come out of winning a finesse against the Jack of clubs. The chance for extra tricks in spades similarly lay in winning a finesse against the Queen. The relative chances of the two black suits to produce the needed additional tricks therefore appeared to be even.

There was some question whether it would be worth while cashing the diamonds, first in order to try to compel some informative discards, but South did not like the idea of being compelled to discard on the fourth diamond himself. South finally decided to develop the spades and he therefore led a small spade to the ten-spot.

The East player had been thinking along with South, step by step, and realized South's dilemma. East knew that his bid had marked him for the spade Ace, and if he won the spade trick, with the Queen South would be compelled to abandon the spade suit and play for a double finesse in clubs. East therefore unhesitatingly won with the spade Ace and returned the heart King.

It must be recorded that the South player was highly suspicious of the play of the spade Ace. In fact, he remarked:

"I know perfectly well that if you have the Ace-Queen you will win with the Ace to double-cross me. But what can I do about it? You couldn't afford to duck the trick in any event, so you have to make the same play from the Ace without the Queen."

South led another spade and finessed again, and East earned the reward of his stratagem.

Dietitian Defends Children's Tastes

CHOOSY little Junior and Jane—who look with such critical hospitality at the nature of the viands heaped helpfully upon their plates by anxious mother—have a champion in Miss Virginia Speicher, who has been conducting child-feeding experiments at Riley Memorial Hospital in Indianapolis.

Miss Speicher is convinced children often have better judgment in selecting a meal than most parents give them credit for. Checking up on children permitted to choose their rations from a cafeteria table on wheels, Miss Speicher discovered they consumed 10 per cent more calories when left to their own discretions and the waste in food amounted to a pound less a week per child.

JENNIFER HALE

By Rob Eden

(Contined From Yesterday.)

JOHN MANTLE, the night manager of Moore House, didn't come on duty until 6, so Andy sought him in his room. They had become acquainted during the trial, for Mantle had attended several sessions. At first the conversation was general, then Young gradually led it to the place where he wanted it.

"Corey made out a check for the rent the night he died, didn't he?"

"Sure did. Probably the last check he made out. I didn't think when I put it in the safe that he wouldn't make out another." The night manager was glad of the chance to talk about the Corey murder. Nothing like it had ever happened to him before, and nothink like it was likely to happen to him again, so he was making the most of it. As one of the witnesses for the state he had entered the witness box to tell his part in the finding of the body of David Corey.

"What time was it that he gave you the check?"

Always Was Prompt.

"Well, he came in a few minutes after I'd taken the desk, and he came right up to me and said, 'John, I guess it's the 1st of the month and I owe you $150.' Then right at the dask before me he made out the check. I handed him a blotter and he blotted it, and then he gave it to me and went upstairs. He was always very prompt with the rent. With all his bills. Wish some of the other tenants were, too."

"He had his check book with him, I suppose? You didn't have to give him a check?"

"Oh, no." Mantle went on to extol Corey some more, and lament the passing of a good tenant. It was some time before Andy could get in his next question. "Kept his check book in his hip pocket?"

"No, Mr. Young, in his inside coat pocket, the usual pocket. I've seen him take it from that pocket many and many a time."

So the check book had fallen from the deep inside coat pocket and buried itself behind the velvet cushions of the elevator seat, had it?

Andy didn't think so. He thought the check book had been placed behind the cushions of the elevator seat—deliberately.

"Mrs. Richardson was telling me that one of the elevator boys found the check book in the elevator the day after Corey's death."

"Yeah. He must have dropped it when he went upstairs. I wasn't on the desk when it was found, but the day man told the boy to take it to Mrs. Richardson, which he did."

"Police never brought up the loss of it, I suppose?"

"No, it wasn't important."

Mantle wanted to talk more, but Andy broke away as soon as he could. His next job was to get hold of Ted Bollinger, the elevator boy on duty the night of September 1. Bollinger was now working days, so Young strode immediately to the elevator. The trip downstairs to Mantle's room, he had made by the stairway. To the boy he flashed a star, not an official one, but Ted thought it was and he had a great respect for the law since the murder.

"You took David Corey to the fifth floor at about a quarter after six on September 1?" Andy asked sternly.

"Yes, sir—but I've told everything I could remember. There's nothing more I know."

"Perhaps not, but I'm checking up a new angle of the case. Have to ask routine questions, that's all. What time did you take him down for his engagement with Miss Hale at Hugo's?"

"About 15 minutes later. He wasn't upstairs long."

"At either time when you took him up and then brought him down, did he stoop over, either to tie a shoe or pick up something he'd dropped?"

"I can't remember—"

"Think again. Try to remember." If Corey had stooped down, the check book might have dropped from his inside coat pocket. Andy hoped he hadn't stooped. He prompted the boy. "What did he have in his hands when he went up with you about 15 minutes after six?"

"A paper, I think. A couple of papers. He always had them when he came from his office."

"Did he drop the papers?"

"No—I don't think he did."

"When he came down about half past six, or a little later what did he have in his hands?"

"Nothing. He was—he was putting on his gloves, I think, his driving gloves.

"Didn't drop one of them?"

The boy's face brightened. "Yes sir! That's just what he did! I remember now. He dropped one of the gloves, and it fell on the floor. He started to pick it up, but I was too quick for him."

Andy wasn't discouraged at this recollection of Ted's. "Where was he standing when he dropped the glove?"

But that was too much for Ted, and so the detective left for the Security-First National Bank where he went to the teller at the "C" window. Andy didn't show his star this time. He merely stated that he was representing Mrs. Richardson and handed over a card she had signed for him some weeks ago, when he suggested to her that he would like to help with the investigation, too. The card had served him before and it would serve him again until he had no further use for it.

"I'm here about Corey's personal account," he explained, "not the Corey and Barnard account. What instructions did you have from Corey on large checks?"

"I don't know exactly what you mean, Mr. Young——"

"Well, were you to call him for verification on a large check before you paid it?"

"Sometimes we did, and sometimes we didn't."

"Did you ever call him on a check issued to Parker Ives?"

"I did some time back, in June I think, on a check for—let me see, it was $3,000."

"Corey instructed you to pay?"

"Yes."

"You didn't call him on the check Corey wrote Ives August 6, for $5,000?"

"No, there was no need, I felt. Corey's checks to his friends were as good as gold. The only reason I called him before on the other check was because I was new here, transferred from one of the branches."

This was all Andy Young wanted to know. He was grinning when the porter let him out the locked door. He was still grinning when he sauntered up the street slowly to the Gibbon building. On the tenth floor before the door on which were neat gold letters "Parker Ives, Business Investments, Entrance," he carefully erased the grin, as he examined the keyhole for a moment. When he finally went in, he gave the stenographer at the desk his card, and asked if he could see Mr. Ives that afternoon. The girl said she'd see and took the card into one of the two inner offices that made up the suite. Presently she came out and announced that Mr. Ives was free.

Tried Pass Key.

Andy was where she had left him standing close to the door. She didn't know that in the two minutes she had been gone he had tried a master pass key in the lock, and that it had worked.

Ives handled everything from yachts to detective agencies, so he was glad to see Young.

"I've got $7,000 in cash, Mr. Ives," Andy explained.

"I know——"

"And I've decided I'd like to settle down here, after I dispose of my Seattle business. Take me some time, I suppose, a few months, because my partner hasn't the money to buy me out, and I don't want to sell out for a song. You understand?"

Ives understood. After business was discussed for a while, they talked about Jennifer, and Ives said he had hoped she would get off on her next trial. He hated to see her go to prison.

When they shook hands at the door, Ives didn't know that every piece of furniture in the private office, every keyhole in the file cabinets, every keyhole in the great carved walnut desk, was photographed in Andy's mind.

Capital's Bohemia Is Quaint and Peaceful In Contrast to New York and Paris Gaiety

St. Matthew's Court Is City's Latin Quarter

Occupants of Its Studios Shatter Illusions About Artists.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

HALF A BLOCK away are four of Washington's traffic-throbbing thoroughfares. But within St. Matthew's Court silence hangs like a vein. In the mornings the veil is slit now and then by a delivery wagon lumbering over the brick pavement. At noon it is ripped in tatters by laughing, shouting children as they romp in the yard of the Calvert School. The rest of the day and during all the night the little court, a labyrinth of studios, is as quiet as a corpse.

And yet this is Washington's Bohemia. Here live painters and sculptors. In these studios, which were formerly stables, actually dwell artists, those gay devils supposed to have a peculiar genius for loose living and hell-raising in general. But while New York's Greenwich Village has free love and Paris' Latin quarter has bacchanalian orgies, the Capital's Bohemia has only decorum, peace and a certain quaint, full-flavored beauty.

Persons who stray into the little court back of St. Matthew's Church may try to keep their illusions about an artists' quarter by considering the sleepy air of respectability a transient thing. But inhabitants of the place vouch for its permanency.

Rabbit Is Only Bohemian.

"Only one around here who comes up to the popular conception of a Bohemian is Kiki, the rabbit," said Brian Brown, caricaturist, yesterday. "Kiki sleeps with the cat in the antique shop next door. The rest of us are disappointingly conservative and respectable, I'm afraid."

No sounds of revelry by night? Never a sound, young Mr. Brown declared.

"Wait a minute," he said. "There was some noise one night or rather one morning about 3 o'clock. The bell rope beside our garden gate was yanked frantically. When we opened the gate there stood a crowd of 18 or so. They were pretty drunk. But they weren't artists. They weren't even looking for artists. They were looking for drinks and just happened to wander into the court."

Mr. Brown shares the garden and studio with a newspaperman. Since the latter works at night, the artist frequently hunches over his drawing board until early morning.

"But I'm not really an artist," he said matter-of-factly, with no trace of mock humility. "I do commercial work. Mostly wall decorations for night clubs and barrooms."

Saloon Art Described.

He plunged into a description of saloon art.

"Why, the whole thing was revolutionized by prohibition. Before the speakeasy era, saloons went in for pictures for men only. That was all right in those days because women then used the 'family entrance' and never saw inside the saloon proper. So the pictures were usually of voluptuous ladies without any clothes. I'm afraid they were lewd. Then came the speakeasies. They soon had as many women customers as men. So lewd pictures went out and caricatures came in."

And with the caricatures came Brian Brown. He has spread grotesque versions of movie stars and political big-wigs on walls of half the bars and cafes in Washington. Habitues of a certain speakeasy whose death knell was rung before repeal still fondly recall Artist Brown's depiction of the Louisiana Kingfish as a plump cherub, twanging a harp beneath a lop-sided halo.

"I've done most of the Government officials so many times it's a break for me whenever a new one comes into prominence," smiled the dark-eyed, sensitive-faced young man. A spotted cat uncurled itself from a hollow in the divan and rubbed against his legs, purring fiercely. Kiki, the white rabbit, squatted near the garden wall and blinked first at the sun and then at the spotted cat. The garden was a fascinating jumble of dirty-faced statues, discouraged flowers, stunted trees, flagstones, brittle vines, and a green board fence.

"We have the most peculiar landlord," said Mr. Brown. "Would you believe it, he actually prefers artists and newspapermen. A couple of nice old ladies who would probably have kept their rent paid six months in advance wanted this place. But Mr. Burnap—that's our landlord — preferred artists and newspapermen." Mr. Brown related this in the tone he would have used if he had said Mr. Burnap preferred bugs to blossoms in his garden.

Little Fraternizing.

The caricaturist declared he knew no one in the court aside from the landlord and the dealer in antiques.

"Painters and sculptors spend a lot of time together in New York and Paris, I know. But we don't do much fraternizing here in Washington. And I believe it's a good thing. After all, artists don't buy other artists' pictures," he explained succinctly.

A former occupant of the same studio, Edward Rowan, said he too had lived in the court for a year without meeting any of the inhabitants except Dan Rhodes, mural painter, who shared his place. Mr. Rowan is now director of the section of painting and sculpture, procurement division of the United States Treasury Department. Bjorn Egeli, portrait painter, is another alumnus of Washington's Bohemia. So is Catherine Critcher.

A few yards beyond Mr. Brown's tangled garden is an old stable with a jade green door. On the door is a ponderous knocker and above it dangles an ancient lantern. Several vigorous thumps of the knocker brought no response at the door but eventually an upstairs window flew open and out popped a woman's head.

Asked if she was an artist she replied:

"Yes," and then after a minute she asked, "Now couldn't you tell by looking at me that I am?"

As a matter of fact, she looked more like a school teacher.

Frowns on Publicity.

A narrow, steep flight of stairs led to her studio—an enormous, white-walled room with a skylight letting in the precious north light. The whole thing was as neat as a New England parsonage. But there was nothing prim or austere about the pictures arranged in orderly fashion around the big, clean room. Those glowing canvases seemed to pulse with life and beauty.

"I don't want any publicity and you mustn't use my name," insisted the creator of the pictures. She seemed almost overcome to think she was in shooting distance of a representative of the press. Sitting on the edge of a stiff, straight chair she said:

"Yes, it's amazingly quiet in the court. I find it easy to work here. No, I don't know the people next door. I don't know anyone in the court."

A series of knocks on another door, hidden far back in one of the court's cul de sacs, brought forth a plump, rosy-cheeked woman. She was wearing an apron. In her arms was a gurgling baby.

"An artist? No, no, no." She grinned expansively at such a fantastic idea. "You are looking for artists? Well, I don't think you'll find any around here. St. Matthew's Court is a nice, respectable place."

Nighties Go Dressy; Steps Out to Dances

Nightgowns are at last coming into their own, and stores are showing elaborate styles that look very much like evening dresses. Satin, nonon, triple sheer and chiffon are being emphasized. White laces, including binche, point de Paris, malines, vals and princess contribute the "ladylike" touch.

Milady is becoming so nightgown conscious that she will be wearing her favorite nightie out to dine and dance.

Teen Age Girls' Talk Limited To Four Topics

American girls of from 17 to 20 years old can discuss only four subjects at any length, a conversation test conducted by Margery Wilson, charm expert, has revealed. The subjects are: make-up, movies, boys and school.

Subjects that women discussed as widely as men were found to be aviation, air-conditioning, the next war, revolution and communism. Personalities that interested women from a conversational view point were found to be Mussolini, Hitler, the Prince of Wales, Queen Mary, President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, Bernard Shaw, Max Baer, Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo, Clark Gable and Rudy Vallee.

Carole Lombard Selected As Screen's 'Best Dressed'

Banton, one of the foremost film fashion designers, selected Carole Lombard from his own studio (Paramount) as the screen's best-dressed woman, and announced he was ready for the catcalls.

Miss Lombard was selected, said Banton, chiefly because she is "crazy about clothes." Banton named her from a field in which he included Marlene Dietrich and Claudette Colbert, of his own studio, and Constance Bennett, Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer, Dolores Del Rio, Kay Francis and Gloria Swanson.

Banton is lavish in his praise of Miss Lombard. He says she can look well in anything, that she can wear sports clothes and evening things with equal aplomb. The reason for this lies in Miss Lombard's own attitude toward clothes as distinguished, for instance, from either Miss Colbert or Miss Dietrich, who, although they look "swell" and "chic," are "stylistically different or lazy."

"Carole, on the other hand, is crazy about clothes," Banton continues. "She is eager to experiment and, like Lilyan Tashman, is sure enough of herself to anticipate style trends. She works for her laurels and deserves winning them.

"Miss Shearer is tremendously smart, but where she might appear at the tennis matches in a black ensemble with silver foxes you can depend on it that Carole would be there in a sports costume.

"In a sentence, Carole has heart in her work!"

Cake Mascara Use to Darken Eyes Gaining

WHEN BEAUTY authorities announced that eyebrows were "going natural" last year, many women obiedently put aside their tweezers, eyebrow pencils and mascara.

But the crop of eyebrows that resulted from this sudden return to nature was far from perfect. Some of the brows were skimpy and palely blonde, others were coarse, heavy and shapeless. Very few were delicately arched, clearly defined in shape, or soft, pliable texture, and long enough to extend to the end of the eyes.

So the wise woman decided it was possible to improve the eyebrows and yet keep them natural in appearance.

Today tweezers are still being used, but only to remove those hairs which give the brows a straggly appearance; and eyebrow pencils and mascara are applied, but discreetly.

Since excessive plucking is no longer permissible and eyebrows are heavier, cake mascara is increasingly popular to darken eyes. The best method of applying it is to use only a little bit on the end of the brush, which should be run lightly over the brows. When the mascara has dried a minute or two the brows should be combed with a fine comb. This distributes the mascara evenly, and makes for a natural effect.

Life Expectation Put at 29 in Ancient Greece

After having read more than 2,000 epitaphs, Miss Bessie Ellen Richardson, English scholar and archaeologist, has reached the conclusion that the average expectation of life in ancient Greece was only 29 years. It is 57 in America today.

Miss Richardson has recently published a volume, "Old Age Among the Ancient Greeks," which has been favorably received by some English reviewers because it focuses attention on the Greek custom of "making children keep in their proper place," and show respect for their elders.

New Slipper For Cocktail Frock Is Out

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP).—The cocktail slipper is the latest item to be added to the feminine wardrobe.

It is a hybrid, this new slipper, and is a cross between the styles in dressy daytime bootery and materials used in evening footwear. It was designed for wear with the new cocktail or ankle-length dinner frocks.

Certain of its dressiness, it can be worn in the evening to dinner in smart restaurants, to the theater, or in gadding about the town, and it will give to its wearer more fundamental support than the fragile evening sandal.

Because of its chic and timeliness one clever model was prominently displayed in a fashion-wise shoe department.

Fashioned by black satin on the lines of an opera pump, it had at the base of the instep a fluted fan-shaped satin decoration that recalled the tail of a turkey gobbler strutting in all his glory.

In keeping with the vogue for gold or silver in evening shoe fashions, the fanlike ornaments were striped horizontally with narrow gold bands.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Girl of 25, With Apartment of Her Own, Yearns to Spend Vacations at Father's Home, Yet Finds Herself Unwelcome by Stepmother; Asks What to Do?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a girl 25 years old. I have an apartment of my own in Washington, and also a home which I love very much in Virginia. My father lives there with my stepmother, who is a very domineering and disagreeable woman. She makes life positively unbearable for me and yet I would like to be there and enjoy my home at least during the holidays.

• • • •

She tries to boss me and nags at me continuously and tries in every way to treat me as a child. She refuses to have my friends come in the house or to let me talk to them on the telephone. She has the idea it is her house and that my sister and I should not stay there; and that it in no way belongs to us. My sister lives in New York in winter.

• • • •

Do you think I should decide not to go home any more at all, or go and just ignore her behavior? She always tries to impress on us that it is her house and we are unwanted. Please advise me what to do. Sincerely, STEPCHILD.

Preserve the Amenities.

DEAR STEPCHILD: Is this a pitched battle of selfish feminine possessiveness over a piece of real estate, or is there really some sentiment involved? There is little or nothing in your letter to suggest existence of the latter, but rather a desire to avail yourself of potential material comfort.

As your father's wife, your stepmother is indisputable mistress of his home in Virginia, and if she is so inhumane, so ungenerous, so lost to graciousness, as to wish to make that home unbearable to his children, I think they must accept her ultimatum with dignity and fortitude.

• • • •

Granted, for the purpose of discussion, that your stepmother does take the unspeakable attitude the home is hers and you and your sister are unwanted there, still, since your father has installed her there as its mistress, it would be equally obnoxious for either of you to invade her realm and ignore her presence—unless by his specific invitation.

• • • •

Which brings us to the question: Just what is your father's attitude in the matter? The home, in the final analysis, is his. It is for him to say who is welcome and who is not. If he wishes his children to enjoy his home, a privilege legally theirs until they are of age; and traditionally theirs for life unless otherwise decreed, it is up to him to take a definite stand.

There is sharp and mystifying contradiction in your statement: "She makes life positively unbearable for me and yet I would like to be there to enjoy my home at least during the holidays."

• • • •

Now, if she makes life "positively unbearable" for you, why under the sun should you like to be there? How could you hope to "enjoy" the home during the holidays, or any other time? It seems to me, if there was a sentimental association connected with your childhood memories of your Virginia home, which might reasonably be expected to draw you back as circumstances permitted, the presence there of an inimical stranger, in place of your own mother, would make such pilgrimages a forbidding heartbreak. Are you quite sure there isn't a certain dog-in-the-manger element in your desire to stay there?

• • • •

Isn't it possible you and your sister conspired, perhaps unawarely, in the beginning to make your stepmother feel herself an apologetic, defensive intruder in her new home? So much so that she may have decided her only chance of creating an atmosphere of security and serenity was by barring it's threshold to hostile influences? That would explain, if not condone, her present attitude.

• • • •

It is to be regretted your stepmother has failed to meet the situation with more subtle persuasiveness, whatever her motives. Yet often the only solution of such a situation—wherein human being involuntarily find themselves unsympathetic, antagonistic rivals—is to precipitate a clean-cut issue. As it is, all of you are presently mired in half-way measures.

• • • •

My suggestion is: Stay away from your old home unless you are certain your father, at least, warmly desires your presence there. And if he does, and you choose to go, go with an attitude of courteous deference to his wife, your hostess.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Dinner Will Mark Sorority Founding

Mrs. George W. Hall, one of five students who founded the Sigma Kappa Sorority at Colby College, Me., in 1874, will be the guest of honor at the annual roll call meeting and founders' day dinner of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of the sorority to be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

Dr. Ella M. Enlows and Mrs. Orrin Elliott, speakers of the evening, will be introduced by Mrs. Mary Agnes Brown, former grand secretary of the society. A representative from the collegiate chapter at George Washington University will also speak.

Mrs. Paul Russell, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Sornborger, will sing a group of songs.

Will Tell of Adventures.

Mrs. William A. Mann will speak on the adventures of a naturalist's wife at 11 o'clock today before the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

Large Families Economic Asset

HOUSEHOLDERS of the French Canadian countryside are sturdily demonstrating that large families can be an economic asset in depression times. "Rear a large family and open a factory" seems to be the economic creed of these thrifty folk, who have spun and woven more than 2,000,000 pounds of wool—representing about $10,000,000 in actual cash—in a year. Not only have more than 150,000 farm families thus clothed themselves, but by their skill at the loom and the spinning wheel have created tidy incomes, sufficient to provide the other necessities of life.

Middle Course Policy Backed By Mrs. Poole

Optimist Club Addressed by Head of Women's Federation.

A MIDDLE course between conservatism and radicalism was advocated by Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, when she addressed the Optimist Club last night in the parish hall of the Universalist Church.

Birth control, sterilization, unemployment insurance and old-age pensions received a measure of approval from the General Federation's head.

Said Mrs. Poole of birth control: "I am sure no child ever asked to be born and no self-respecting country can afford to rear thousands of children not properly fitted for their place in civilization. We have to admit that thousands of children at the present time do not have a proper chance. And it is a grave question as to just how far we have a right to expect the State to go in caring for tomorrow's children."

Old-Age Pensions Forecast.

Whether we like it or not, old-age pensions must enter into tomorrow's program, according to Mrs. Poole.

"Then there is unemployment insurance with its numerous and complex angles, but, unless I am very much mistaken, unemployment insurance of some sort will be a matter for action in the coming Congress."

Of sterilization, Mrs. Poole said: "Sterilization must be safeguarded in every way against exploitation, but there is a growing consciousness among our people that used properly and under certain safeguards the country will greatly benefit from sterilization of the unfit."

Mrs. Poole expressed dissatisfaction with the results of repeal, declaring drunkenness has increased tremendously. She praised the work of those trying to clean up the motion picture industry and gave as her opinion:

"A concerted public pressure can make the motion picture industry anything it desires, but in the final analysis what the people want, the people will have."

Legion Proposal Praised.

But even if the United States should steer a successful middle course between radicalism and conservatism, there would still be the threat of war, Mrs. Poole pointed out.

To combat this threat she urged support of the Nye-Vandenburg resolution asking for an investigation of the peace-time activities of munition manufacturers in this country. She also praised the legislation sponsored by the American Legion to the effect that if war comes to our Nation, nobody, anywhere, at any time shall make money out of that war and everyone, no matter what his station in life, shall be subject to draft by the United States Government.

"One does not dare to estimate the sweeping effect of the success of these two movements toward the curtailment of war," Mrs. Poole said. "But we know that when a business fails to make a profit it very soon dissolves and I am sure if we took the profit out of war-making there would be a decided drop in the war complex of the world."

Hazen Asks Less Ornate City Center

Recommends Simpler Buildings Than Those Now Planned.

Original Estimates for Project Start at $20,000,000.

Sharp reduction of the Municipal Center plan was proposed yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen. The project, which has been contemplated for years, encompasses a building or series of buildings which shall spread from Fourth to Sixth street on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue to Judiciary Square on the north. Estimates for the center range from $20,000,000 up.

The Federal Government, Commissioner Hazen said yesterday, should buy the two southern squares along the Avenue. The District, incidentally, owns almost all the land in the four squares. It has been purchasing and condemning the land for several years by congressional mandate.

No District official would propose such an elaborate municipal center as has been accepted as necessary, except for the determination of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Fine Arts Commission and committees of Congress that the seat of the municipal government should conform to the Federal building development along the south side of the Avenue.

Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, has proposed that the commissioners seek from Congress authorization to ask a loan of $4,000,000 from PWA to construct the first unit of the Center. This would house the minor courts of the National Capital. The $4,000,000 loan idea came from Col. Sultan as a result of the plan to reduce the cost of the sewage disposal plant from $8,000,000, to $4,000,000.

Commissioner Hazen proposed to raise funds for the Center out of purchase money paid by the Federal Government to the District government. He believed the Municipal Center need not be so expensive and elaborate as has been proposed. He would make the Center simpler. The Federal Government, he believes, could construct monumental buildings on the north side of the avenue to hide the less ornate District buildings.

Despite the fact that no provision for the Center is made in the 1936 District estimates, the question is certain to come to the fore in the next session of Congress.

One proposal which will be considered will be that the Federal Government should buy the present District Building for $6,000,000. The $6,000,000 would be used to start the Municipal Center. This proposal involves the question of when the new building would be ready, which unit of the municipal government would occupy it, and when the whole unit would be ready for occupancy. It also involves the question whether the District would be required to pay rent for the District Building after the Federal Government has bought it.

Another proposal is that Congress or PWA designate the Municipal Center as a necessary public work, with the provision that the District taxpayers should repay the cost of the Center after they have paid back the PWA loans to provide for Gallinger Hospital, the District prison at Lorton, the sewage disposal plant and the adult tuberculosis sanatorium.

Mendieta Invites Return of Rebels

Havana, Nov. 6 (AP).—With the "full approval of President Carlos Mendieta," Secretary of the Interior Enrique Mazas announced today he would invite several revolutionary leaders now in the United States to return to Cuba to help plan the national elections.

Mazas said he would ask former Presidents Ramon Grau San Martin and Mario G. Menocal, and Joaquin Martinez Saenz, leader of the ABC Society, to return from Miami and cooperate with the government.

All three are political enemies of the Mendieta government and the move was accepted as a direct effort on the part of the government to bring about a political truce long enough to give Cuban voters a chance to elect a constitutional assembly.

News of Camp Leaks Out After Members of Cult Disperse; Many From Washington, Only Man Left Declares.

Marlinton, W. Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). West Virginia had its first and only nudist colony—and still has it—all this summer and nobody hereabout knew anything about it until this week.

The colony is known as "Pennyroyal Paradise" and it is situated about ten miles from Marlinton in the vicinity of Minnehaha Springs, an old summer mountain resort. At the springs are a hotel and about a dozen houses. The colony is located about 400 yards from the hotel property, but so quietly was "Pennyroyal Paradise" conducted this summer that not even the natives were aware of its existence.

All of the colonists, with the exception of a man, have been driven back to their homes by mountain frosts, which have proved too severe for the nudists. The lone colonist, however, was found by newspapermen sitting on the front porch of a cottage clad only in a newspaper he was reading. He said the colony had been successfully conducted all summer with two constantly changing groups in attendance. Most of them, he said, were from Washington and other points in the East. The man did not want to leave, despite the cool weather, and was reticent about disclosing his identity.

He said Dr. Alice Caporn, of Washington, a native of Australia, was the proprietor. She maintained strict supervision, he said, and always had the sexes carefully segregated when they took sun baths without clothing. In the evenings the nudists lounged in the hotel lobby, he said, but then everybody wore conventional clothing.

D. C. School Complaints To Be Aired

Union Head Says Ballou Held 'Kangaroo Court' on Recommendations.

Operating Engineers Demand Opportunity to Present Grievances.

Charges that Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, has held "kangaroo court" on suggestions and complaints registered by the local branch of the International Union of Operating Engineers regarding conditions in the District public schools are scheduled for a hearing at a meeting of the board of education to be held this afternoon.

Copies of correspondence between Dr. Ballou and union executives were mailed last night to members of the board to summarize the negotiations on the complaints to date.

Proposals for "a more efficient operation of school buildings, a compliance with laws enacted by Congress, a safe operation of steam boilers and an adjustment of inequities imposed upon the engineering force," according to a letter signed by W. I. Green, union president and engineer at Trusdale School, were first broached at a conference held in Dr. Ballou's office on June 1.

Charges Ridiculed.

At this meeting Dr. Ballou described the suggestions as "assinine," "ridiculous," and "poppycock," Mr. Green's letter alleges, although the measures "have been placed into operation in most of the leading school systems of the country." First Assistant Superintendents Cramer, Crane and Wilkinson, together with Dr. Ballou, represented the school authority at this meeting, while Mr. Green, Oswald Bartram and Earl McQueeney appeared for the engineers of Divisions 1 to 9.

Dr. Ballou's letter indicates that several of the union's complaints had been based on misunderstandings, but in order to review the matters before presenting them to the Board of Education he had asked for another meeting.

Status Changed.

In the interim Mr. McQueeny's status in the union had changed and Frederick Kull was introduced to supplant him. This, according to the union's letter, Dr. Ballou refused to agree with on the grounds that Kull had not been present at the first meeting and could not be familiar with the discussions held then.

To this stand Mr. Green replied, "We must reserve the right to choose our own representatives," and a meeting planned for October 18 was not held.

The letter addressed to the members of the Board of Education concludes:

"Our executive board respectfully requests that our representative committee be privileged to present our claims in a hearing before your committee * * * in order that the Board of Education may be furnished with first-hand knowledge of the conditions of which we have complained."

City Apparatus Helps Subdue Navy Yard Fire

Fire, believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, broke out in the Navy Yard power house coal bunkers late yesterday and necessitated calling of city apparatus. The Yard fire fighting equipment did not have enough hose. There was little damage.

National Horse Show Today Promises to Break Records

Madison Square Garden Event, With 1,400 Entries From Several Countries, Also to Be Mecca of Brilliant Society Gathering.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Colorfully decorated in orange and black, Madison Square Garden tonight awaited only the blast of a hunting horn to send the National Horse Show away on its annual seven-day run.

The first toot from Arthur ("Dutch") White's coaching horn at 11 a. m. tomorrow, calling the first of the week's 124 classes into the show ring, also marks the opening of the winter social season.

The Whitneys, Vanderbilts, Hitchcocks and others of their set, just returned from hunting in Virginia and Maryland, will give the affair as much social glamour as an opera opening.

The show promises to break all records for entries and competition. Horses are stabled all over midtown New York—the stalls in the Garden having been exhausted long since—while many will be brought from their home stables by van each day.

More than 350 of the leading show ponies, saddle and harness horses and hunters of Canada, the United States and several foreign countries have been entered. Altogether there are more than 1,400 entries, several of the horses competing in more than one class.

Among the exhibitors are Mrs. John Hay Whitney with her three gray hunters—Two Leggins, Grey Knight and Bon Diable; Mrs. Loula Long Combs, of Lee's Summit, Mo.; Mrs. M. F. Yount, of Beaumont, Tex.; Mary Ballard, of French Lick Springs, Ind., and Mrs. John R. Thompson, of Chicago, bringing her great harness pony, King of the Plains.

Four nations have sent their best military mounts and officers to compete against the crack United States quartet consisting of Capt. W. B. Bradford, Capt. C. C. Jadwin and Lieuts. C. W. Raguse and A. P. Solem. The Irish Free State is back to defend the individual and team trophies won last year. France, Canada and Chile complete the field.

Old Jobs Urged For Strikers

Textile Body Asks All Mills to Reemploy Workers.

(Associated Press.)

The textile labor board urged the industry yesterday to reemploy strikers without further delay. It has been six weeks since the textile strike of September, 1934, was officially terminated, the board said in a statement. It added:

"In the majority of mills those who went out on strike have been taken back without question, but the textile labor relations board is still receiving numerous complaints that strikers are not being rehired and that many are being evicted from company houses.

"The strike can not be satisfactorily ended and peace restored to the textile industry until all workers who left the plant during the strike, and who did not engage in lawless violence, are returned to their former positions. This is a fundamental issue which must be met.

"The board expects the industry to reemploy those who were in the mills before the strike without further delay, and without discrimination.

"Other important matters concerning the industry demand the attention of the board and should receive it."

Henry Clotworthy Is Dead In Arizona

Former Editor Once Wrote for Washington Post.

Prescott, Ariz., Nov. 6 (AP).—Henry L. Clotworthy, 62, former editor of the San Francisco Chronicle and the old Los Angeles Record, and foreign correspondent for The Washington Post during the Russo-Japanese War, died in the Government Hospital here yesterday.

He accompanied the United States Navy on a world cruise in 1908, acting as correspondent for a group of newspapers. On his return he was ordered to Washington to become special agent and investigator for President Taft, who sent him to the Mexican border to make a report on reorganization of military forces undergoing mobilization there. Later he wrote for several publications.

Clotworthy was born in Baltimore May 21, 1872. He enlisted for the Spanish-American War and saw service in the Philippines during the insurrection.

Andorran 'King' Expelled by Spain; Called 'Dangerous'

Madrid Nov. 6 (AP).—The tribunal ordered "King Boris I," pretender to the throne of tiny Andorra, expelled from Spain today on the grounds that he is a dangerous character.

"King Boris," in reality Boris Skossyref, created a stir when he published handbills and advertisements proclaiming himself ruler of the little country between France and Spain.

Authorities say Skossyref is a Pole and that his pretentions to the throne are supported by a wealthy American woman. They identified her as Mrs. Florence Marmon, a native of New York, who has lived abroad for many years.

U. S. Triangle Buildings To Be Up Within Year

Total Cost of Ambitious Program May Exceed $100,000,000.

Many months behind schedule now, the Government's heroic triangle of buildings which line Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues will probably be completed this time next year.

Neal A. Melick, chief construction engineer of the Treasury Department, made this disclosure yesterday in commenting on the $80,000,000 program initiated in 1928.

Occupancy of the Labor Department Building, which was held up almost a year by union disputes, is expected to begin in a few weeks. The Interstate Commerce Commission and Justice Buildings already have been taken over in part, and the Postoffice in its entirety.

The Archives Building, which is considered the most classical member of the monumental group, was to have been finished this year, but won't be ready for actual use before April or May, Melick said.

Because of the priceless and irreplaceable character of the matter to be housed permanently in the Archives building, it will probably be necessary to air condition the structure for three months before any papers or documents are placed in its vaults or on the shelves. Only in that way, Melick said, can the removal of excess moisture be absolutely assured.

Paradoxically, the Internal Revenue building will be both the newest and the oldest unit in the downtown triangle. The oldest because it was begun in 1928, before any of the other buildings, and the newest because the addition now going up at Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue will be the last of the projects now under way to be completed.

When the Internal Revenue addition is done, there will still remain three operations before the eight-block-long triangle is 100 per cent Federalized. These are: Razing and replacement of the District building and the old Post Office and Southern Railway buildings.

If these developments are undertaken—and Melick said they loom as eventualities—the cost of the triangle will exceed $100,000,000.

W. H. Wolfe, Confederate Hero, Buried

Funeral of Miss Julia R. Macon, 83, Held in Charlottesville.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—William H. Wolfe, 94, Confederate veteran and one of the city's oldest residents, was buried this afternoon which military honors, following funeral rites held at the Presbyterian Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dwight M. Chalmers, assisted by Dr. John Scott, of Richmond, Episcopal rector.

He enlisted in the Confederate army in May, 1861, in Co. I, Twenty-fourth Virginia Infantry, Kemper's Brigade, Pickett's Division, and was engaged in battles at Williamsburg, Seven Pines, Plymouth, N. C., Drury's Bluff, Cold Harbor, Hatcher's Run and Five Forks.

Mr. Wolfe was wounded at Seven Pines and disabled for several months. At Five Forks he was taken prisoner and carried to Point Lookout, where he remained a prisoner of war until June 22, 1865.

A brother, Luther T. Wolfe, was also in Pickett's Division, and was wounded in the second battle of Manassas, and again at Gettysburg. He was promoted from the ranks to the position of sergeant-major, which position he held until mortally wounded in the Battle of Cold Harbor on June 3, 1864.

Mr. Wolfe had engaged in the real estate business for the last 40 years. At the time of his death he was adjutant of the John Bowie Strange Camp, Confederate Veterans, this city. He was the oldest member of the Charlottesville Presbyterian Church.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Lottie G. Wolfe, he is survived by three children—Mrs. Ivy Rhea, of Richmond; Miss Mary E. Wolfe and Luther T. Wolfe, of this city.

Oldest Union Soldier Dies.

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held at Mount Pleasant U. B. Church tomorrow morning for Samuel E. Baker, 92, believed to be the oldest remaining Civil War veteran in Franklin County, who died suddenly Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. N. W. Brechbiel, this city. Death was due to a heart attack which he suffered a week ago.

Mr. Baker was a corporal in Company E Twenty-first Pennsylvania Cavalry. He saw service in the battles of Cold Harbor, the siege of Richmond and Culpeper Courthouse. He was station near Chambersburg at the time of the burning of that town.

Mr. Baker had 112 direct descendants. He has nine children living, 45 grandchildren, 52 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Garver Rites Are Held.

Mount Airy, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The funeral of Mrs. Minnie Garver, who died Sunday at her home at Annapolis Junction, near Jessups, Md., was conducted today.

Besides her husband, Ephram Garver, Mrs. Garver, formerly of this section, is survived by one son, Carvalle; two sisters, Miss Rhoda Etchison, Annapolis Junction, and Mrs. William Hilton, Damascus, and two brothers, Howard and Ollie, Mount Airy.

Miss Macon Is Buried.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The funeral of Miss Julia R. Macon, 83, descendant of a pioneer family of this section, was held this afternoon from Christ Episcopal Church.

Miss Macon was the youngest daughter of Col. Thomas Selden and Virgilia (Savage) Macon, and was born at the family seat, Tufton, near Monticello.

Miss Macon was very active in the founding and life of St. Luke's Chapel, at Simeon. She was an active member of Christ Episcopal Church, this city.

Mrs. C. E. Somerlott Dies.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Mrs. Laura Louise Somerlott, 62, for several years house mother of the Orange dormitory of Penn State College, died yesterday at Memorial Hospital here, where she had been a patient since September 22.

She was a native of this city and the wife of Charles E. Somerlott, widely known traveling salesman. She also leaves two daughters, Mrs. Warner H. Heatherly, of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Karl A. Radcliffe, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. George W. Collins, Meyersdale, Pa., and Mrs. Ida V. Kalbaugh, of this city.

Miss Duncan Named Teacher.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Miss Evelyn Duncan has been appointed to teach grades five and six of the Bealeton High School. Miss Duncan, the daughter of D. T. Duncan, is a graduate of Westhampton College. Previously she was employed as assistant librarian at the Warrenton Library.

Forest Guard Promoted.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Urner Wigfield, forest guard employed at the office of District Forester H. C. Buckingham, in the Allegany County courthouse, has been promoted to district forest warden for the Allegheny Mountain Fire Control Unit of Maryland. He will be stationed here and will assist Mr. Buckingham as heretofore.

Va. Sergeant Told to Reply To Ouster Plea

Richmond Official Accused in Escape of Pair From City Jail.

Richmond, Nov. 6 (AP).—A rule ordering City Sergeant John G. Saunders to show cause why he should not be removed from office, as recommended by the special grand jury which held him responsible for the escape of Walter Legenza and Robert Mais from the city jail, was issued today by Judge John L. Ingram in hustings court.

The rule was issued on a motion by Commonwealth's Attorney T. Gray Haddon. It is returnable November 14. The case will be called November 19 and will be tried during that week, Mr. Haddon said.

The office of city sergeant is an elective position, divorced from the police department.

November 21 was set tentatively by the court as the date for the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Mais, 57-year-old mother of Robert Mais. She is charged with aiding in the murder of Patrolman W. A. Toot, fatally wounded as he attempted to halt the two gangsters when they shot their way out of jail September 29.

A request made by M. Haley Shelton, counsel for Mrs. Mais, that Mrs. Mais be brought to trial immediately, was denied by Judge Ingram.

Shelton said Mrs. Mais' health has been affected by prison confinement and that she may lose her home unless she is able to go to Philadelphia by November 15 to make a payment due then.

Youth Is Stabbed In Row Over Shirt For Sabbath Wear

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—James Washington, 18-year-old colored youth, is near death, and Augusta County police are combing the "Grove" area for Charles Fuller, also colored, as the result of a knife scrape which began with an argument as to which of the two would wear a new shirt to church.

A warrant has been issued by Justice A. R. Main to Deputy Sheriff M. P. Ham charging Fuller with cutting with intent to kill. The charge will be changed to murder if Washington succumbs, officers declared.

Election Bulletins From Nearby States

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Complete returns from the first of the 45 precincts in Washington County bore out earlier forecasts that the head ticket was being cut.

The Downsville district complete count showed that Nice received 137 to Ritchie's 76, while Adkins won only 20 majority and Henderson by 34 majority. The district is normally Republican.

The count is being made on the vote for State candidates first, and no returns from the Congressional and county ticket was expected until 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Estimates on the result of the first precinct indicated, political observers said, that Ritchie would lose the county by between 2,000 and 2,500.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6.—Incomplete returns from today's election in three of the hotly-contested Congressional district fights in Virginia—the seventh, eighth and ninth—as compiled tonight by the Associated Press follow:

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The returns available early tonight from 12 of Jefferson County's 21 precincts indicated the strong Democratic sentiment which has characterized the county for many years.

The returns were as follows:

For United States Senator: Holt, Democrat, 1,663; Hatfield, Republican, 801.

For Representative, Second District: Randolph, Democrat, 1,906; Hannis, Republican, 796.

For State Senate: M. O. Rousee, Democrat, 1,886; C. S. Musser, Republican, 897.

For House of Delegates: Martin, Democrat, 1,750; Elster, Republican, 907.

Berryville, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Senator Byrd's home precinct of Berryville, in Clarke County, gave him 97 votes to 1 for Lawrence C. Page, his Republican opponent.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—A heavy vote delayed the count in eastern Panhandle counties this evening with indications the total vote would set a record.

Two precincts out of 19 in Morgan County gave Hatfield (R.) for U. S. Senate, 391, and Holt (D.), 147. The same precincts gave H. E. Hannis (R.), of Martinsburg, for Second Congressional District, 334, and his opponent, Jennings Randolph (D.), incumbent, 186.

Berkeley County, with 5 out of 41 precincts, gave Hatfield 673 and Holt 557. Approximately the same Republican advantage held for all Republican candidates in the county.

The same precincts showed 595 to 442 in favor of repeal of the State prohibition amendment.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Returns from one precinct in Cumberland tonight gave Gov. Ritchie a lead of 52 votes over his Republican gubernatorial opponent, Harry Nice.

The precinct vote in 1930 was Ritchie, 233; Broening, Republican, 128.

With the heaviest vote cast in years, election officials predicted complete returns would not be available before tomorrow.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Rockingham and Harrisonburg gave United States Senator Harry Flood Byrd nearly a 3-to-1 lead over Lawrence C. Page, Republican, and Representative A. Willis Robertson almost a 2-to-1 advantage over J. Everett Will, his Republican opponent, on the basis of complete unofficial returns from today's election.

The vote:

	City	County	Total
Byrd	994	2,128	3,122
Robertson	913	1,850	2,763
Will	422	1,159	1,581

There was a heavy vote in Harrisonburg considering an off-year election, and the balloting in Rockingham was good considering that the campaign was a very quiet one. Senator Byrd lost only one precinct in the county, and Robertson dropped only three, all normal Republican precincts.

Two years ago Byrd's majority was 1,700 in Rockingham and Harrisonburg.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—With a comparatively light vote polled in Winchester, Senator Harry F. Byrd received a majority of almost five to one in Winchester. He polled 730 to 153 for Page.

The Winchester vote:

For Congress—Robertson, 694; Will, 217; Ruffner, 8; Eubank, 3.

The vote in Frederick County was:

For Senate—Byrd, 1,078; Page, 316.

For Congress—Robertson, 816; Will, 287.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Over-confidence on the part of Democrats in the county who were indifferent in the matter of casting their votes here today, resulted in a lighter vote being polled than in former campaigns, while a slight increase was shown in the Republican vote.

The Culpeper County vote was:

For Congress—Smith, 685; Green, 186; Shelton, 8.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—In a vote exceeding predictions, Waynesboro gave Senator Harry F. Byrd and Willis Robertson, Democratic nominees for Senate and House, more than four times the votes of all other candidates. The big surprise was the light Republican vote in the East Ward, normally a G. O. P. stronghold.

Byrd received 456; Page, 97; Ansell, 4; Raymond, 1; Wright, 3; Litz, 1; Bowman, 2. Robertson received 353; Ruffner, 7; Eubank, 0; Wills, 108.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Harry Byrd and Otis Bland were overwhelmingly favored by Fredericksburg voters today for offices of Virginia Senator and First District Congressman. Byrd led his closest competitor, Lawrence C. Page, by 370 votes to 65. Bland drew a total of 378 votes, while Arthur W. Showalter polled 15.

Complete city vote:

Senate—Byrd, 470; Page, 21; Ansell, 3; Wright, 0; Lithe, 2; Bowman, 1; Raymond, 0.

House—Bland, 378; Showalter, 15; Gayle, 5; Rowe, 13.

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Only two-thirds of normally Republican Shenandoah County's disinterested electorate today turned out to pass upon New Deal policies, but gave Senator Harry F. Byrd a comfortable majority of 432 votes over his Republican opponent, Lawrence C. Page. Byrd polled a total of 2,274 ballots, against 1,842 cast for Page out of a possible 6,000 votes for the county.

J. Everett Will, Republican, Luray attorney opposing the Democratic incumbent, A. Willis Robertson, for a seat in the House, carried the county, in which he was born, by 11 votes. Will's vote totaled 2,087, as against 2,076 for Robertson.

	Senate		House
	Byrd	Page	Rob'son	Will
Mount Jackson	193	108	190	128
Edinburg	228	225	201	253
Woodstock C. H.	250	175	246	210
Woodstock T. H.	194	124	181	139
Toms Brook	40	23	30	24
Strasburg	348	219	331	246

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The electorate of Anne Arundel county swarmed to the polls today for a record vote in the history of elections.

Because of record ballot, the count is proceeding slowly, and indications are that definite results will not be known until about noon tomorrow.

Leaders of the two major parties remained firm in their early predictions of success, at least for the head of the ticket, the Democrats claiming the county for Ritchie by at least 1,000, while Republicans said Nice would get upwards of 500. Four years ago, Gov. Ritchie was successful by approximately 2,000.

The local battles centered chiefly around Clark of the Circuit Court, Sheriff and State's Attorney, the rival candidates being:

Court clerk, George T. Cromwell, Democrat; Frank A. Munroe, Republican. Sheriff, Steven J. Everd (D), Jos. Alton (R), Jos. H. Bean (League). States Attorney, A. Theodore Brady (D), Roscoe C. Rowe (R). The Better Government League also backed Munroe and Rowe.

Luray, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Congressman A. Willis Robertson, Democrat, carried Page County by 2 to 1 vote over J. Everett Will, of Luray, his Republican opponent. Lester Ruffner, of Luray, Socialist, polled 50 votes in the county.

Page County Vote.

For Congress—Robertson, 1,453; Ruffner, 50; Eubank, 2; Will, 614.

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—What may turn out to be a record vote in Wicomico County will produce late tabulations in all of the county's 32 precincts.

It is estimated more than 85 per cent of the 15,600 registered voters took advantage of their franchise.

Indications point to the casting of an unusual number of split ballots, delaying the tally further.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Webster R. Eubank, of Mount Solon, Augusta County, independent candidate for Representative from the Seventh Virginia District, polled only 12 votes in this county today, 8 of these in his own precinct. This was the only feature of an otherwise drab election in Staunton and Augusta. Eubank, a justice of the peace in North River District, made no campaign, his activity being confined to qualifying to have his name on the ticket. He picked up 8 votes in Staunton, the county seat, to give him a total of 20 votes.

Staunton and Augusta County totals complete were:

For Congress—Robertson, 1,990; Ruffner, 30; Eubank, 20; Will, 724.

Staunton voters cast only 772 votes, approximately a third of those registered.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The City of Charlottesville and the County of Albermarle, homeplace of Thomas Jefferson, stamped hearty approval on the New Deal today, voting overwhelmingly for the return to Congress of Senator Harry Byrd and Representative Howard Smith of the Eighth Virginia District.

Charlottesville voted 10 to 1 for Byrd against his Republican opponent, Lawrence Page, of Norfolk. The vote in all four wards was Byrd, 579; Page, 55. Smith received 596 votes to 85 for Green. F. A. Shelton, Socialist condidate for the House, got 8.

Greencastle, Pa., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Greencastle, home town of Henry P. Fletcher, gave Reed and Schnader, Republicans, majorities of 91 and 85, respectively, over Guffey and Earle, their Democratic opponents. Reed polled 564 in the town's two districts, to 473 for Guffey, in the Senate race, and Schnader 565 to Earle's 480 for the governorship. In 1932 Hoover carried the town by 122 votes.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The largest vote in the history of Washington County was cast at today's election. Election officials estimated 23,000 of the 29,000 registered votes were cast, approximately 80 per cent. A 65 per cent vote previously was considered heavy. Because of the heavy vote, the first returns were not expected until midnight.

Even Democrats admitted the great outpouring of voters did not augur well for Ritchie, as reports had reached headquarters as early as noon that the head of the State ticket had been cut out. Just how badly this would cut the 1,952 registered Democratic majority among other candidates could not be estimated at an early hour tonight.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Although a small vote was polled in each of Loudon County's 28 precincts, the county went strongly Democratic.

Senator Harry F. Byrd led the ticket with 1,038 votes reported from 18 of the larger precincts. Representative Howard W. Smith followed closely behind with 996 votes. Their opponents, Lawrence Page for the Senate and John Locke Green for the House, received 125 and 148, respectively.

Lovettsville, one of the chief Republican strongholds of the county, was 3 to 1 Democratic, giving Byrd 52, Smith 51, Page 13 and Green 18 votes.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—About 70 per cent of the registered vote was polled in Frederick County today. Both sides had workers at the polls which opened at 7 a. m. and closed at 7 p. m., and the count began at 8 p. m.

Due to the large ballot, containing 66 names and two amendments, results in the larger of the 57 districts of the county will not be known until early tomorrow morning.

No returns had been received for county officers up to late tonight.

Orange, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The majority of the vote cast in six of the eight precincts of Orange County was for the straight Democratic ticket, Byrd and Smith getting approximately 550 votes each from the precincts reported.

In the largest of the eight precincts reporting, Orange Courthouse, Byrd received 209, Page, 19; Ansell, 2; Raymond, 3 and Bowman, 1. Congressional votes for this precinct were: Smith, 222; Green, 23; Shelton, 2.

Staunton Man Killed in Crash

Three Others Escape With Minor Injuries in Accident.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Raymond Edwards, 22, of Bridgewater, was killed near here tonight in an automobile accident caused by the sideswiping of two machines.

Horace Thompson and M. B. Sutton, of Staunton, occupants of the Edwards car, and K. C. Hulvey, of Mount Sidney, driver of the other machine, escaped with only minor hurts.

Edwards was thrown clear of the car when it overturned and his skull crushed against a roadside rock.

State Traffic Sergt. Robert A. Lynn, who investigated, exonerated Hulvey.

'Broke,' Sir Charles Puts Ocean Plane On Auction Block

Los Angeles, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith's trim blue air racer, Lady Southern Cross, was on the auction block tonight as the flier who has twice spanned the Pacific sought a buyer to help repay his backers.

The monoplane which brought Sir Charles and Capt. P. G. Taylor from Brisbane, Australia, to Oakland, Calif., was attached for $1,750 debt, supposedly incurred in his first Pacific hop three years ago.

The flier immediately offered it for sale.

U. S. Funds Asked For Mines Bureau

Adequate Budget Provision Sought by Coal Unit.

The Administration was urged to make "adequate provision" in the forthcoming budget for the United States Bureau of Mines in a statement issued yesterday by the National Coal Association, according to the Associated Press.

The statement by John D. Battle, executive secretary, said "the application of the economy ax to the United States Bureau of Mines, whereby annual appropriations for its maintenance already have been slashed one half, with future reductions threatened, with corresponding curtailment in the bureau's activities and its aid to industry, is strongly protested."

The association adopted a resolution at its meeting here last week urging that sufficient funds be appropriated to restore the Bureau of Mines to a condition of greater usefulness."

Legal "cawn likker" flowed for the first time since 1917 from the copper coils of the Virginia Distillery Co., near Richmond, yesterday. Federal inspectors assigned to the plant watched the first batch pass through its dizzy course of copper tubing from the huge metal cooker and trickle into the first of three 4,000-gallon vats last week. In the meanwhile, thousands of connoisseurs throughout the State are waiting to compare the new distillation with their favorite "mountain dew."

Friends of A. A. Mayton, of Petersburg, Va., were amazed to see him marching down Halifax street one cold morning this week in his stockinged feet. A few thought he had bought some new brogues and their customary tightness had proved too much for him. Before Mayton reached home it was necessary to explain some 15 times that two colored men had pursuaded him, with a nasty-looking gun, that they could use his shoes to much better advantage than he.

Elwood Miller, of Baltimore, had heard his folks speak about persons that were "eating, talking and sleeping Ritchie." So Elwood, attempting to do his part for the Democratic Party, yesterday put a campaign button bearing Ritchie's picture in his mouth and nonchalantly swallowed it. After family efforts to dislodge the button had failed X-ray pictures were taken. Negatives showed that Ritchie was facing one way and Elwood the other.

Families on the relief rolls in Maryland have something to look forward to. State Relief Administrator Harry Greenstein announced recently that as soon as canning and distribution can be completed, 1,500 pickled beef tongues will be ready for relief families. The pickled tongues so far are the only portions of canned beef, being packed for distribution all over the country, which has been assigned to Maryland.

Comments On Park

WILLIAM E. CARSON, chairman of the Virginia Commission on Conservation and Development, who has issued a statement denoting terms under which he thinks the commission should accept a recreational park in Chesterfield County.

U. S. Fund Held Vital to Park Development

Virginia Official Asserts State Cannot Finance Chesterfield Project.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 5 (AP).—William E. Carson, chairman of the State Conservation and Development Commission, said last night that the commission would consider taking over the proposed State recreational park in Chesterfield County from the Federal Government only if funds for its development are guaranteed by the localities it would serve.

He said that if the park were accepted from the Federal Government on a nominal rental basis, the State must agree to maintain it, and that maintenance in this case implies development since "the Federal Government can only promise us a corps of CCC workers for a period of five winter months, limiting the expenditure to $20,000."

He estimated the cost of complete development at from $200,000 to $300,000, and said the only source of such a fund for the commission's use was the legislature, which will not meet until January, 1936.

Carson suggested that local capital guarantee funds for completion of the park if Federal aid is withdrawn and the legislature fails to make an appropriation.

4 Injured in Crash At Waynesboro, Va.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Four men were injured, three seriously, when their automobile crashed into a telephone pole at the eastern end of the new South River Bridge on Main street here yesterday. Henry Corbin, who police say was driving the car, suffered internal injuries; Paul Swink and John Range received head injuries, while Tom Woody escaped with cuts and bruises.

No charges have been brought against Corbin, but Range was summoned to appear before Justice W. Terrell Sheehan to answer a charge of being drunk.

Farm Hand Is Hunted On Assault Charge

Prince Georges County police yesterday were searching for a farm hand on the dairy farm of George W. Shuey, of Hyattsville, Md., on charges of assault with intent to kill.

The farm hand is alleged to have attacked Shuey with a pitchfork yesterday morning and then escaped in Shuey's automobile.

Slade Given Postal Post.

The Postoffice Department yesterday announced the appointment of William H. L. Slade as acting assistant postmaster of Reistertown, Md., according to the Associated Press. Slade's appointment was given with five other appointments throughout the country.

Court Bars Time Limits For Veterans

Federal Judge Rules Disability Claims Do Not Lapse.

Decision Is Based on Provisions of the Act of 1930.

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—Time limitations were removed from the period in which a veteran may file claims for war disability compensation in an opinion filed in Federal Court today by Judge William C. Coleman.

The opinion was in the case of Percy F. Graham, who had applied for the right to make reapplication for permanent disability benefits on his war risk insurance policy which lapsed in 1919. Graham had been barred from filing his claim on grounds that he had permitted his policy to lapse and that he was ineligible through the statute of limitations.

In the opinion, the court based its decision on the provisions of the act of 1930, which, the court interpreted, provided that "no veteran may be deprived of his right to enforce his contract of Government insurance merely because of lapse of time."

Queen Anne Law Cited in Rent Case.

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—A law passed during the reign of Queen Anne was cited as authority today in an opinion filed in United States District Court by Judge William C. Coleman.

Judge Coleman's opinion held that landlords are entitled to prior rights up to one year's rental against goods and chattels of a bankrupt lessee. The old law, Judge Coleman stated, established that where a tenant was judged a bankrupt, rent due for not longer than three months should constitute a lien and have priority of payment out of the tenant's distrainable property.

The old law, the opinion stated, had been reaffirmed by a 1933 Maryland statute, and the period of time was extended from three months to not more than a year.

The opinion was filed in the suit of Charles E. Brohawn, who distrained on the chattels of Virgil A. Seward and William J. Leonard, jr., who traded as a firm in Dorchester County and went into voluntary bankruptcy. The claim was for $670 rent.

Va. Delegates Ask Better Aldie Road

Manassas, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Delegates from the Eighth Congressional District yesterday interviewed H. G. Shirley, Virginia State highway commissioner, in regard to improving route 234, between Aldie and Dumfries, Va.

The group composed State Senator John W. Rust, Fairfax; Mayor Harry Davis, Manassas; John Burk and E. R. Connor, Manassas councilmen; W. F. Cocke, Manassas town manager; C. C. Lynn, C. B. Rolan and J. L. Dawson, Prince William County supervisors; Gen. Harry Lee, Quantico Marine Base, and Lieut. Col. Harrihand, also of Quantico, was encouraged by the interest Shirley displayed, it was reported.

Homestead Work Delay Laid to Failing Supplies

Luray, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Rumors to the effect that work on the first subsistence homestead project for dwellers in the Shenandoah National Park was stopped here yesterday because of litigation over deeds to the park were denied today by the subsistence homestead office and Mrs. W. C. Saunders, former owner of the site on which the homes are being built. It was all a matter of running out of material, it was explained.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Heavy Loser.

We read about a millionaire whose losses were so great that he, in sickness and despair, for Jordan pulled his freight. Although of millions thus bereft, until his heart was wrung, he still had many millions left, and should have smiled and sung. He saw his hard-earned millions go, to come back never more, and so he shrieked aloud in woe, admitting he was sore. The counsel of the optimists to him seemed just hot air; he was enshrouded in the mists of sorrow and of care. He would not listen to the friend who tried to dry his tears; "You still have more than you can spend in forty thousand years. There's nothing that you can not buy in this or other lands, so why put up this doleful cry, why weep and wring your hands?" The millions that he had in brine small comfort were to him; "Alas, those vanished scads of mine!" This was his slogan grim. He often wished that he were dead, this weariest of men, and so at last he went to bed and never rose again. It simply worried him to death, the great financial frost, and with his last despairing breath he spoke of coin he'd lost. So many lost their little all, their jobs, their homes, their pay, and to the dismal poorhouse hall they had to take their way. Such men still bear their load of care, and at misfortune laugh; they'll pity that poor millionaire who couldn't stand the gaff.

Interhigh Grid Series Is Abandoned for '34; Fight Blame Unfixed

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

IN THE EVENING MAIL

My dear Mr. Povich: I glance through your column in The Post every day, not only for its interesting comment but also because it generally contains well-written items of merit. Often you are correct in your prophesies. As, for example, when you head your column this morning, "I shall probably hear from this." You will.

The principal points covered in that part of your column devoted to "ultraexclusive" Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Penn, Cornell and Dartmouth are as follows:

1. They are a silk-stockinged crew. I can not answer for all of the above-mentioned institutions, but I can for Dartmouth. If there is one thing that Dartmouth men take pride in besides their loyalty to Dartmouth, it is that Dartmouth is a representative national college. We are not sectional—not State. Our undergraduate body comes from all over the United States. Our present freshman class of 707, for example, has 262 men from the Middle Atlantic States and 132 from the Central States.

Games Between Friends.

2. They represent decaying powers of football. Now, did you really mean what you wrote? Why do universities and colleges have football teams? To win? To make schedules with the "best" meaning the most successful teams in the Nation? Or to give their undergraduates of athletic abilities a fine game with their friends? Do you, Mr. Povich, play golf or tennis with the champion "amateur" players of different clubs even in this vicinity, or do you play with your friends? Or do you play at all? Just criticize adversely?
3. They have too much to lose, too little to gain. Tut-tut-tut. Too much what to lose? Athletic prestige? Standing among parents that are earnestly seeking a college that really has ideals to which they can send their sons? Do you really think schedules are made for the benefit of the public at large? I mean by self-respecting institutions? In some institutions, yes. Perhaps. But the alumni of the seven institutions that you are so unkind as to slur generally take all tickets that are for sale. I can assure you that Dartmouth alumni are quite content with the schedules prepared. Due to the fact that Dartmouth has had friendly relations for many, many years with Norwich, Vermont, Maine, etc., do you want us to drop them for George Washington or Alabama or Louisiana State? Especially when these old-time friends want to play us?

The Same Athletic Ethics.

It seems to us that it is better to schedule our games with institutions that have the same entrance requirements, same standards of scholarship and the same—what shall I call it?—the same athletic ethics. It may be that dozens of teams from other sections could defeat any of the above on any particular day—or that the fine State of Texas, in which I have been stationed and love dearly, has turned out three teams in the last five years that could do so. It may be so. What of it? Have you ever investigated the standards of the teams you have in mind? Try to enter Dartmouth. You will not find it easy. Did you know you can not enter Dartmouth unless you are in the top 25 per cent scholastically in your prep school? And that we have some 2,000 applications for the freshman class to fill the 600 allotment? Now, are we really decadent or did you admire the type of man that Michelet was—a D. C. boy at Dartmouth?

How About the Big Ten?

4. We do not turn a frigid shoulder to enterprising colleges or universities of the South Atlantic, South and Southwest. Our games are with our friends and with, about once a year, some representative sectional team whose standards and viewpoint coincide with ours. Remember, schedules are made up at least two years in advance. At least, they are at Dartmouth. Teams that are very good one year may not be so good two years later. Check up, Mr. Povich, the number of outside games any one of the Big Ten play. Do you read of them playing Alabama, Louisiana State, Southern Methodist, Tulane, Tennessee, Duke or Centenary? Or Rice? Or Oglethorpe? Or George Washington? Perhaps there may be a reason?

It may be the South and the Southwest are playing the best football in the Nation. It may be. It certainly is grand football. You are entitled to your opinion, of course. But so are others.

The "select circle of the Northeast" may present a united front against overtures from teams from the South Atlantic, South and Southwest. That I don't know, for I am not in touch with the policies of all seven Northeast institutions. Are you, Mr. Povich? Or have you merely written almost a column about what you know little at all?

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) R. B. PATTERSON,
Major, Cavalry, U. S. Army,
Dartmouth, 1911.

P. S. I stayed until 6:30 tonight pounding this out on the office typewriter. And as I am a rotten typist, that was real work. So, please, Mr. Povich, confine your articles to constructive criticism. And do make an attempt to substantiate your statements. It would improve your already admirable column and please many of your readers.

Georgia Seeks Fifth Victory In Row Over Yale Saturday

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 6 (AP).—Georgia's Bulldogs are going to Yale Saturday determined to do something Harvard twice failed to accomplish—beat Old Eli five straights at football.

Georgia shares with Harvard the distinction of having taken four consecutive games from the Elis. Harvard has done it twice, but has never succeeded in getting the fifth one.

Despite Georgia's three defeats this season, the Bulldogs are being given an even chance to beat Yale and many students and citizens of this old college town will journey to New Haven this week-end.

The rubber game of the series that began back in 1923 will be at stake. Each team has won five, although Yale has taken but one game—in 1928— since the 1927 Georgia eleven first beat the Bulldogs of Yale.

Still Talk of '29 Game.

Southerners still talk of the 1929 Yale-Georgia game, which made Southern football history.

A howling crowd of 35,000 Southerners and ex-patriate Yale men, forming the most colorful crowd in Dixie football history, gathered here for the dedication of Sanford Stadium, expecting to see Yale and the brilliant Albie Booth overrun the Georgia Sophomores.

Instead, they saw the rise of a new star in Vernon ("Catfish") Smith, later an All-America end, who blocked a punt for a touchdown, caught a pass for another, and tackled Albie Booth behind the Yale goal line for a safety. He scored 15 points, the only ones of the game, as the Georgia Sophomores overwhelmed Yale.

Austie Downes, Georgia's little quarter back, took the opening kickoff back for a touchdown, the first time it had been done against Yale in the bowl, in 1930 as the Athens boys won, 18-14, after coming from behind in the fourth quarter.

Georgia brought out another star

in little Homer Key the following year and won, 26 to 7. They didn't play in 1932, but last year a weak Yale team held the unbeaten Bulldogs to a 7-to-0 victory.

Beating Yale is still a great thing at this university founded by a Yale man and bound to the New Haven instituiton by many other ties. It was a great thrill for folks here when headlines in Eastern papers last year said something like this: "Fighting Yale Team Holds Georgia to 7-0 Win."

Yelling students and citizens will see the team off Thursday.

Fairgrounds Sale Near Completion

Only Minor Details Needed in Bradley Deal.

New Orleans, Nov. 6 (AP).—Racing circles reported today only minor details needed to be ironed out for the sale of the Fairgrounds Race Track here by Col. E. R. Bradley to Robert S. Eddy, jr., and Joseph Catarinich, operators of Jefferson Park here and other tracks.

The purchase price was reported to be less than $400,000 for the picturesque track. Col. Bradley has been majority stockholder during the last eight years.

Equipoise Wins United Hunts Trophy

Whitney's Famous Horse Shows Old Form; Faireno Second.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, making the second start in his comeback campaign, today won the one and one-quarter miles of the Whitney Gold Trophy at the United Hunts' one-day meeting at Belmont Park. William Woodward's Faireno was second and Mrs. James Austin's Mr. Khayyam was third in the field of six.

Charging to the front at the head of the stretch, the little chestnut, beaten only by inches in a six furlong dash at Narrangansett last week, came through with one of his thrilling finishes to whip William Woodward's Faireno by one and one-half lengths. Mr. Khayyam lost the place by two lengths.

Track Is Sloppy.

Held at 11 to 20 and heavily played even at such short odds, Ekky stepped the distance over a sloppy track in 2:06 3-5. He pulled up perfectly sound, showing no signs of the hoof injury that placed him on the sidelines last May.

The victory, worth $4,000, boosted the Whitney horse's total earnings to $338,450, a little nearer Sun Beau's record of $376,744.

Faireno Takes Lead.

Faireno forged to the front at the half-mile marker with Ekky running well within himself in fourth place. The champion moved up to second, one and one-half lengths back of Faireno, as the field hit the long turn heading into the stretch.

Then Workman gave the word and, like the real race horse that he is, Equipoise turned on the steam. Faireno had nothing to withstand the challenge and through the stretch Workman rode confidently, content to let his mount win by one and one-half lengths.

Loudoun Field Trials Today

One Hundred Dogs Listed for Thomas Farm's Meet.

LEESBURG, Va., Nov. 6.—Sportsmen from various sections of the State, from Maryland and the District of Columbia are expected to attend the field trials of the Loudoun Gun Dog Club, which will be held Wednesday on the J. D. Thomas farm, near Round Hill, and the bench show which will be held that night at Purcellville.

One hundred dogs have been entered for the trials, including the best pointers and setters of Loudoun sportsmen. Drawings will be made Tuesday evening and the dogs started Wednesday as soon as it is light.

The bench show that night at the Purcellville auditorium has eight classes and post entries will be accepted.

Handsome silver pieces will be given as prizes. The Challenge Bowl for the best dog in the show must be won three times before it can become the permanent possession of the winner. Other prizes will include hunting tackle and dog feed.

Allen Fields and Dr. J. T. Pierce, of Baltimore, will be the judges.

George Washington University has somewhat of an old score to settle with West Virginia when the football forces of the Colonials and the Mountaineers meet on November 17. They met once before, in 1920, West Virginia winning, 81-0. In the same year the Colonials dropped a 101-0 decision to West Virginia Wesleyan.

'Draft Heydler' Movement Likely

Agreement on Successor Lacking, Directors to Meet Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—With no outstanding candidacies as yet developed for the National League baseball presidency, vacated by John Arnold Heydler in the middle of a four-year term of office, it appears likely an effort will be made by club owners to have their veteran chief executive reconsider his withdrawal and continue on the job, if and when his health permits.

It now appears doubtful the National League magnates will do much more than canvass the situation at their special meeting here Thursday, deferring final decision until the annual session on December 11. Heydler's resignation, accepted last Friday, is effective on that date.

Two Circumstances.

The proposal to "draft Heydler," at le[illegible] until the end of his present term in 1936, has been prompted, first, by the apparent lack of agreement on a successor and, secondly, by a desire to wipe out completely the suggestion in some quarters that the president reached his decision to resign while "under fire" for his activities in keeping the closing stages of the National League pennant race under the closest kind of surveillance.

The linking of the two circum-

Yankee Owner Considering Shake-up

By George Kenney.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Not to be outdone by Charles A. Stoneham, who has already expended $115,000 as a preliminary to rebuilding his New York Giants into a pennant-winning team for 1935, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, is planning a survey of the ivory marts.

He is, in fact, determined to make his Yankees the New York ball club next year, and may follow the Giants' example by a shake-up of his entire crew.

Goes to Indiana.

Ruppert's intentions were revealed today after he and Ed Barrow, Yankees' secretary, arrived in French Lick Springs, Ind., for a three week's stay. Ostensibly there for a rest, Ruppert and Barrow are actually planning to spend the time between now and the December pow-wows of the baseball chieftains in dickering, either personally or by long-distance telephone, with other American League magnates, they admitted.

Ruppert is especially anxious to snare a box-office personality to replace Ruth, who ended his career as a player last season, and who is now touring the Orient as an

Eastern Wins Easily From Roosevelt

By John R. Vosburgh.

EASTERN HIGH brought the abbreviated 1934 interhigh football series to a close yesterday by pounding out a 26-to-0 victory over Roosevelt at Eastern Stadium. The result prevented Tech from clinching the championship and leaves the identity of this year's title holder in the air.

With bare-headed Bob Hart leading the attack, Eastern wrote a fitting "finis" to the 1934 series. The Lincoln Parkers played with the same dash and spirit which brought them their well deserved tie with Tech High School for the championship.

Four plays after the opening kick-off, Hart twinkled elusively through and around the Rough Riders 60 yards to a touchdown. Ed Brosnan, burly guard, place-kicked the extra point.

Roosevelt stopped another Eastern drive on its own 20-yard line and aided by a 58-yard punt by Francis Beamer went into Eastern territory only to fail to make good a score when Hart intercepted a pass on his own 8-yard line.

After Roosevelt had stopped another Eastern drive, in the second quarter the Lincoln Parkers came back to score with Hart zig-zagging over on a 21-yard run. Dick Absher missed the kick.

In the third period a 26-yard run

Syracuse Reaches Peak on Gridiron

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Back from the doldrums of last season that brought four defeats against as many victories, Syracuse is loaded for bear with a senior team that has reached its peak.

Undefeated this season and scored on only twice—by Cornell and Ohio Wesleyan, both times on passing plays—the big Orange eleven faces its stiffest test Saturday against undefeated Michigan State.

Syracuse has an agile back field and a ponderous line and is ready for the tough competition ahead for the remainder of the season.

Tech-Western Row Is Aired at Hearing; Testimony Conflicts

Players, Coaches, Principals Are Heard at Quiz; Unprecedented Action Is Unanimous; Title Unawarded, Tech Loser.

CANCELLATION of the remaining three games of the Washington interhigh school football series was ordered yesterday by Superintendent of Schools F. W. Ballou. The action is the aftermath of the players' fist fights in last Friday's Tech-Western game.

The edict followed a meeting of the principals of the five District high schools, called by Assistant Superintendent Stephen E. Kramer to investigate the free-for-all battling that occurred at Central Stadium.

In a statement issued at his Franklin School office, Dr. Kramer said that his recommendation that the remainder of the series be abolished was unanimously indorsed by the principals and was approved by Dr. Ballou.

The remaining games were abandoned, Dr. Kramer's statement said, "since some positive action must be taken to impress not only upon the pupils but upon the public that the schools can not consent to the continuance of interhigh football contests unless such contests are carried on in the spirit of good sportsmanship."

1935 Not Affected.

Next year's series would not be affected by the ruling unless there was further evidence of an inability to control the crowds, or a continuation of the fighting among players, Dr. Kramer said.

Yesterday's Eastern-Roosevelt game, which proved to be the final game of the 1934 series, was transferred from the Central Stadium to the Eeastern field where a fence surrounds the gridiron. A dozen policemen patrolled the sidelines.

Abandonment of the series marks the first time such drastic action has been taken in the history of interhigh football here. Six years ago, following a near-riot at the Arcadia during a game, the high school basket ball series was canceled with one game remaining on the schedule.

No Championship Award.

Cancellation of the series deprives Tech High of the championship which it had virtually won. Barring an upset by Roosevelt in the game scheduled next week, Tech would have clinched the title. No award of the championship will be made this season.

Dr. Kramer confessed his inability to fix the blame for Friday's fisticuffs despite the hearing held yesterday to which players and coaches of both Tech and Western were summoned in addition to the school principals. The conflicting testimony brought out only the admission that there had been fighting and that spectators rushed on the field.

The recommendation that the series be abandoned came in the form of a surprise to football followers. Prior to the meeting, Dr. Elmer S. Newton, principal of Western High, declared he did not believe the circumstances serious enough to warrant such drastic action. Dr. Kramer's statement, however, said the indorsement was unanimous.

Hart Is Silent.

Principal Charles E. Hart, of Eastern, said last night that he preferred not to comment on the action taken.

Dr. Kramer revealed that within the last 10 days, the principals of the five white high schools were summoned to discuss with the superintendent of schools the question of the "uncontrol and disgraceful conduct of the audience at the recent Tech-Central game." That game immediately preceded the Western-Tech game which transformed the playing field into a mob scene.

The text of Dr. Kramer's statement, directed to Dr. Ballou, follows:

"Today at 11:30 a. m., I had a meeting of all of the five principals of the senior high schools of Divisions 1-9 together with the physical training teachers in charge of football at the Western and

Navy Devotes Entire Drill To Offense

Coaching Staff Hoping to Get Early Jump on Notre Dame.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Today's preparations of the Navy football squad for the Notre Dame game at Cleveland Saturday were devoted entirely to an offensive drill, Head Coach Tom Hamilton desiring to develop greater speed and precision in the running plays.

Although the Middies have mastered the aerial game better this year than ever before, as demonstrated against Columbia, Penn and Washington and Lee, this phase of their attack also came in for its share of attention.

Plan for Early Jump.

Hamilton and his assistants realize that their charges will have to pull their best plays if their unbroken string of victories is to be continued at the expense of the Irish, and the plan of battle will be to get an early jump on the enemy.

The South Benders are reported to be strong against the passing game, but it is figured they will have plenty to keep them busy in coping with the diversified and tricky plays of the Tars. Notre Dame is a powerful outfit, notwithstanding the 19-to-0 licking by Notre Dame last Saturday, according to Navy scouts.

Dames Scrimmage.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP).—Notre Dame's varsity went through a short scrimmage against Navy's plays today and took a bad shellacking from the freshmen unit representing the Middies. The "Sailors" scored twice through the air and once on running plays, while the Irish varsity could not put across a single counter.

U. S. May Sponsor Grid Game—Rumor

Minnesota and Princeton Sought, Is Report.

Minneapolis, Nov. 6 (AP).—Twin Cities newspapers today printed stories saying it was rumored in the East that Federal relief officials at Washington were considering a postseason game for charity between the University of Minnesota and Princeton football teams.

Both teams are thus far unbeaten, with Minnesota labeled in some quarters as a possible national champion. The rumors added that the game, if arranged, could be played either in Chicago or New York.

Minnesota Polishes Offensive.

Sation Carries 130 Pounds to Half-Length Victory in Pimlico's Sprint Feature

Okapi Shows Speed Only At Start

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Writer).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 6. One hundred and thirty pounds, 22 pounds consisting of slabs of lead placed in his saddle pockets and the remaining 108 the person of Jockey Wayne Wright, were loaded on the back of the great sprinter Sation here this afternoon. Less than 5 minutes later, the 4-year-old gelding was plowing across the finish line to win the Baltimore Handicap, election day feature at this race track.

Spotting his rivals from 15 to 22 pounds due to his brilliant record, Sation reached the wire a half-length in advance of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Soon Over, which had a like advantage over the Wheatley Stable's Slapdash. Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One completed the group behind the winner.

Owner Sees Races.

Owner George D. Widener came over from Philadelphia to see two of his horses run. He was pleased when Go Quick won the fifth race and he was overjoyed when Sation made it two in a row for his blue and white colors. Widener has expected a Sation victory and so had the public. In fact, the interval preceding the race was marked by many visits to the totalizator, the betting machine, and the majority came away with the "No. 1" cards which designated the Widener sprinter.

Early morning rain had left the track muddy when the program opened, but a strong wind and an ambitious sun were rapidly drying out the course and it was termed "slow" as the field paraded to the 6-furlong chute. Sation was clocked in 1:12 4-5, creditable time under the conditions.

Open Range, Okapi Show First.

Open Range and Okapi were first to show in front as the field began the trip up the back stretch. Okapi was the hope of the group of "beat-the-favorite" players. He was fresh from a victory last week in the Narragansett Invitation, where he had defeated Equipoise, and he was being given 20 pounds today by Sation.

But Jockey Wayne Wright rides with something else besides those strong arms and those sturdy legs. He used his head in keeping Sation just off the stiff pace of Open Range and Okapi. On the swing for the stretch, Wright asked Sation for speed. He got it and went sailing along to assume command. In the stretch run, he opened daylight as Only One moved up ahead of the now tiring Okapi. Only One's bid was short-lived, however, and Sation appeared an easy winner. But there was a punch left in the field.

Make Dash for Wire.

Silvo Coucci found a willing Soon Over under him and the pair made a lightning-like dash for the wire. The effort came too late. Wright and Sation had already arrived at the pay-off station. Slapdash, although he did not threaten the leaders, made a game finish to save third money.

The race was worth $2,380 to the Widener interests and marked Sation's fourth victory in his last five starts.

In contrast to the finish of the Baltimore Handicap, which was marked by much clapping, the end of the fifth race brought a large volume of booing. Go Quick and Aperitif came down the stretch so closely aligned that only the judges could separate them. They called it Go Quick and Aperitif and the Aperitif backers roared. From the pressbox it appeared that the officials were right—for a change. Pretty Night accounted for third money.

'35 Baltimore Orioles To Train at Kissimmee

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—The 1935 Baltimore Orioles of the International League will train at Kissimmee, Fla., beginning March 15, John M. Ogden, general manager of the club, announced today.

The Orioles will take 26 players South and plan to schedule 20 pre-season games.

GOLDEN SAINT	117	1	4	4ʰ	5ʰ	6ʰ	7	7	Kacala	9.65

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STEGAL, $6.60, $3.20, $3.00; JUDGE BLAKE, $4.20, $3.50; TEN LAW, $4.70.

STEGAL was a bit slow to break, but ran into a contending position early, rated along, assumed the lead in the stretch and won drawing away. JUDGE BLAKE was kept close to the early pace and came with a rush in the stretch. TEN LAW was kept out in the firm going and held on well. STAR SHADOW, badly outrun for the 7 furlongs, finished with a rush. M. J. BRENNAN had plenty of early foot, but stopped badly.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward. (Claiming price, $1,250.) Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:26. Off at 2:31½. Winner, G. L. Hamilton's ch. g. (3), by Canter—Betsy Barth. Trained by G. L. Hamilton. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:49 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIGHT WAD, $8.00, $4.30, $3.50; DONT BLUSH, $9.50, $4.70; SUN ABBOT, $2.90.

TIGHT WAD broke very slow, was sent up on the outside for the entire trip, ran into the lead in the stretch and just staggered home. DONT BLUSH came around the field and finished with a rush and was second in the last stride. SUN ABBOT, well ridden, stopped suddenly after getting to the front. DONA DULCIN ran a good race. REPEAL quit after showing early speed.

FOURTH RACE—The Monocacy. Six furlongs. Purse, $800. Claiming handicap for 4-year-olds and upward. (Claiming price, $5,000.) Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:57. Winner, E. R. Bradley's b. f. (4), by Black Toney—Clonaslee. Trained by H. J. Thompson. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOLD LOVER, $5.60, $3.40, $2.60; LADFIELD, $3.60, $2.90; POMPEIUS, $3.30.

BOLD LOVER was pounds the best. He was on the inside in the run down the back stretch and in close quarters. Meade eased him back and then shot him up on the outside. He closed with a rush, but had to be ridden hard to win. LADFIELD moved up very fast around the turn and appeared to have ridden POMPEIUS close in the closing stride. JESTING was sent to the front early, showed good speed and was almost knocked down at the furlong pole when the field crowded over to the rail. PROJECTILE ran a good race and should win at a longer route. ROYAL GUARD was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For 2-year-old fillies; allowances. Start good, from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:24½. Winner, G. D. Widener's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GO QUICK, $5.70, $3.50, $2.50; APERITIF, $5.30, $2.80; PRETTY NIGHT, $2.50.

GO QUICK raced MINNA into early submission, continued with good courage after losing command, then fought it out stubbornly to get up in the concluding strides. APERITIF, going in greatly improved fashion over her recent race, took the lead midway of the turn, then held on resolutely for the closing drive. PRETTY NIGHT worked her way up on the outside and was gaining slowly at the end. MINNA, on the inside racing, was steered wide in the last half mile. LISTENING was outrun. HURRAY and HERMANITA were held safe.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500, added. For all ages. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:51½. Winner, G. D. Widener's ch. g. (4), by Galetian—Salacia. Trained by W. F. Mulholland. Value to winner, $2,380; second, $500; third, $300; fourth, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SATION, $4.10, $3.00, $2.70; SOON OVER, $4.80, $3.80; SLAPDASH, $9.80.

SATION, under restraint during the opening furlongs, went up between the leaders midway of the turn, took command and was nursed in front for the remainder of the trip. He had something in reserve at the end. SOON OVER, after his usual to settle in his stride, closed with a tremendous rush in the last five-sixteenths. SLAPDASH finished stoutly after being outrun for 5 furlongs. ONLY ONE was on the outside of the pacemakers from the beginning and lost ground. He tired under a hard drive in the closing furlong. OKAPI began tiring after a fast half mile. OPEN RANGE quit badly.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For 2-year-old fillies; allowances. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:21½. Winner, W. S. Kilmer's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALOMAR, $7.80, $4.70, $4.10; DOWDY DELL, $6.80, $5.10; MARCHING HOME, $5.80.

GALOMAR, nicely handled and steadied in front while saving ground, closed with good courage when roused, forced to a hard drive in the closing furlong and just lasted to outstay DOWDY DELL. The latter followed close up and held on with good courage for the final drive. MARCHING HOME made a strong effort approaching the home stretch and then held on well. PERADVENTURE, poorly ridden after getting away to a tangle, was steered very wide and was weakly ridden in the final drive. DIVERTING threatened midway of the turn, but tired thereafter. FLYING SNOW was done early.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good and fast from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at once. Winner, L. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MR. BUN, $9.30, $5.00, $4.00; MANAGER BILL, $3.40, $2.70; POTOMAC, $2.40.

MR. BUN, going strongly while racing in close attendance of MANAGER BILL, wore the latter down under strong pressure when reaching the home stretch, then came out nicely nearing the finish. MANAGER BILL handled his weight well and held out in game fashion. LADY LEE, finishing steadily in the last five furlongs. LAWLESS LADY went forwardly, but was unable to hold her position in the final drive. KOZAK could not threaten when placed to a drive. KINDACORN raced in dull fashion.

American Association Meeting Is Set Nov. 19

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—The American Association will hold its thirty-second annual meeting at Louisville on November 19. A decision will be made whether to continue the all-star game, the league championship play-off and the Little World Series against the pennant winner of the International League.

'Here Comes Bedwell!'—Old Cry Rings Anew

By Walter Haight.

THE horses are at the far turn. A swift-legged fellow is out in front by some five lengths. They bank the turn. From the second flight the white shirt of a jockey begins to slide out of the pack. It comes into the clear and bounds on toward the leaders.

"Here comes Bedwell!" shouts the crowd.

And the Bedwell-owned horse comes along. From far back in the stretch, as if shot from a cannon, Pesky fights his way up. There are only two horses ahead of him now—Orme's Head and Tiajan. There is a green hat visible now above that white shirt. There's no mistaking the Bedwell colors. That's Bedwell and that's Pesky. Closer, closer Pesky comes. Past Tiajan, he flies. He's fighting it out with Orme's Head now. There's the wire. It's close. Did he make it? A "No. 4" is hung on the results board. Old Pesky's home—by a nose. Another winner for Guy Bedwell—a 5-to-1 shot.

April 12, 1915.

There was a warm spring sun shining that day (thanks to The Post's bound file). It shone on a very happy Guy Bedwell, too. Why shouldn't he smile as he walked back to the paddock with his hand on Jockey Taplin's shoulder?

Wasn't he the Nation's leading trainer? Hadn't he led the country in 1909, 1912, 1913 and 1914? Didn't he have a barn full of fit horses—some of his own and some of those of the leading owners including Commander J. K. L. Ross?

Bedwell had every right to be happy.

The nose decision of Pesky was typical of a Bedwell victory. Up by a nose in the last strides—at 5-1, at 10-1 and at 20-1. He made fit horses of apparently, battered and bad-legged horses. He was the miracle man of the turf in the teens of the Twentieth Century.

He finished the year topping all the trainers and owners. In 1916 and 1917 there was none to dislodge him.

Bedwell's star was flying high. The Green and White was now a by-word wherever horses ran. But Bedwell was not satisfied. He purchased a farm and began to breed horses. He sent the popular "Fair" horses to the races by the dozens. Every name had "Fair" as the first section. Fair Clark, Fair Girl, Fair Mary, etc.

The luck that followed him on the track did not go with him to his Yarraw Brae Farm, at Savage, Md. Through the war years, his colors gradually faded out of the picture. Once in a while, it was "H. Guy Bedwell's Blk. C." listed at the top of the race charts, but little by little Bedwell became a name that indicated only the past.

But, like Pesky of 1915, Bedwell was not beaten.

And he will not be beaten until the one great wire is reached.

Another day. The horses are at the far turn. There is a swift-legged fellow out in front by some five lengths. On he comes, virtually burning up the track.

"It's Red Wagon! He'll stop!" shouts the crowd.

But down to the wire he gallops. It's Red Wagon, the winner. The horse that A. C. Compton claimed for $1,500 the other day has beaten the crack sprinters, and the time is 1:11 4-5. Why, that horse was just beaten in 1:13 2-5 the day that Compton took him. He was a "bleeder" that the Vanderbilt Stable had discarded.

There is a scanning of the program. There's the name, "H. G. Bedwell," the trainer.

October 16, 1934.

The old wizardry of the past had returned. And before the meeting closed it looked as if Bedwell's master touch had come to stay. He sent Red Wagon out against the best of the short-distance horses and again he scored. Frumper and Fair Billy (one that he bred himself) came home. Three winners in a day—a habit of 1915 and a great achievement today.

Mr. Compton, his employer, had planned to ship the stable to the West Coast at the end of the present Pimlico meeting. Naturally, Bedwell would have to go along.

But Dick Pending, who, as a trainer, probably lost more races to Bedwell than any other man, asked the veteran trainer to come to Bowie. Bedwell gained the consent of Owner Compton.

And so, late this month it will be Bedwell and Bowie—a combination which must bring fond memories to the veteran turf fans.

A little mud—and a 10-to-1 shot—would make the scene complete.

G. W., in High Spirits, Is Confident of Putting Up Stern Battle Against L. S. U.

Staff Divides Season Into 2 Parts

'First Half' Forgotten; Only Scrimmage of Week Set Today.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is lifting a page from the Right Hon. Lou Little's football Bible for strategy to be employed against Louisiana State next Saturday at the stadium.

Last year, after Princeton's Tiger clawed the Columbia Lion unmercifully in the memorable pitched battle at Princeton, Little announced that the first half of Columbia's grid campaign had closed. It was a completed chapter in Morningside Heights football history and was to be considered a part of the ancient history course. The good doctor's psychology worked well enough, if you recall.

Second Half of Season.

Following the defeat by Vanderbilt, the G. W. board of strategy immediately decided that the season would be divided into two parts. The second will be inaugurated Saturday against L. S. U.

It seems to be a very good idea. The Colonials have forgotten Vanderbilt—on the surface at least. No mention is made of Dan McGugin and his Commodores. Louisiana is uppermost in the minds of all players, and they refer to the game as if it is to be the curtain-raiser.

Enthusiasm Reigns.

G. W. is confident of offering stern opposition. Enthusiasm is at a higher level than it has been all season. There is more spirit evident than was noticeable before the Vanderbilt game. George Washington does not figure to trim Biff Jones' crew—rather it is 30 points below its rival on comparative scores, but compartive scores will mean little in this game.

The Colonials will have their only scrimmage of the week this afternoon against a combination of varsity and freshmen players. Tomorrow a dummy scrimmage is scheduled and Friday will be devoted to tapering off.

Wright May Start.

Ab Wright, sophomore end who has shown well in practice, was at Arnold Benefield's post yesterday and probably will be there Saturday when the opening whistle blows. It was Wright who took a 32-yard pass from Leemans last week just before the half ended.

George Washington's line appears to be capable of withstanding whatever L. S. U. may have to offer. No touchdowns have been scored through that solid wall of bone and muscle this season and the Tigers do not appear capable of penetrating it Saturday.

Louisiana will leave Baton Rouge at 6 p. m. today, arriving tomorrow. The team will be quartered at the Shoreham Hotel.

Proposal to Draft Heydler Offered

stances has persisted despite flat denials by league directors, as well as Heydler, that there was the slightest connection.

Disturbed by Reaction.

Heydler has been disturbed by some of the published reaction to his resignation but he declined today to say whether he would reconsider his resignation.

The proposal which the magnates may consider is to elect Heydler's private secretary, Harvey Traband, to the office of secretary-treasurer, and then ask Heydler to continue in office as president after taking leave of absence for the benefit of his health. Under this arrangement, Traband would take over the duties as acting president until Heydler's return.

A poll of National League club owners by the Associated Press today revealed most of them will go into Thursday's meeting with an open mind on the subject of Heydler's successor.

Eastern Swamps Roosevelt, 26 to 0

by Glenn (Hawk) Shaw, Eastern back, an 8-yard smash by Charlie Kidwell and a pass, Hart to Frank Principe, once more put the ball in scoring position on the 5-yard line. Hart made 3 yards and then Shaw plunged over for the third touchdown. Brosnan kicked the twentieth point.

Roosevelt had been unable to take the offensive despite a 37-yard runback of a punt to his own 42 by Bill Marlowe and Eastern backed the Rough Riders up to their own goal posts where Johnnie Carvellas, Eastern center, blocked a punt as Beamer kicked from behind his goal line. Carvellas fell on the ball for the touchdown. Absher missed the point.

School Series Abandoned For 1934

Action Follows Hearing; Blame for Dispute It Not Fixed.

McKinley High Schools. In addition to this group there were five or six pupils, members of the football teams of Western and McKinley High Schools. Other than the principals themselves, the persons present were the selection of the principals of the Western and McKinley High Schools.

"The question of the difficulty arising during the Western-McKinley football game on Friday, November 2, 1934, was fully gone into. The fullest and the freest discussion was allowed to all persons concerned. The principals present joined in the inquiries freely and asked questions of the players, of the physical training teachers, and of each other.

"The undisputed fact which came out in this inquiry was that there had been one or more altercations or fights between the members of the opposing teams. This was freely admitted and one of the Western High School players admitted that he had struck a McKinley High School player, thus precipitating a fight. The Western High School player claims that he was tackled by the McKinley High School player with undue violence and that he was struck in the face by the McKinley High School player. The McKinley High School player denies that he did more than tackle the Western High School player and that his method of tackling was in a manner allowed by the rules of the game. When questioned by one of the members of the group as to whether his manner of tackling was such as had been taught him and was approved by the trainer, his answer was, "No," but his procedure was such as was allowed him under the rules of the game. It was very difficult to determine whether the assault by the Western High School player had ample provocation or not. Testimony was divided on this point.

"I believe that it is true that this altercation between players resulted in considerable turmoil in the two opposing teams. The fact that the audience crowded down upon the field and that there was not sufficient control of this audience added to the trouble.

"It is to be borne in mine that within the last ten days the principals of the five white high schools were called into the office by the superintendent of schools and the whole queston of the uncontrol and disgraceful conduct of the audience at the McKinley-Central game was considered. The game in question is the first game succeeding the McKinley-Central contest.

"Since some positive action must be taken to impress not only upon the pupils but upon the public that the schools can not consent to the continuance of interhigh school football contests unless such contests are carried on in the spirit of good sportsmanship, I respectfully recommend that the interhigh school contests not yet played be abandoned for this year. The principals of the five high schools of Divisions 1-9 unanimously indorse this action and I am forwarding this to you with their unanimous approval.

"Since it was impossible to abondon the contest between Eastern High School and Roosevelt High School scheduled to be played this afternoon it was thought best to play the game and to abandon the rest of the series yet unplayed."

Salvage

Boxer Wants Car and Dog From Marital Wreckage.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP).—The only salvage King Levinsky wants from his wrecked matrimonial ship is his dog and automobile.

As his attorneys filed answer yesterday in Circuit Court to Roxanna Glickman Krakow's suit for divorce, the erstwhile fish peddler made that clear.

Colgate Ready for Tulane.

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Andy Kerr again stressed defense against the famed Tulane pass attack as Colgate prepared to meet the Greenies at New York Saturday. The Red Raiders have been weak in this department all year.

C. U. Opposes Maryland In Drill

For a time Bergman looked like a traffic cop stripped of the blue uniform and brass buttons.

"Stop Mitrick, stop Reynolds, keep your eye peeled for Puppin, don't let Moon get by, hold the center, check the end, take out the tackle," he chanted until the crimson Cardinals were blue in the face.

All-Southern Candidate.

Now Bergman has good reasons, usually good ones, for admonishing his men about their football manners. Frank Mitrick is Oglethorpe's candidate for all-Southern honors, a candidacy heartily indorsed and enthusiastically supported by Atlanta papers.

Mitrick is a triple-threater and a good one, but he has a chorus of specialty men to help the act along. Take Bill Reynolds, for example. Bill is a made-over trackman, a 10-second century artist who can carry the mail on the gridiron as well as track.

Puppin Now a Regular.

Then there's Frank Puppin, until last week a substitute quarter back and now regular occupant of that position. Last week against Erskine he threw a 50-yard pass to Moon, who ran the remaining five yards to score. That's throwing the pigskin. "Harvest" Moon usually is on the receiving end of all his passes.

Oglethorpe employs the Warner system, double and single wing back, and as its line will come in around 193-pounds, about the same as the Redbirds, the game should afford a fairly accurate test of the Rockne system up against Mr. Warner's methods.

Al Cecino, who flashed brilliantly though not consistently for C. U. last week, and had his knee wrenched for the trouble, will be back in uniform tomorrow.

Episcopal High Prepares for Virginia

Home Coming Program to Start at 2:45 P. M. Saturday.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). — Episcopal High School is working hard this week in preparation for their annual game with Virginia Episcopal. The contest will be part of the homecoming program for the Episcopal alumni. Virginia Episcopal is rated good and Coach Bick Cardwell said he was expecting trouble.

Saturday's homecoming game has been moved up to 2:45 p. m. Plans for handling a large crowd are being made.

Mike Goldman's revamped Virginia A. C. will travel to Lorton Sunday in the opening game for the newly reorganized eleven. Lack of a playing field will force the locals to play all their games out of town.

Alexandria High School is busy making preparations for Hopewell High, who they will entertain next Friday at Baggett's Stadium. The various committees in charge of the twins turkey day battle with Gonzaga, of Washington, are to meet Thursday night in the high school building to report on progress made and to further plans for making the day a success.

The Alexandria Fraters held a secret drill tonight in preparation for next Sunday's game. The management has booked the strong Mohawk A. C. and Coach Colosanta is working hard so the locals will be able to offer a stern resistence to the winning ways of the Capital City eleven.

The Pirate A. C. is on the lookout for a game for Sunday with some strong 150-pound eleven. Interested teams will communicate with Manager Dutch Wood at Alexandria 835.

Badgers Aggressive.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Badgers today exhibited more aggressiveness than in perhaps any previous practice this year as they went through an intensive workout for the Michigan game.

Catholic U. Trackmen Brave Chill Winds for Practice

Altrock's 75 Is Second Day's Leader

Rippy's 67 Wins Medal in Rock Creek Tourney; Pairings Listed.

CLAUDE RIPPY'S record-breaking 67 of Monday stood up under yesterday's fireing in the qualifying round of the Rock Creek turkey golf tournament, and he was declared the medalist.

Nick Altrock, defending champion, was the only golfer to break 80 yesterday, the Washington Baseball Club comedian-coach scoring a 37-38—75 over a wind-swept course.

Scores of 80 or better made the championship flight, in which Rippy, winner of two tournaments at Rock Creek and runner-up for the District municipal title this year, is strongly favored. Rippy will meet Eddie Stolark, 76 shooter, in his opening round match at 10 a. m. today.

Hoag Meets Sharkey.

Russell Hoag, who shot a 68, is bracketed at the bottom of the flight, and engages 14-year-old Buddy Sharkey, at 10:35. Sharkey is the youngest player in the top flight, and S. C. Wimsatt, who recently celebrated his fifty-ninth birthday, the oldest. Wimsatt, former West Potomac champion, scored an 80, and meets Charlie Ficco.

Volney Burnett, one of Washington's best public links golfers, is favored to reach the semifinals, being in the same bracket with Rippy. Burnett scored a 71 and faces S. D. Byers.

Champion Altrock draws Ben Kong, Hawaiian golfer.

First Flight Matches.

All championship flight matches will be played this week, but the other five divisions will be given until November 24 to complete their matches.

Mrs. Florence Godfrey shot an 87 to lead the women golfers.

Pairings and starting times:

Championship Flight.

10, Claude Rippy (67) vs. Eddie Stolark (76); 10:05, S. C. Wimsatt (80) vs. Charlie Ficco (72); 10:10, Nick Altrock (75) vs. Ben Kong (80); 10:15, S. D. Byers (79) vs. Volney Burnett (71); 10:20, Leo Cullinane (72) vs. C. H. Osborne (80); 10:25, Harold Bowers (80) vs. W. W. Grid Player, 16, Dies.

Anadarko, Okla., Nov. 6 (AP).—Jack Morris, 16, of the Anadarko Junior High School football team, died of injuries suffered today in a football scrimmage. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Morris, of Anadarko, Morris suffered a head injury and died from cerebral hemorrhages.

Mrs. Charles K. Wing Named President of Women Golfers

MRS. CHARLES K. WING, of Army and Navy Country Club, was nominated as president of the District Women's Golf Association at a meeting of the nominating committee last night.

Her nomination is tantamount to election, and she will be installed in office at the association's annual meeting on Thursday, December 6, at Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Wing, wife of Lieut. Col. Wing, who is located with the National Guard Bureau, will succeed Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, prominent District woman attorney, and president for the last two years.

The nomination of Mrs. Wing came as a surprise, inasmuch it had been reported that the committee would decide between Mrs. Howard Simons, of Manor, and Mrs. James W. Beller, of Columbia.

Mrs. Wing, who came here from Pensacola, Fla., three years ago, has been active in golf at Army and Navy, the War College, and with the District Women's Golf Association. She was formerly golf chairman at Army and Navy, and treasurer of the District association for the past year. An ardent golfer, Mrs. Wing lost to Mrs. A. E. Dedicke on the nineteenth hole in the semifinals of the Army and Navy club championship, and bowed again to Mrs. Dedicke in the Army War College finals.

Nominated for vice president was Miss Susan Hacker, of Chevy Chase, and for second vice president, Mrs. N. J. Waldron, of Beaver Dam. Mrs. Don Scott, of Congressional, for treasurer, and Mrs. David M. McPherson, of Manor, for secretary, were others selected.

Cagemen Open Practice at Maryland

Buscher, Guard, Is Only Veteran Back; List of Tilts Announced.

VARSITY basket ball practice has begun at the University of Maryland, with H. Burton Shipley, head coach, facing his biggest task since his first season, 1923-24.

Bernie Buscher, guard, is the only 1933-1934 regular available, but Roy Howell and Norwood Sothoron, varsity reserves of last season, will be on hand. Vic Willis and Ike Rabbitt, reserves, who failed to win letters last year, also are available.

Other men counted on for Varsity work this year include: Fred Scheele, Clifton Byrd, Charlie Keller, Ed Daly and Bill Andorko. Buscher, Willis, Sothoron, Keller, Daly and Andorka are with the football team now and will not be able to report for cage practice until after December 1.

Two Stars are Lost.

Shipley lost two valuable men in Bill Guckeyson and Jack Stonebraker, freshman stars of last year, who are now starring on the gridiron. Stonebraker, an engineering student, has decided that he needs the time for studies and Guckeyson plans to compete in track and baseball next spring and is taking a rest from basketball.

Two games are scheduled for the Christmas holidays, Indiana on December 20 and Ohio State on December 29 and Shipley will have to drive the old liner cagers hard to be ready for those games.

The remainder of the schedule is:

January 4, South Carolina; 8, V. M. I.; 11, Duke; 16, Washington College; 18, North Carolina; 23, Johns Hopkins; 30, Navy.

February 2, Virginia; 5, St. John's; 12, Catholic University; 14, Virginia Tech; 20, Virginia; 26, Johns Hopkins.

March 2, Richmond University; 11, Georgetown.

Berwanger, Chicago, Due to Play Saturday

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Jay Berwanger, Chicago's battering ram, remained on the sidelines today as the Maroons went through a light scrimmage, but will be ready for action in the Ohio State game. Clarence Wright, husky tackle and guard, also is expected to be ready, but Ned Bartlett, running mate to Berwanger, seems definitely out. The team will depart for Columbus Thursday.

Field Hockey Tourney Plan Completed

Women's Event Will Open Here on November 23, Continue 3 Days.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Plans for staging the women's Southeastern field hockey tournament at Washington on November 23, 24 and 25 were completed today at a meeting at the Warburton House. Members of the executive committee of the Philadelphia Field Hockey Association then announced the schedule of games for the three-day tournament.

Philadelphia and Baltimore each will send first and second teams. The other associations sending representative squads will be Virginia, Harrisburg, North Jersey and Washington.

From the players in the 3-day event the Southeast first and second teams will be chosen to compete in the national field hockey tournament at Newtonville, Mass., on Thanksgiving week-end.

Important Games.

The most important games on the Southeast schedule are the All-Philadelphia vs. All-Baltimore contest, November 23, and Southeast vs. Southeast Reserves Sunday, November 25.

The latter will be played at Madeira School, Greenway, Va. The remainder of the schedule follows:

November 23, All-Philadelphia Reserves vs. Virginia, North Jersey vs. Washington, All-Baltimore vs. All-Philadelphia; November 24, Tryouts, Harrisburg vs. Virginia, Baltimore Reserves vs. Philadelphia Reserves.

Olmsted and Katzman in Practice Cage Game

The Olmsted Grill basket ball team, which will play unlimited teams this season, will engage the Katzman Tailors in a practice game at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Roosevelt gymnasium. All players have been requested to report at 9 o'clock.

Coach Sox Harington, of Olmsted, will have available for duty this season Bill Mitchell, Dave Dantzig, Snooky Kemp, Wilbur Cross, Eddie Wills and Bud Thompson. Katzman will employ Harry Wiltshire, Dick Keefer, Albert Rader, George Lassise, Joe Curtain, Jack Understein and Gabby Hartnett. The Katzman players will work out at Eastern tonight.

V. M. I. Scouts Loudly Laud Maryland

Praise Battle in Virginia Game, Though Varsity Saw Little Action.

VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE scouts who saw Maryland plow under a crop of young football players from the University of Virginia last, week, returned to Blacksburg with glowing tales of the Terps' prowess. But it seems that they actually are in need of enlightenment.

Maryland used three teams on Virginia, a merciful gesture, and their combined attacks netted 313 yards from scrimmage and 92 yards on forward passes. Most of this was made by the second and third teams. The first eleven didn't even work up a good sweat.

Calls on Catholic U.

As an indication Virginia failed to provide enough competition to keep the boys on edge, Head Coach Jack Faber yesterday called on Catholic University's stalwarts for help. Catholic U., it appears, is the only team capable of providing Maryland with enough competition now that the Terps are in stride, and sometimes the Cards work up a little too much steam.

The Maryland-V. M. I. feud began in 1906, when the Cadets kicked the tar out of the Aggies, 33 to 5, continued intermittently until 1927, when they clashed after nine years, and has raged ever since. V. M. I. won the first game and it won the last, topping the favored Terrapins, 19 to 13, last season.

Maryland Is Ahead.

The series stands six to four in Maryland's favor, with a couple of tie games sandwiched in between.

Bill Guckeyson, sophomore half back, is the most prolific scorer on the Maryland squad at this time, with 24 points to his credit. South Sothoron is next with 18 and Earl Widmyer, who was supposed to be something of a Fourth of July sparkler this season, is third with eight. Everybody of any consequence, excluding Curley Byrd, has figured in the point-making.

Maryland expects to take V. M. I. in stride and is pointing for its intersectional game with Indiana the following Saturday at Bloomington.

What Have You Triumphs in Hunt Race

Street Rides Gould Hope to Win Over Brush at Belmont Park.

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Frank M. Gould's What Have You, masterfully ridden by William B. Street, won the day's only amateur event at the annual meeting of the United Hunts today. The event was the R. Penn Smith, jr., Plate, a test of about 2 miles over brush for hunters registered by amateur riders holding certificates from the National Steeplechase and Hunt or those eligible for same.

Six horses went to the post out of the original 10 entries.

What Have You got away on top and went to the front with a lead of about six lengths over Anderson Fowler's Peacock, ridden by Burley Cocks. Drapeau, Gaston and Hopeful Jim were bunched just off Peacock and Northern Light 2d.

These positions were maintained until the second time around when Northern Light 2nd made a bid for the lead, but What Have You kept his command of the race and, even after the pace quickened, the others could not reach the flying What Have You. He jumped beautifully throughout and won by three lengths from Louis Storrard on Northern Light 2nd. N. Theodore on Gaston was three lengths behind Northern Light 2d for third. Drapeau was fourth.

Expects 40,000 Fans.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP).—Encouraged over last week's showing over Wisconsin, Northwestern fans suddenly have become so hopeful of an upset triumph over Illinois that prospects point to a crowd of 40,000 for the Wildcat-Illini game Saturday.

Hoyas Begin Drills for Roanoke

PRACTICE at Georgetown assumed a more serious aspect yesterday after Dick Danner, who scouted Roanoke last week, pulled out his notebook and read off a list of the Virginians' pet plays, star players and defensive tactics. Mr. Danner held the floor for the best part of an hour until called off by Head Coach Jack Hagerty who doesn't want his men to get an inferiority complex.

Roanoke, it seems, is in poor physical conditions after losing to the Apprentice School by 1 point last week. Now that is bad, for Frank Gosky, assistant coach of the Maroon, likes nothing better than a squad in poor physical shape.

An Old Gag Now.

Several years ago, if you recall, Kosky played end for Notre Dame when the Irish limped into New York with half the players in bed with flu and the other half hobbling around on bad ankles, twisted knees and broken ribs. They came to play the Army. The sports writers wrote sob stories about the gallant but broken-down Irish, the fans pitied them, and so did the Army.

In fact the Army pitied them so much they were going to use only second or third stringers against Notre Dame. But what happened? Nothing much. Notre Dame only won by a 21-0 count. You never saw such a healthy looking crew of cripples in your life.

Owner Considers Yankee Shake-up

Coombs May Be Lost.

In fact, there are two spots in the Yankee outfield which Ruppert concedes he may have to plug up if his plans are to be carried out successfully. Earl Coombs, who suffered a fractured skull when he crashed into the fence at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis last summer, is likely to find that his playing days, like Ruth's, are behind him. That would leave only Ben Chapman sure of an outfield berth in Joe McCarthy's outfit.

The Yankee infield is a problem which Ruppert must consider. Frank Crossetti, at shortstop; Lou Gehrig, at first base, and Bill Dickey at the plate are the only players upon whom Ruppert can depend to carry on through 1935.

May Move Lazzeri.

Tony Lazzeri, if he isn't marked for disposal in a deal, may be moved over to third base to replace the youthful Jack Saltsgaver, who fell off badly in his hitting last year. Or Red Rolfe may be given the job at third.

In addition, Ruppert needs at least another starting pitcher to back up Gomez, Ruffing, Murphy and Broaca and a worthy second-string catcher to relieve Dickey.

His specific plans, he, of course, would not discuss.

Heavy Helmets—No Wonder Gridmen Tire!

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Not long ago, before one of the big college football games, a group of us was hanging around in the football officials' dressing room, chatting with the officials and swapping stories. A football manager entered with an armful of football helmets and said "Will you please o. k. them sir?" Curious, I examined one closely. It was truly an amazing contraption.

It was made of stiff, hard, toughened leather, and shaped a little like the fourteenth century barbute, a helmet that was cut away from the brow and shaped down over the back of the neck. But the makers had borrowed from the sixteenth century closed helmets or "armet" by reenforcing the brow with a heavier section of leather, and, descending down over the chin, was a heavy visor of stiff leather, sharp-edged, but sponged and padded inside at the chin. From the thick front of the helmet down to the bottom of the visor there descended a curved piece of steel exactly like the nasal of the tenth century Norman casques, but padded and wound with black bicycle or insulation tape. A flexible chin strap completed the outfit.

"What would you call that?" I asked, "defensive armor or an offensive weapon?"

The official examined it, thumped it, hefted it, and questioned:

It weighed exactly 2½ pounds. "The rules prescribe only that the helmet be made of leather," he said.

"I got hit in the chest with one of those and had three ribs caved in," said a recent football star.

"When I played," said another official, "we wore light, soft leather headgear, often with just two bands crossed over the top, and there were rarely any head injuries. You know that often the wearing of a hat saves a man from a fractured skull in a serious accident."

It is highly probable that of that chance gathering in that official's dressing room will come protest and sane legislation on the subject of such armor at the next meeting of football rule makers or coaches this winter.

Is Wangled Out Of a Swell Job By Idle Chatter

By Nelson B. Bell.

So it seems that Baby LeRoy will not have the pleasure of tweaking Jimmy Durante's sumptuous schnozzle, after all, but will have to be content to confine his eminent beak-busting to the ample proboscis of that genial and slightly bulbous buffoon, Mr. W. C. Fields.

The adventurous young LeRoy has a hairdresser, of all things, to blame for having missed the chance to add the prize Durante schnozzola to his "noses-I-have-tweaked" list, for if it had not been for the hair-frizzer he would have had the baby role in "Carnival," with Lee Tracy, Jimmy Durante and Sally Eilers.

It appears from fragmentary reports of the LeRoy debacle, sifting Eastward from the Coast, that Mrs. Virginia Waters, wife of one Charles Waters, of Hollywood, was indulging in the simple pleasures of her usual Tuesday afternoon beauty parlor session and listening to the gossip of the finger-wavers. In a nearby chair, or somewhere, sat Marjorie Lowe, secretary to William Perlberg, who is by way of being the casting director at the comparatively nearby Columbia Studios.

Secretary Drops Hint.

Marjorie observed, in a moment of brief departure from her habit of close-lipped secretarial discretion, that Mr. Perlberg was thinking of signing Baby LeRoy for a picture, but was testing babies in gross or wholesale, lots—Heaven help us—before actually signing the precocious youngster from the Paramount plant.

Mrs. Walters, with an eye single to the main chance, twisted the button on the dryer clear up to the last notch, got her tresses parched in practically no time at all, and, grabbing little Dickie by the hand, got to the Columbia casting office in what amounted to nothing, flat.

When the estimable Mr. Perlberg saw the child he was delighted - and now it is Dickie who will do the role that Master LeRoy might have had.

Dickie is reputed to be a cute youngster, has never before been in pictures and already is said to have all the women at Columbia head over heels in love with him—which, I presume, is as good a way as any to be in love!

In the excess of our enthusiasm over the inauguration of the 1934-1935 season of one of Washington's foremost amateur acting groups, we opened the Columbia Players' season last night in yesterday morning's column, instead of tonight.

For this confusion of dates we are, needless to say, heartily remorseful.

But everything else that was remarked in this space yesterday morning concerning the Columbia Players still reflects the unbiased opinion of this outpost of the drama. The preparation of their first play has been complicated by the peculiar case history of Frank B. Elser's "Low Bridge," which, almost overnight, became Marc Connelly's "The Farmer Takes a Wife," a current New York hit. After this play was well along in rehearsal, it became necessary to substitute Lulu Vollmer's "Moonshine and Honeysuckle," which is the play you will see in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets tonight and tomorrow night, instead of last night and tonight.

Genuflections all around.

And tickets are still on sale at T. Arthur Smith's, 1330 G street and at the box-office. The tariff, it may be reiterated, is 85 cents per reserved seat for this play, or $3.50 for the entire season of six.

That "Merry Widow."

There are, apparently, two widely variant schools of thought with regard to the merits or demerits of Ernst Lubitsch's stunning picturization of Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," now scoring a deserved triumph as the screen feature of the sixteenth anniversary program at Loew's Palace Theater.

Those who saw and remember the original Henry W. Savage production of this work, or any of its numerous subsequent revivals—the last one, I believe, having played the National about eight or ten years ago—hail the Lubitsch elaboration of a light and frolicsome operetta as a sheer manifestation of genius.

Those of a later generation, however, who have no concrete notion whatever as to whether "The Merry Widow," as originally presented, was light opera, opera bouffe, operetta, musical comedy, revue or burlesque, are left cold as far as any sentimental attachment to a masterpiece of its day, and in its class, is concerned.

The Lubitsch work, to all intents and purposes, is an original creation to the great majority of its current audiences. Whether or not anything of the virgin work remains, they neither do not care.

It is either a "good show," or it isn't.

So far the score is all in favor of those who deem it an exceptional combination of spectacle, comedy, keen satire, dance and hauntingly lovely music.

To this typewriter it is difficult to understand how any other view could be taken.

Speaking of sensational musical successes, it can do nothing to harm the triumphant career of "One Night of Love," starring Grace Moore, with Tullio Carminati, Luis Alberni, Lyle Talbot and numerous others of note, to reveal that it still is attracting such extraordinary patronage to the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater that one of yesterday's late decisions was to continue it still another week after this on F street, making the fifth of its downtown run.

This automatically defers the first Washington showing of "The Lemon Drop Kid" to Friday, November 16.

At the risk of tedious repetition, it may be observed again that "One Night of Love" is a picture that deserves every atom of the huge success it is enjoying. It is a picture one may view repeatedly with constantly mounting, rather than diminishing, admiration.

Dots and Dashes.

It is a source of extreme regret that a press of other duties these past few days have had this column beaten down to a point where it was compelled to miss two preview screenings of prime importance . . . These would be Helen Hayes in Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," with Brian Aherne, and "Gentlemen Are Born" . . . The one will be at the Fox come Friday, the other at the Earle . . . More of both later . . . Once more, as has been previously remarked, the Roof Players will be seen in Phineas T. Barnum's old melodrama of "The Drunkard, or the Fallen Saved," in Washington this week . . . At the National Press Club, Friday night . . . Brook Johns will act as master of ceremonies at the annual Armistice Ball of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the Willard Hotel Saturday night . . . The proceeds will be devoted to the charitable work of the organization . . . Phil Hayden, on the entertainment committee, will present a group of his star pupils . . . Promotions announced by Division Manager Carter Barron of Loew's, Inc., move George Shepp from the assistant managership of Loew's Columbia to Wilmington, Del., where he becomes assistant to Roscoe Drissel, formerly of this city, and Easton Early, who began as an usher at the Fox, to the assistant managership of the Columbia . . . Congratulations . . . Try-outs for the Pierce Hall Players second production of the season will be held at All Soul's Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets, tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock . . . George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" is the piece, to be presented in December . . . It is tomorrow night at the University Club that Rebecca and Penelope Tarwater will be heard in a program of songs and sketches . . . Members of the Lisa Gardiner dancing group are in Philadelphia appearing with the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe . . . They will return to the Capital tomorrow to begin rehearsals for the Community Players' production of "Ali Baba, or the Cave of the Forty Thieves" . . . Elizabeth Bergner, star of "Catherine the Great," having completed exteriors for "Escape Me Never," in the Italian Dolomites, is now before the cameras in the Elstree studios in London . . . Look for this through United Artists . . . Or don't look for it and see if I care!

Morning After Note.

I told you so! But those who were unsuccessful at the polls yesterday, at least, still have the privilege of ankling about doing the best they can in the anteroom of those who came through.

By the way, who ran?

Stars on New Week's Screens

France Warns Reich on Saar

If League Requests, Says Laval, Troops Will Be Sent to Region.

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—Foreign Minister Pierre Laval today told Roland Koester, German Ambassador to France, that France stands ready to send troops into the Saar Basin if the League of Nations so requests. He denied, however, that special military movements already have been ordered.

[Residents of the Saar vote January 13 whether to remain under League of Nations mandate, join France or reunite with Germany. Anti-German spokesmen have expressed fears that Nazis might try to seize the territory by force, either before or after the vote.]

Laval said emphatically France could not and would not evade any duties which might fall upon her in executing her obligations to the league. The ambassador replied that Germany had no intention whatever of disregarding conditions fixed by treaty in order to assure free voting in the Saar. Laval expressed pleasure at this declaration, adding that the French likewise insisted on absolute respect of freedom of the vote.

Straight From the Studios

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Nov. 6.—Douglas Fairbanks is giving up his interest in the London Films Organization. Announcement was made of the completion of negotiations yesterday looking to this end. It means that the star will hereafter confine his activities to America.

MAX BAER

Fairbanks was to have made several features for this London company, the first of which, already produced, is "The Private Life of Don Juan." He also possessed a very substantial interest in the corporation, which has been disposed of to Alexander Korda.

The idea lurks very much in Doug's mind of visiting China in the near future with a view to producing a picture there. He has also considered a revival of "The Mark of Zorro" and a film dealing with Joaquin Murietta, an early California bandit.

• • • •

Technicolor Advances.

The age of color is signalized. John Hay Whitney has announced that he will spend $7,000,000 on the production of nine or more Technicolor films, which means laying out nearly $1,000,000 each on these productions.

The first step is the filming of "Becky Sharp," which will start work by the end of the month, with Miriam Hopkins starring and Lowell Sherman directing.

Encouragement has been given to the large program by "La Cucaracha," which was made by Robert Edmond Jones, who is doing important work in establishing color.

Notable are the two productions planned by Merian C. Cooper, one of which will be "The Last Days of Pompeii" and the other, Rider Haggard's "She."

• • • •

"Count of Monte Cristo" Costume Triumph.

To be chronicled as a true achievement in the domain of the costume drama is "The Count of Monte Cristo," now showing. It brings a notable performance to the screen by Robert Donat, while Elissa Landi is seen at her best as the leading feminine character, Mercedes.

Everything in this romantic melodrama has been modulated to suit the present day taste. The theatrical elements, except those which are good theater now, have been eliminated, and the picture proves to be an engrossing and frequently a thrilling one as visualized.

Edmond Dantes, victim of a political imbroglio in Napoleonic times, is shown in the tragedy of his confinement in the Chateau d'If, and again as the wealthy Monte Cristo, bent on bringing his persecutors to time. The motif for his actions is one of seeking justice, and though that is a very much forced theme, the situations as developed in the picture are very compelling.

Deferred and Rewritten.

Postponement of the Max Baer picture, "Kids on the Cuff," has been announced. Seems that this prize-fighting opus needs some rewriting, and so a stay of 60 days was granted Paramount in going through with the contract. Meanwhile Baer is to continue his refereeing of wrestling matches, and will do some radio broadcasting.

Picture Pageant In Review.

Bela Lugosi has just been cast in "The Depths Below," with Jack Holt and Edmund Lowe. His role will be that of a half-mad scientist, who, it's told, thinks nothing of "casting his enemies to man-eating sharks, which he keeps in captivity."

John Boles, who is to play in "The Hawk of the Desert," and who will have a chance also to sing in the picture, returns from New York today. The plan is to start production of the new film December 3, with Irving Cummings directing.

Lewis S. Stone has been chosen to play the role of Gen. Carter in "West Point of the Air," with Wallace Beery, Robert Young and James Gleason. Richard Rosson will direct the feature, and is leaving next week for San Antonio, where exterior scenes will be shot.

Spencer Tracy arrives today from Honolulu and will start work on "Dante's Inferno" Monday.

Settlement of the Frank Morgan controversy with M.-G.-M., which has been fuming and firing from time to time, is reported near, with the actor getting a bonus for his labors. And it's mostly due to the impression he has made in "The Affairs of Cellini."

Isabel Jewell, who has a new contract with M.-G.-M., will shortly appear in "Naughty Marietta," with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

Employment Center Gets Job for 1,830

The United States Public Employment Center helped 1,830 persons get jobs in the District of Columbia during October, an increase of 26 per cent over September. Meanwhile, 3,212 new applications were received. Most of the placements, 72.4 per cent, were with private employers, and the rest were in public works projects.

Analyzing the figures, Labor Department officials said employment conditions in Washington appeared to be improving, while employers were turning more and more to the employment center for employes.

He's 13—and He's Pretty Sore

Virginia Boy, 13, Buffeted by Explosion, Banged About In Two Auto Mishaps Within Few Hours, Sees Better Times Ahead.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Charles Poole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Poole, who reside on a farm on the outskirts of Winchester, is at home again waiting for his broken arm to knit and confident that his troubles are at an end.

The 13-year-old boy met his first misfortune when he attempted to kindle a fire by pouring a half-pint of kerosene on the fuel in which were smouldering embers. The explosion resulting threw him across the room and his head bumped the wall. More serious were burns about his face which required treatment.

His next mishap occurred a few hours later when the automobile in which he was riding was sideswiped. Except for shock, however, he escaped. Not so the third time—when he attempted to crank an old automobile engine. The motor kicked and broke Charles' right arm.

"It's all over now," he said, "on account of it happened three times."

Child, Crippled by Paralysis, Able to Walk Again Through Care Given by Chest Agency

Getting strong again at the Children's Country Home, a Community Chest agency for needy convalescent children. Here the best of care is provided for children whose parents can not afford the needed food and attention after serious illness. Weak little bodies are built into strong ones.

Contributors to D. C. Fund Make Possible Healing of Hundreds.

All Washingtonians hope there will always be stories like this one—made possible by last year's Community Chest drive. The success of this year's drive will bring more such rewards.

This is no miracle. Good care, the science of physicians, well-trained nurses and a good environment will accomplish the same for hundreds of young patients like the little girl in this case, but many of them, like her, will not be able to buy this care.

She did not have to pay for it. Chest contributors made her healing possible. When she entered the home more than a year ago she could neither walk, talk nor sit up. She was convalescing from infantile paralysis. Her mother was unable to persuade her to eat.

It was only a few weeks ago that this child left the Children's Country Home. She was then a different little girl. She could walk with a brace; she could talk and play with her friends.

It is very easy to see that this patient might have lost all in life. She is well now because an agency to which the Washington public, unknowing, entrusted her, did its job well.

At present at the home there are 40 other children, not convalescing from infantile paralysis, but getting strength after other serious illnesses, strength which they would not gain because their parents can not afford to give them needed care and food.

Six years is the age limit for children at the home, and the youngsters range down to mere infants. All are from needy families which can not give the necessities that may mean the difference between health or a lifetime of sickliness.

All the financial support which makes the home possible comes from Community Chest gifts. There is no endowment, so the home depends entirely upon the response of the city to the Chest campaigns.

Three Big D. C. Issues To Be Discussed Tonight

The big three of citizens' interest—the crime crusade, the housing campaign and the Community Chest—will be taken up by the Friendship Citizens' Association at 8 p. m. today in the Janney School.

The group is expected to discuss definite boundaries for its jurisdiction and will begin a membership drive.

Former Comptroller Is Dead in New York

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Valentine Perry Snyder, former president of the National Bank of Commerce and deputy and acting comptroller of the currency under President Cleveland, died today at his Fifth avenue home.

He was secretary to Daniel Manning, Secretary of the Treasury in the first Cleveland Cabinet.

Germany Unveils Statue Honoring Lody, Famed Spy

Lubeck, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP).—Germany's famous wartime spy, Carl Hans Lody, was honored today on the twentieth anniversary of his execution by a firing squad in the Tower of London.

To his memory was unveiled a statue of a knight in full armor at the gate of ancient Lubeck Castle. Above the memorial was hung a bell to be tolled on future anniversaries of Lody's execution.

Lody was a German naval officer who traveled about England in the early days of the World War on an American passport giving his name as Charles A. Inglis, of Omaha. He had lived in Omaha where he was married.

He communicated his information to Germany by pre-arranged grouping of postage stamps. He was found guilty of espionage after three day's trial by a court martial.

He died bravely, sitting in a chair his legs crossed, his head back, and his eyes unbanaged before a firing squad of eight soldiers.

(His execution was the first in the Tower of London in 214 years and 11 other German spies followed him in death there during the war.)

Virginia Union Raps Pay Scale Committee

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Charges that the Governor's PWA committee on wage scales had violated the regional PWA zone wage scale were contained in a statement made today by J. L. Butcher, business agent for Local 388, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

He said the committee was without authority to fix a 60-cent wage for carpenters on rough work and local or rural skilled labor when the minimum wage set for Virginia was $1.10 an hour for skilled labor and 45 cents for unskilled.

Rites Planned Here For Col. Hickam

Body Starts for Capital Today From Texas.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—The body of Lieut. Col. Horace M. Hickam, killed in an airplane accident Monday night, will be taken tomorrow to Washington, where the commanding officer of the third attack group will be buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Friday. Mrs. Hickam will accompany the body and will be joined in Washington by her daughter, Miss Martha Hickam, student at Smith College, and son, John Hickam, student at Harvard.

The full personnel of the Third Attack group will escort the body to the train. Fort Crockett officials announced today Col. Hickam had died of a broken vertebra. They could not account for the accident, pending an investigation by a board of inquiry.

Snow Buries Reindeer Alive.

Umea, Sweden, Nov. 6 (AP).—A number of reindeer were found buried alive in the snow in Lapland today with only their antlers protruding. Snow has fallen five feet deep in some places.

Dots and Dashes.

It is a source of extreme regret that a press of other duties these past few days have had this column beaten down to a point where it was compelled to miss two preview screenings of prime importance . . . These would be Helen Hayes in Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," with Brian Aherne, and "Gentlemen Are Born" . . . The one will be at the Fox come Friday, the other at the Earle . . . More of both later . . . Once more, as has been previously remarked, the Roof Players will be seen in Phineas T. Barnum's old melodrama of "The Drunkard, or the Fallen Saved," in Washington this week . . . At the National Press Club, Friday night . . . Brook Johns will act as master of ceremonies at the annual Armistice Ball of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the Willard Hotel Saturday night . . . The proceeds will be devoted to the charitable work of the organization . . . Phil Hayden, on the entertainment committee, will present a group of his star pupils . . . Promotions announced by Division Manager Carter Barron of Loew's, Inc., move George Shepp from the assistant managership of Loew's Columbia to Wilmington, Del., where he becomes assistant to Roscoe Drissel, formerly of this city, and Easton Early, who began as an usher at the Fox, to the assistant managership of the Columbia. . . Congratulations . . . Try-outs for the Pierce Hall Players second production of the season will be held at All Soul's Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets, tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock . . . George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" is the piece, to be presented in December . . . It is tomorrow night at the University Club that Rebecca and Penelope Tarwater will be heard in a program of songs and sketches . . . Members of the Lisa Gardiner dancing group are in Philadelphia appearing with the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe . . . They will return to the Capital tomorrow to begin rehearsals for the Community Players' production of "Ali Baba, or the Cave of the Forty Thieves" . . . Elizabeth Bergner, star of "Catherine the Great," having completed exteriors for "Escape Me Never," in the Italian Dolomites, is now before the cameras in the Elstree studios in London . . . Look for this through United Artists . . . Or don't look for it and see if I care!

Morning After Note.

I told you so! But those who were unsuccessful at the polls yesterday, at least, still have the privilege of ankling about doing the best they can in the anteroom of those who came through.

By the way, who ran?

Stars on New Week's Screens

France Warns Reich on Saar

If League Requests, Says Laval, Troops Will Be Sent to Region.

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—Foreign Minister Pierre Laval today told Roland Koester, German Ambassador to France, that France stands ready to send troops into the Saar Basin if the League of Nations so requests. He denied, however, that special military movements already have been ordered.

[Residents of the Saar vote January 13 whether to remain under League of Nations mandate, join France or reunite with Germany. Anti-German spokesmen have expressed fears that Nazis might try to seize the territory by force, either before or after the vote.]

Laval said emphatically France could not and would not evade any duties which might fall upon her in executing her obligations to the league. The ambassador replied that Germany had no intention whatever of disregarding conditions fixed by treaty in order to assure free voting in the Saar. Laval expressed pleasure at this declaration, adding that the French likewise insisted on absolute respect of freedom of the vote.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Nov. 6.—Douglas Fairbanks is giving up his interest in the London Films Organization. Announcement was made of the completion of negotiations yesterday looking to this end. It means that the star will hereafter confine his activities to America.

MAX BAER

Fairbanks was to have made several features for this London company, the first of which, already produced, is "The Private Life of Don Juan." He also possessed a very substantial interest in the corporation, which has been disposed of to Alexander Korda.

The idea lurks very much in Doug's mind of visiting China in the near future with a view to producing a picture there. He has also considered a revival of "The Mark of Zorro" and a film dealing with Joaquin Murietta, an early California bandit.

Technicolor Advances.

The age of color is signalized. John Hay Whitney has announced that he will spend $7,000,000 on the production of nine or more Technicolor films, which means laying out nearly $1,000,000 each on these productions.

The first step is the filming of "Becky Sharp," which will start work by the end of the month, with Miriam Hopkins starring and Lowell Sherman directing.

Encouragement has been given to the large program by "La Cucaracha," which was made by Robert Edmond Jones, who is doing important work in establishing color.

Notable are the two productions planned by Merian C. Cooper, one of which will be "The Last Days of Pompeii" and the other, Rider Haggard's "She."

"Count of Monte Cristo" Costume Triumph.

To be chronicled as a true achievement in the domain of the costume drama is "The Count of Monte Cristo," now showing. It brings a notable performance to the screen by Robert Donat, while Elissa Landi is seen at her best as the leading feminine character, Mercedes.

Everything in this romantic melodrama has been modulated to suit the present day taste. The theatrical elements, except those which are good theater now, have been eliminated, and the picture proves to be an engrossing and frequently a thrilling one as visualized.

Edmond Dantes, victim of a political imbroglio in Napoleonic times, is shown in the tragedy of his confinement in the Chateau d'If, and again as the wealthy Monte Cristo, bent on bringing his persecutors to time. The motif for his actions is one of seeking justice, and though that is a very much forced theme, the situations as developed in the picture are very compelling.

Deferred and Rewritten.

Postponement of the Max Baer picture, "Kids on the Cuff," has been announced. Seems that this prize-fighting opus needs some rewriting, and so a stay of 60 days was granted Paramount in going through with the contract. Meanwhile Baer is to continue his refereeing of wrestling matches, and will do some radio broadcasting.

Picture Pageant In Review.

Bela Lugosi has just been cast in "The Depths Below," with Jack Holt and Edmund Lowe. His role will be that of a half-mad scientist, who, it's told, thinks nothing of "casting his enemies to man-eating sharks, which he keeps in captivity."

John Boles, who is to play in "The Hawk of the Desert," and who will have a chance also to sing in the picture, returns from New York today. The plan is to start production of the new film December 3, with Irving Cummings directing.

Lewis S. Stone has been chosen to play the role of Gen. Carter in "West Point of the Air," with Wallace Beery, Robert Young and James Gleason. Richard Rosson will direct the feature, and is leaving next week for San Antonio, where exterior scenes will be shot.

Spencer Tracy arrives today from Honolulu and will start work on "Dante's Inferno" Monday.

Settlement of the Frank Morgan controversy with M.-G.-M., which has been fuming and firing from time to time, is reported near, with the actor getting a bonus for his labors. And it's mostly due to the impression he has made in "The Affairs of Cellini."

Anita Louise is expected back in town Thursday from her trip East on the streamline train.

Isabel Jewell, who has a new contract with M.-G.-M., will shortly appear in "Naughty Marietta," with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

Employment Center Gets Job for 1,830

The United States Public Employment Center helped 1,830 persons get jobs in the District of Columbia during October, an increase of 26 per cent over September. Meanwhile, 3,212 new applications were received. Most of the placements, 72.4 per cent, were with private employers, and the rest were in public works projects.

Analyzing the figures, Labor Department officials said employment conditions in Washington appeared to be improving, while employers were turning more and more to the employment center for employes.

He's 13—and He's Pretty Sore

Virginia Boy, 13, Buffeted by Explosion, Banged About In Two Auto Mishaps Within Few Hours, Sees Better Times Ahead.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Charles Poole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Poole, who reside on a farm on the outskirts of Winchester, is at home again waiting for his broken arm to knit and confident that his troubles are at an end.

The 13-year-old boy met his first misfortune when he attempted to kindle a fire by pouring a half-pint of kerosene on the fuel in which were smouldering embers. The explosion resulting threw him across the room and his head bumped the wall. More serious were burns about his face which required treatment.

His next mishap occurred a few hours later when the automobile in which he was riding was sideswiped. Except for shock, however, he escaped. Not so the third time—when he attempted to crank an old automobile engine. The motor kicked and broke Charles' right arm.

"It's all over now," he said, "on account of it happened three times."

Getting strong again at the Children's Country Home, a Community Chest agency for needy convalescent children. Here the best of care is provided for children whose parents can not afford the needed food and attention after serious illness. Weak little bodies are built into strong ones.

Contributors to D. C. Fund Make Possible Healing of Hundreds.

All Washingtonians hope there will always be stories like this one—made possible by last year's Community Chest drive. The success of this year's drive will bring more such rewards.

It happened at the Children's Country Home, a Chest-supported agency for convalescent children located at Bunker Hill road and Eighteenth street northeast.

This is no miracle. Good care, the science of physicians, well-trained nurses and a good environment will accomplish the same for hundreds of young patients like the little girl in this case, but many of them, like her, will not be able to buy this care.

She did not have to pay for it. Chest contributors made her healing possible. When she entered the home more than a year ago she could neither walk, talk nor sit up. She was convalescing from infantile paralysis. Her mother was unable to persuade her to eat.

It was only a few weeks ago that this child left the Children's Country Home. She was then a different little girl. She could walk with a brace; she could talk and play with her friends.

It is very easy to see that this patient might have lost all in life. She is well now because an agency to which the Washington public, unknowing, entrusted her, did its job well.

At present at the home there are 40 other children, not convalescing from infantile paralysis, but getting strength after other serious illnesses, strength which they would not gain because their parents can not afford to give them needed care and food.

Six years is the age limit for children at the home, and the youngsters range down to mere infants. All are from needy families which can not give the necessities that may mean the difference between health or a lifetime of sickliness.

All the financial support which makes the home possible comes from Community Chest gifts. There is no endowment, so the home depends entirely upon the response of the city to the Chest campaigns.

Three Big D. C. Issues To Be Discussed Tonight

The big three of citizens' interest—the crime crusade, the housing campaign and the Community Chest—will be taken up by the Friendship Citizens' Association at 8 p. m. today in the Janney School.

The group is expected to discuss definite boundaries for its jurisdiction and will begin a membership drive.

Former Comptroller Is Dead in New York

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Valentine Perry Snyder, former president of the National Bank of Commerce and deputy and acting comptroller of the currency under President Cleveland, died today at his Fifth avenue home.

He was secretary to Daniel Manning, Secretary of the Treasury in the first Cleveland Cabinet.

Germany Unveils Statue Honoring Lody, Famed Spy

Lubeck, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP).—Germany's famous wartime spy, Carl Hans Lody, was honored today on the twentieth anniversary of his execution by a firing squad in the Tower of London.

To his memory was unveiled a statue of a knight in full armor at the gate of ancient Lubeck Castle. Above the memorial was hung a bell to be tolled on future anniversaries of Lody's execution.

Lody was a German naval officer who traveled about England in the early days of the World War on an American passport giving his name as Charles A. Inglis, of Omaha. He had lived in Omaha where he was married.

He communicated his information to Germany by pre-arranged grouping of postage stamps. He was found guilty of espionage after three day's trial by a court martial.

He died bravely, sitting in a chair his legs crossed, his head back, and his eyes unbanaged before a firing squad of eight soldiers.

(His execution was the first in the Tower of London in 214 years and 11 other German spies followed him in death there during the war.)

Virginia Union Raps Pay Scale Committee

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Charges that the Governor's PWA committee on wage scales had violated the regional PWA zone wage scale were contained in a statement made today by J. L. Butcher, business agent for Local 388, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

He said the committee was without authority to fix a 60-cent wage for carpenters on rough work and local or rural skilled labor when the minimum wage set for Virginia was $1.10 an hour for skilled labor and 45 cents for unskilled.

Rites Planned Here For Col. Hickam

Body Starts for Capital Today From Texas.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—The body of Lieut. Col. Horace M. Hickam, killed in an airplane accident Monday night, will be taken tomorrow to Washington, where the commanding officer of the third attack group will be buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Friday. Mrs. Hickam will accompany the body and will be joined in Washington by her daughter, Miss Martha Hickam, student at Smith College, and son, John Hickam, student at Harvard.

The full personnel of the Third Attack group will escort the body to the train. Fort Crockett officials announced today Col. Hickam had died of a broken vertebra. They could not account for the accident, pending an investigation by a board of inquiry.

Snow Buries Reindeer Alive.

Umea, Sweden, Nov. 6 (AP).—A number of reindeer were found buried alive in the snow in Lapland today with only their antlers protruding. Snow has fallen five feet deep in some places.

Reserve Banks Hit Snags in Industry Loans

Restrictions May Bring on Competition Conflicts; Bar to New Projects.

(Associated Press.)

Federal Reserve Banks are between the devil and the sea in the matter of lending direct to industry under terms of the law passed at the last session of Congress.

The $280,000,000 of credit, which they are authorized to extend, must be not only for working capital but on a "sound and reasonable" basis. On the other hand, the loans virtually have to be transactions that the commercial banks don't want, for the reserve institutions do not wish to set themselves up as competitors.

A borrower also must be "an established industrial or commercial business" which eliminates new projects, no matter how promising they may look.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which, under the same law, is empowered to lend $300,000,000 direct to industry, isn't so circumscribed. The industries do not need to be "established."

The borrowers, however, must be "solvent," and the loan must be "adequately secured" in the opinion of RFC directors. They also must "offer reasonable assurance of continued or increased employment of labor." The RFC limit for a single borrower is $500,000.

Total approvals by the reserve banks on October 31 were more than $25,000,000, with the RFC approvals standing at about $20,000,000.

Better Trade Sentiment Is Seen Gaining

Improvement in Business Is Evident in Many Parts of Country.

New York, Nov. 6.—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, currently comments as follows:

"Improvement in business sentiment is becoming increasingly evident in many sections of the country, as a result of the shift of the Administration toward more moderate policies. Thus far, however, business volumes have responded rather slowly to this betterment, and present indications are that only slight gains will be registered before the year-end.

"Steel ingot production has advanced to a level above 25 per cent of capacity, the highest rate in three months. Moreover, the recent upturn in scrap prices, after an almost unbroken downtrend since last March, strengthens the belief that further gradual expansion of steel operations will be witnessed over the remainder of 1934.

"In the oil industry, price cutting has been at least temporarily checked, following reports that the oil administration has brought "hot oil" production in East Texas to a virtual standstill. The success of these efforts, however, probably will be subject to further test before any broad price increases are instituted. Building awards for the first half of October were 4 per cent below a year ago, but renovation work under the housing program is now getting actively under way, and a relatively favorable showing is expected over coming months.

"Thus, unless the labor situation creates more widespread difficulties than are now in sight, generally favorable trends in both light and heavy industries are in prospect into the early months of 1935."

Argentina Seen Menacing Hope Of Wheat Curb

By Albert W. Wilson.

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—Trade statistics disclosed today that Argentina had continued her heavy shipments of wheat in the first quarter of the new cereal year which ended November 1, thereby casting a shadow over prospects for reaching an agreement on the year's quotas when the international wheat conference reconvenes November 20 in Budapest.

Members of the wheat commission here, who had been hopeful that Argentina would accept an annual quota of 150,000,000 bushels, were frankly pessimistic when they learned that the big South American nation had already exported approximately 50,000,000.

It was recalled that the attempts to decide on quotas at the London conference, which ended in a stalemate August 23, failed because of Argentina's demand for more time to consider the proposals.

Call Issued For Meeting.

As a result, there have been no international restrictions on shipping through the first quarter. A call was issued for the first full meeting of all 21 signatory nations of the wheat pact in an effort to reach an agreement at Budapest.

The pact broke down during its first year, which ended August 31, when Argentina exceeded her 110,000,000 bushel quota by 34,000,000 bushels.

Although exports during the second quarter normally are light for Argentina, wheat experts pointed out that her exports usually reach the peak in the third quarter when the new crop starts moving. In this connection, Argentina is expected to harvest another good crop in December as she suffered no drought as did nearly all the rest of the wheat-producing world.

Shipments for Quarter.

First quarter figures show Canada shipped about 55,000,000 bushels, Australia about 25,000,000, Soviet Russia about 2,000,000 and all others, including the United States, about 12,000,000. All these latter were within the limits envisaged as their proposed quotas.

No definite figure could be obtained here for the United States, but it was learned that she imported as well as exported small amounts of wheat.

Including flour, the United States exports were slightly larger than her imports.

The Markets at a Glance

Declines	112	93
Unchanged	144	129
Total issues	692	523

Stocks—Trading expanded, contrary to usual tendency, Monday, before a holiday and prices averaged five-tenths of a point higher. Building and liquor issues attracted attention. Sales increased to 759,000 shares.

Bonds—Monday, traders held back as election holiday approached and investors were not inclined to enter active buying. The market was unchanged and sales dropped to $8,177,000.

Curb—Firmness was displayed Monday and advances of fractions to 1 point were recorded in nearly all divisions. Sales increased to 146,000 shares.

Wheat—Faced by an election holiday wheat prices ruled irregular. Rains in Argentina aided the mixed condition. December wheat sold at 98⅜; May, at 98⅞.

Cotton—Cotton prices eased under December liquidation, but the general market closed steady and slightly higher. December sold at 12.03; January, at 12.07.

Sugar—Raw sugar was quiet and sold at 2.80; refined sold at 4.65.

Gold—Bar gold sold in London at 139 shillings and 5½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was slightly lower on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.99 to the English pound, 6.58¾ cents to the French franc, and 40.21 cents to the German mark.

U. S. Exports In Americas Are Increased

World Trade Is Advanced to $191,690,169; Sales to England Lead.

(Associated Press.)

Trade between the United States and nations of the Western Hemisphere increased in both exports and imports during September as compared with the same month last year while imports from the remainder of the world showed a falling off.

Exports to every continent were on the upgrade, the total for the entire world being $191,690,169 as compared with $160,119,098. Our imports for the world at large totaled $131,658,732 in September compared with $146,642,944 a year ago.

The largest increase in exports to any individual country was to the United Kingdom where exports during September jumped to $40,119,254 as compared with $28,474,201. At the same time our imports from the United Kingdom dropped approximately 25 per cent, being $9,838,405 as compared with $12,093,455.

Printing and Publishing Produce $4,024,644

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—The total production of Waynesboro manufacturing and printing and publishing plants during 1933 was $4,024,644, according to the preliminary summary of data collected in the biennial census of manufactures taken in 1934 and released yesterday by Director William A. Austin, bureau of the census, Department of Commerce.

Corporate Dividend Rates Seen Continuing Up in 4th Quarter

By G. A. Phillips.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—A continued upward trend in corporate dividend rates through the fourth quarter is looked for in Wall Street because most companies wish to avoid running afoul of the Internal Revenue act of 1934, which provides a penalty surtax on "unreasonable additions" to surplus accounts.

Favorable dividend changes have been on the upgrade for sometime, numbering 19 in the past week, according to the Standard Statistics Co., against only two unfavorable changes. Many quarters in the financial community believe that the generosity of directors is based, in some cases, on something more than increased earnings or improved prospects in the near future.

Just what will constitute "unreasonable additions" to surplus is an open question, certain to be hotly contested by corporation lawyers if the tax experts of the Treasury Department challenge the figures shown on the 1934 returns, the first year in which the latest Government regulations apply.

In addition to declaring extra dividends and increasing established rates, corporation executives have several other courses of action if the amount of their surplus is sufficiently large, in their opinion, to cause the Treasury to look at it with suspicion. Additional properties of smaller companies could be acquired, rehabilitation of plant and machinery, and building up of a stronger working capital position in anticipation of enlargements, are foremost in the number of policies that could be adopted.

In an analysis of earnings and present dividend payments, the Standard Statistics Co. has listed a number of companies which could, if present estimates hold up, adopt the dividend way out of showing excessive surplus at the end of the year. Among them are American Can Co. whose 1934 earnings are estimated by the Standard at $6.75 a common share and now paying $4.00 a share; Coca Cola Co. estimated to be earning about $10.50 a share and paying $6; Devoe & Raynolds, earning $5.50 and paying $2; National Lead Co. earning $8 and paying $5; J. C. Penney Co. earning $6 and paying $2.20 and United States Industrial Alcohol Co. earning at the rate of $4 a share and paying nothing at the present time.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—All leading security and commodity exchanges in New York, Chicago and other cities throughout the country were closed today due to elections in many sections.

The total foreign merchandise trade of the United States during September showed a substantial increase, according to reports to the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Exports amounted to $192,000,000, an advance of 20 per cent over a year ago. General imports valued at $132,000,000, however, were 10 per cent below the value of a year ago.

Business failures in the United Statees during the week ended November 1 numbered 233, compared with 225 in the preceding week and 294 in the same week last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

World Uses Fewer Bales Of All Cottons

Consumption of U. S. Crop Declines; More Foreign Products Bought.

New York, Nov. 6.—The world used fewer bales of all growths of cotton in September than in August, according to a report issued today by the New York Cotton Exchange Service. The decline was entirely due to the falling off in September domestic consumption as a result of the textile strike, since consumption increased in foreign countries.

As compared with September a year ago, mills in the Orient and in minor cotton-consuming countries used more cotton, while mills in the United States, Great Britain, and on the continent used less.

Consumption in September.

"World consumption of all kinds of cotton during September totaled 1,879,000 bales as compared with 1,936,000 in August, 2,043,000 in September last year, and 1,955,000 two years ago," says the Exchange Service. "The decline from August to September, contrary to the usual seasonal tendency for consumption to increase, was due entirely to the contraction in domestic consumption as a result of the textile strike.

"Domestic consumption of all growths of cotton in September aggregated 296,000 bales as against 421,000 in August, and 499,000 in September, last year. Abroad, spinners used 1,583,000 bales of all kinds in September, as compared with 1,515,000 in August, and 1,544,000 in September last year.

"During the first two months of the current cotton season, that is, from August 1 to September 30, world consumption of all growths aggregated 3,815,000 bales, as compared with 4,222,000 in the corresponding period last season, and 3,771,000 two seasons ago.

Spinners Use Less Cotton.

"In the United States, Great Britain and on the Continent, spinners used less cotton in September this year than in September a year ago, while spinners in the Orient and in minor cotton consuming countries used more. Domestic mills consumed 296,000 bales of all growths, as compared with 499,000 in September last year and 493,000 two years ago. In Great Britain, mills used 209,000 bales, as against 220,000 last year and 137,000 two years ago.

"Spinners on the Continent consumed 623,000 bales, as compared with 653,000 last year, and 616,000 two years ago. In the Orient and in minor cotton consuming countries, consumption totaled 751,000 bales, as against 671,000 last year and 709,000 two years ago.

"World consumption of American cotton declined in September, while consumption of foreign cottons increased. The world used 848,000 bales of American cotton in September, as compared with 980,000 in August, 1,195,000 in September last year, 1,168,000 two years ago, 1,024,000 three years ago and 866,000 four years ago. Of foreign growths, world spinners used 1,031,000 bales during September, as against 956,000 in August, 848,000 in September last year, 787,000 two years ago, 915,000 three years ago and 880,000 four years ago. Consumption of foreign growths in September was the largest total for any September on record."

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Several new high records were established in gilt-edged securities and British funds in a firm session on the stock exchange today. Old 2½ per cent consols reached 64¼, the highest price since 1909. Continued investment buying with surplus money for which it was difficult to find profitable employment in the money market caused the improvement in these securities. The tendency was also helped by the banks reducing loan charges to discount houses and purchases for foreign interests. Mining and oil shares again received attention, while transatlantic issues were cheerful on favorable overnight Wall street reports and election. Colonials and industrials improved. The market closed firm.

Paris—Prices on the bourse sagged today in response to cabinet troubles, but recovered partially later on hopes that the situation would improve. The market was also influenced by increasing optimism here regarding business conditions in the United States. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Quotations on the boerse recovered most of yesterday's losses on the cessation of selling and some repurchasing today. The closing was steady.

Persistent Liquidation of Junior Obligations of Weaker Railroads Has Been Feature of Security Markets During Past Month.

By Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York, Nov. 6.—A feature of the security markets during the past month has been almost persistent liquidation of junior obligations of weaker railroads, as well as selling of many railroad stocks at a time when the rest of the share market was holding firm.

The comparatively poor market performance of railroad securities has reflected in substantial part selling by institutional and some individual investors who anticipate a change in the policy of the Administration toward the carriers, now that the congressional elections are over.

The policy of the Federal Government during the current depression has been to help railroads avoid default and reorganization. Railroad traffic and gross earnings declined approximately 50 per cent between 1929 and 1932. Despite drastic economies and the practice of deferring maintenance work on a large, and at times excessive, scale the weaker railroads soon found themselves faced with financial disaster.

Owing to their unfortunate past practice of raising an unduly large proportion of their capital by the sale of fixed interest obligations, the railroads have some $13,000,000,000 of bonded debt and more than $1,000,000,000 of guaranteed stocks outstanding, or about 70 per cent of all railroad capitalization in the hands of the public. Fixed charges and lease rentals that must be paid aggregate some $800,000,000, and in 1932 the railroads in the aggregate failed to earn such requirements by approximately $150,000,000. Of course, some railroads earned much more than their fixed charges, while some failed even to cover their operating expenses.

Government Has Dealt Handsomely With Railways.

The Federal Government, as far as financial aid goes, has dealt handsomely with the railroads. The original Reconstruction Finance Corporation act gave railroads a place alongside banks and certain other financial institutions as eligible applicants for loans. More than $400,000,000 has been loaned the carriers by the RFC, and the Public Works Administration is lending freely too. Despite the general depression and decline in commodity prices, also, railroads were authorized at the end of 1931 to effect small increases in their rates.

The chief reason for the greater favor shown the railroads, as compared with public utility or industrial enterprises, in the RFC lending activities was the large degree to which financial institutions, large and small, held their bonds. Life insurance companies hold some $3,000,000,000. Savings banks hold more than $1,000,000,000, as do commercial banks also. About half the railroad bonds outstanding are held by the financial institutions to aid which the RFC was established.

RFC loans have doubtless staved off bankruptcy for a number of railroads. However, in order to maintain their earning power and to continue interest on their bonds, railroads have skimped on maintenance expenditures a great deal. Also, they have reduced new capital expenditures almost to the vanishing point. As a result, the effort to avoid large-scale defaults and reorganizations for the railroads is now delaying the revival of carrier buying of equipment, materials and supplies, and has also curtailed reemployment of labor by the roads.

Future Policy Involves Two Alternatives.

The future policy of the Administration toward financial aid for the railroads thus alternatives. Shall the RFC continue to make loans to permit railroads to meet fixed charges and so stay out of the courts, or shall such loans be refused, or be granted only with the condition that a financial reorganization be effected, in order to hasten the return of the railroads as larger buyers of commodities and employers of labor?

With the financial institutions in better position now to withstand the effects of additional railroad reorganizations, and with many railroad securities selling low enough again to discount much or all of the sacrifice likely to be imposed on them in reorganization, the Administration is believed here to have reached the conclusion that the time has come to stimulate reorganizations in order to strengthen the financial status of the carriers.

Bankers returning from conferences with R. F. C. and I. C. C. officials gain the impression that a decision has been reached to tighten up on RFC loan authorizations. This impression has been heightened by the delay in granting the last application of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific for an RFC loan, with reported sharp divergence of opinion within the commission as to whether to insist on a reorganization or not. Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman about confirmed Wall street's view when he said in Birmingham earlier this week that "investors, like labor, must make some apparent sacrifice for the rehabilitation of the railroads."

Section of Bankruptcy Act Has Proved a Disappointment.

The new legislation passed in 1933 to facilitate reorganization of railroads, section 77 of the bankruptcy act, has proved a disappointment. Designed to facilitate and expedite railroad reorganizations, not a carrier has been reorganized under it. The act requires that stockholders as well as bondholders must approve a proposed reorganization plan unless the corporation is held "insolvent," and indefinite delays and investigations loom to determine this latter fact. When it was attempted in the case of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, it was decided to avoid that troublesome issue and instead to amend the bankruptcy act to make the determination of "insolvency" unnecessary.

New railroad bankruptcy legislation is now being drawn up to cut the red tape and permit quick and relatively drastic railroad reorganizations. The resulting reduced voice of security holders in effecting reorganization, however, will arouse protests from institutional holders, and probably attacks on the constitutionality of the new legislation.

Railroad security holders are in no hurry to reorganize. They prefer to wait, for they feel they would have to sacrifice less if reorganization is effected after traffic and earnings have recovered.

There thus looms a battle over railroad reorganization policies. The Administration will press for quick reorganizations as a contribution to business recovery. Security holders, especially institutional holders of bonds, prefer to wait, hoping to avoid drastic scaling down of their holdings or conversion into stock, such as is necessary on many railroads on the basis of their existing earning power.

Nickel Board Votes Dividend Of 15 Cents

Associated Gas & Electric Income Is Increased to $83,484,554.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Directors of the International Nickel Co. of Canada declared a dividend of 15 cents on the common stock, payable December 31, to stock of record December 1. Similar payments were made in previous quarters.

The Associated Gas & Electric Co. reported a gain in operating revenues for the 12 months ended September 30, with total of $83,484,554, against $81,724,310 in the preceding year, an increase of 21 per cent.

Operating income, after depreciation, amounted to $24,468,913, against $27,825,703 in the preceding 12 month period, a drop of 12 per cent. There was a loss of $4,553,753 reported after fixed charge interest of the parent company and prior charges, preferred dividends and other underlying obligations.

Railroads Earn 1.80 Per Cent On Investment

Nine Months' Net Income Totals $342,609,842; Exceeds 1933.

Class I railroads of the United States for the first nine months of 1934 had a net railway operating income of $342,609,842, which was at the annual rate of return of 1.80 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the bureau of railway economics of the Association of American Railroads and made public today. In the first nine months of 1933, their

On the Air Today

By George M. Adams, Jr.

MISS GERTRUDE STEIN has been away from the United States for 31 years writing jittery lyrics. As matron of modern art and literature she will be interviewed over the radio on Monday, November 12, by William Lundell on N. B. C. networks.

She will be asked her reactions to America after her prolonged absence, her views on art and her pet poodle, "Basket." It has not been announced whether she will be confronted by a crooner, but there has been speculation as to what might happen should she take to eulogizing singers of the Crosby type, and whether it would go something like this:

"Crooners beneath the grass alas,
"Crooners beneath the grass alas.
Short longer crooners awful short Longer crooners.
Crooners, short wave crooners on the Shorter longer network alas.
Crooners beneath the grass.
If they were not crooners what were they?"

WASHINGTON radio amateurs are a lively group. Many of them are not aware, however, that the Naval Communications Reserve offers a wonderful opportunity for increased knowledge and enjoyment.

The organization offers training of radio amateurs through a national network system. Radio drills are held throughout the country twice a month and a local drill is held three times a month. Uniforms are furnished active members and Government-owned equipment is used.

To give an idea of the opportunities offered and to allow those interested to meet radio men connected with the Naval Communications Reserve, it is planned to have an open meeting in the Naval Reserve Armory at 8 p. m. Thursday, November 15.

Officials of the Federal Communications Commission will be present and will give interesting information on amateur radio. All radio amateurs are urged to attend.

Great Minds at Work.

Roxy (at it for 12 years)—"As soon as you try to specialize in comedy, pathos, or drama, you run the risk of wearing yourself out."

Adele Ronson (the daring young girl with "Buck Rogers")—"I particularly like to play for child audiences because children are more used to exercising their imaginations than adults."

Freddy Martin (host to "Open House" talent)—"Now that we have been presenting local radio favorites in their network debuts for the past several weeks, I am thoroughly sold on the idea."

JOHN McCORMACK leaves for Ireland and England after today's concert on WMAL at 9:30 p. m. Following a tour of the British Isles, he will return to America early in the new year to resume his old radio appearances. In the meantime, John Charles Thomas, famous American barytone, will take his place, singing for the rst time November 14.

JIM M'GRATH, WRC announcer and entrepreneur of the King's English, has been added to Arthur Reilly's WRC morning variety hour from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock. Not that the agile Arthur couldn't handle the assignment, but Jim is merely handy at stooging and clowning about. This will be something like injecting a hypodermic into a hibernating elephant.

IF there's anything kids like to do it's to wear some kind of button or pin. It doesn't matter what it represents so long as the other kids on the block see it and want one too.

Sponsors of the Jimmie Allen broadcasts, heard daily on WRC at 6:15 p. m., have created a "Jimmie Allen Flying Club," which entitles youngsters to the official flying club wings, the sort aviators wear, and flying lesson charts, which are described during broadcasts.

The charts are really quite elaborate. They show how pilots take off, make turns in the air and other tricks of regulation flying. After five flight lessons are completed over the air, there comes a final examination and surprise announcements to be revealed later. See what Jimmie Allen has to say about it.

Hatless Women Aren't to See Princess and Duke of Kent Wed

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—No bareheaded women may attend the wedding of Princess Marina, of Greece, and the Duke of Kent, late this month.

A copy of regulations prescribing the dress to be worn, which went with each of the several hundred invitations to the main wedding ceremony issued by the Lord Chamberlain, provides women guests shall wear hats. They also are instructed to wear morning clothes and any orders and decorations they possess.

Navy, army and air officers will wear full dress, or service dress.

Members of the royal household and civil servants will wear full dress or levee (morning reception) dress, while civilians will wear court dress.

Special seats are being reserved at the Abbey for six servants of the duke. They will have a full view of the ceremony uniting the King's youngest son with the daughter of Prince and Princess Nicholas, of Greece.

It was disclosed the double ring ceremony may be used, in accordance with Greek Church tradition, at the Greek Orthodox ceremony in the private chapel at Buckingham Palace which will follow the main service in Westminster Abbey.

Welsh gold especially mined for the bridal ring arrived today at York House to be made up by West End jewelers.

Al Smith Helps Wife Observe Her Birthday

A special birthday cake was prepared for Mrs. Smith. It was the first time her birthday had fallen on election day since 1928, when her husband was Democratic candidate for President.

Rail Credit Body Returns $18,419,797

Through liquidating distributions, the Railroad Credit Corporation has returned $18,419,797 or 25 per cent of the net emergency freight revenues collected by the participating carriers through March 31, 1933, according to a report as to its financial condition filed by it this week with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Of this amount, $8,034,733 was in cash and $10,385,064 in credits on obligations due the corporation.

The Railroad Credit Corporation has made 11 liquidating distributions, the last one having been made on October 31, 1934, in the amount of $723,781, or 1 per cent of the fund.

Collections in October totaled $272,525, made up of $193,662 paid in reduction of loans, $78,860 in payment of interest and $3 from miscellaneous sources.
